HARRIMAN IMMUNE.

Government Finds No Criminality.

President and Cabinet Ponder Problem Until Midnight.

Brewer's Ruling That One Road Can Buy Another Bars Action.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After long discussion of E. H. Harriman on the part of the President and his administrative advisers, which ended at midnight, it can be stated on good authority that the Federal government will not undertake to prosecute Harriman criminally or in any other way.

"Immune," is the administration word as applied at this late day after the long agitation, to the chief railroad manager of the age. The President has been advised that Harriman has committed no crime within the category of Federal anti-trust or traffic rate laws and that there is no substantial basis upon which his prosecution could rest.

HIS TESTIMONY SAVES HIM.

Justice Brewer's ruling was cited, it is said, when he pointed out that there was nothing in the Federal laws to prevent one railroad from purchasing the control of another road. Testimony which Harriman was forced to give in hearings held by Federal authority also militated against the prosecution, it is contended, on which he secured immunity by statements he has made. It is probable that Harriman may be proceeded against to a certain extent if the government can compel him to answer the questions to which he declined to reply in certain hearings in New York. Such action, however, it is understood, would be rather to test the power of the government in that direction than to be used in any further attempt to punish Harriman.

By invitation of the President there assembled at the White House tonight Atty.-Gen. Bonaparte, Secretary Cortelyou of the Treasury, Secretary Root of the State Department, Secretary Taft, Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Commissioner Lane, also of that body, and Mr. Kellogg, special counsel to Chairman Knapp and his commission associates.

OPINION WIDELY DIVERGES.

There was wide divergence of opinion, it is understood, as to what could be done and what could not be undertaken successfully against Harriman. While no formal decision was announced covering the Harriman case, it was agreed that there was not ample jurisdiction for the government to proceed.

Administration advisers in whose departments are pending cases against various trusts and railroads for alleged violation of the anti-trust, interstate commerce and the traffic rate laws have had a long day of conference with the President.

It is understood that the purpose of the President was to reach an agreement in the general policy to be pursued in each and every one of the cases, that the individual departments might proceed along definite lines after he leaves Washington for his summer home in Oyster Bay.

CONSIDER GENERAL PLAN.

The consideration of these questions began in the Cabinet meeting which was much longer than usual. Then came Assist.-Atty.-Gen. Purdy, Dist.-Atty. Sims of Chicago, Atty.-Gen. Bonaparte and other law officers to consider the legal aspects of a number of propositions. Mr. Purdy then went to Philadelphia to consult with the United States District Attorney there in regard to filing the government's case against the anthracite coal roads, these including, it is said, the Philadelphia and Reading, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Erie, Lehigh Valley and the New York, Susquehanna and Western.

Alleged rebates and discriminations in rates will form the basis of the government prosecution in these cases.

Action against the bituminous coal roads of the West and a number of rebate cases in which a number of western railroads are involved will also be prosecuted actively.

GO AFTER MANY TRUSTS.

Action, which, in the opinion of the administration lawyers, will prove successful, will be undertaken against the harvester trust, the powder trust, the alleged grain and lumber trusts and possibly the fertilizer trust and the tobacco trust of the South.

The following statement was given out by Secretary Loeb at the conclusion of the conference:

"The conference was held for the purpose of affording ample discussion concerning the matters which have been under investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Interstate Commerce Commission has not yet formulated its report, and all the discussion was of a purely preliminary kind. After a report has been made, the attorneys will, of course, carefully consider it."

It is now believed that the Harriman matter will be allowed to rest in abeyance until after the proceedings have been concluded in New York, for the purpose of compelling him to explain his stock purchasing transactions, and no formal announcement will be made of the fact that he is not to be prosecuted under the anti-trust act.

Standard Does Not Meet Advance Although Demand Exceeds Supply. Seven Producers Outside Trust Have Calls for Million Barrels Which Were Declined.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An advance of three cents a barrel for oil in all of the South Texas fields is made by the independent producers headed by the Texas company. This concern is known as the Gates Company, and all other independent companies are co-operating in every move of the Texas company. That the companies known in oil circles as Standard concerns are not meeting the advance in prices is believed to be significant that the Standard is planning a new move. The increase in sales of the independent producers is 30 per cent. over this time a month ago and 25 per cent. more than at any time within the past year.

Contracts aggregating 350,000 barrels for long-time deliveries have been made at the new prices exclusive of deliveries to the two independent refineries owned by the Gates interests A report from seven independent producers shows that offers for over a million barrels of crude petroleum from companies known to the trade as trust branches have been declined and that an equal amount of oil has been sold to the independent refineries at prices lower than those offered by Standard agents. Independent producers say this was not possible heretofore because the only market for crude oil for refining purposes in unlimited quantities was controlled by the Standard.

HOW RUEF GRAFTED.

Victims Testify as to Game.

Link by Link, Prosecution Forges Chain of Proof Against Schmitz.

Will First Show Boss's Guilt and Then Expose Mayor as Willing Tool.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—The proprietors, before the fire, of the five French restaurants alleged to have been victimized by Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz and Abraham Ruef, testified for the prosecution today in the trial of the Mayor for extortion.

Two things stood out most prominently when they had finished: First, without exception they claimed to have paid into the $10,000 protection fund because they were satisfied that unless they employed Ruef they would lose their licenses and as a result their business; second, without exception they denied that any threat had been made that they would lose their licenses unless they employed Ruef and paid him, or that Ruef asked to be employed, or that he or any one in his behalf solicited the $10,000 or any sum of money whatsoever.

The prosecution contends that it is building up certain conviction by establishing by circumstantial evidence, or seeking to establish, the fact that certain of the French restaurateurs themselves acted as the agents of Ruef in suggesting that he be employed to protect their licenses for them and in the developments which followed; and Mr. Heney has promised to prove—presumably by the testimony of Ruef himself, who has turned State's evidence—that the money paid to Ruef was by him divided with the Mayor, after which the licenses were granted.

The defense takes the position that thus far the prosecution has utterly failed to support the accusation against the Mayor, inasmuch as he is charged with having "extorted through threat and fear."

Judge Dunne, who has several times expressed himself as anxious to have the case progress with as little delay as possible, will hold a Saturday morning session in Judge Cook's courtroom at Fillmore and Post streets. By the noon hour the prosecution expects to complete its main case.

"PUP" OWNER TESTIFIES.

Jean Loupy, for eight years proprietor of the Pup restaurant, now engaged in the saloon business, was the first witness called by the prosecution. The Pup was, before the fire, Abe Ruef's political headquarters.

There every evening after 9 o'clock the political boss of San Francisco was accustomed to receive his lieutenants, confer with them, receive reports and issue orders.

Loupy, examined by Assistant District Attorney Heney, told of the regularity with which Ruef and Mayor Schmitz frequented this restaurant after dark. Ruef always had his dinner there, and afterward held private court in one of the small dining-rooms on the second floor. After his appointment to the Police Commission Dr. Joseph F. Poheim was often a caller at the Pup to see Ruef and the Mayor.

On the evening of the day Delmonico's liquor license was revoked, the witness called Ruef on the telephone and made an appointment for 11 o'clock the next day.

"The next day," said Loupy, "I called on Ruef and asked him what was the matter, why was Delmonico's license taken away?" I said. I supposed my turn would come next. I said "Can't you help us? Can't you be our attorney and how much will be your fee?"

"Mr. Ruef said: 'Well, if you want me to take your case as a lawyer it will cost you $7000 a year on a contract for two years. And the money must be in currency—no checks go.'

"I went to the other restaurant keepers and told them, at a meeting at the Bay State. They said the price was too much. Then Pierre Priet spoke up. 'I know Mr. Ruef,' he said. 'I will go and see him and fix this up.'

"A day or two later we had another meeting at Marchand's of proprietors of the New Poodle Dog, Delmonico's, Marchand's, the Pup and the Bay State. Priet reported that he had been to see Mr. Ruef and that Mr. Ruef would take our cases and protect our licenses for $5000 a year. We all five agreed to pay this, and contributed our shares. Pierre Priet took charge of the money and delivered it to Mr. Ruef."

"Take the witness," said Mr. Heney.

Cross-examination by Mr. Campbell for the defense brought from Loupy the emphatic statement that Ruef had never come to the restaurant man and offered his services or asked to be employed, but on the contrary he was solicited by himself in behalf of the restaurateurs; that Ruef said he would rather not take the case, but that if they wanted him his fee would be $7000 a year.

"Now then," said Mr. Campbell, "did Mr. Ruef ever, on any occasion, threaten that if he was not employed, and if this money was not paid to him, you would lose your license?"

"No, never," replied Loupy.

CAMPBELL SMILES.

"Did you ever report to anyone that Ruef had so threatened?"

"I never did. No threat was made at all."

"That's all," announced Mr. Campbell triumphantly.

"At the time you had this dealing with Ruef you were in his debt for

FEARING DEATH SHRINER PUT FUNDS IN ENVELOPE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

READING (Pa.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Counsel was retained this afternoon by Miss Sarah Reber to represent her in a controversy which has arisen in the estate of Attorney George F. Hagenman, one of the Reading Shriners killed at Honda, Cal.

Before Hagenman left, it is alleged he urged Miss Reber to marry him, but it was finally agreed to postpone the wedding until after his return from the West. Mr. Hagenman then set apart an envelope containing $10,000 in securities, which he declared he wished Miss Reber to have in case of his death on this trip. This envelope was placed in the safe in his office.

Hagenman had a premonition that he would not return alive. Miss Reber explained to her counsel that she was present when forty-two shares of Keystone National Bank stock was placed in the envelope, sealed and inscribed: "The contents of this envelope belong to Miss Reber."

Miss Reber informed her counsel that after the funeral she called upon D. E. Schroeder, executor of Mr. Hagenman, and made a formal demand for the envelope, but, it is said, he declined to deliver it to her.

After consulting her counsel, Miss Reber made a second call upon Mr. Schroeder and renewed her request. Mr. Schroeder then, it is said, produced the envelope found in the safe, handed it to her, but with the request that it be opened in his presence. The envelope was opened. Miss Reber states she found the forty-two shares of Keystone Bank stock, worth over $250 each. Mr. Schroeder insisted on examining the shares, and finally placed them in his pocket, saying: "I must consult the heirs before anything can be done in so important a matter."

PARIS RAISES BREAD PRICE.

AIRSHIP BUTTS INTO WARSHIP.

AERONAUT LOSES CONTROL OF CRAFT AT EXPOSITION.

Sailors See Wild Navigator of Empyrean Coming and When Collision Occurs Some Dozen Cutters Race to Rescue—Battleship Is Undamaged by Impact.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NORFOLK (Va.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] M. Gaudet, an aeronaut, had the most thrilling experience of his life today in his airship ascension, owing to a collision with a pine tree that damaged the machine and sent it skimming far out into Hampton Roads, where it collided with the battleship Alabama, and the daring operator was rescued by the sailors, battered and half drowned.

In starting on a circling trip around the exposition, the Gaudet machine, for some unexplained reason, veered, going in to the pine trees at the side of the Inside Inn with great force. It then veered again and struck the water going at a clipping gait. It dipped like a cyclone and each time Gaudet was submerged. Six times he went under the water, spectators expecting every moment that he would lose his hold and go down.

The officers aboard the battleships in the roads who saw the accident realized the plight of Gaudet and in a minute a dozen cutters manned by jack tars, were racing for the airship. The cutter from the Alabama reached it and secured the drag rope, but it was a toy in the hands of the big gas bag, which was making straight for the Alabama at a high rate of speed. The boat crew saw that a collision was inevitable and released the drag rope just in time. Gaudet will be unable to participate in the balloon races tomorrow.

SUES PIPE LINE CONCERN.

FINDLAY (O.) June 6.—George H. Phelps today filed an action against the Standard Oil Company asking the court to enjoin the Buckeye Pipe Line Company from transporting oil through its lines from western oil fields belonging to any person being identified with the Standard Oil Company or its subsidiaries. The action of shipping oil in this manner is said to be a conspiracy against trade as well as against the interests of those for whom this action is brought.

JILTS GIRL, LEAVES ARMY, TAKES POISON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mack Richardson, whose resignation as first lieutenant in the Twenty-sixth Infantry was accepted yesterday by the President, took a dose of morphine and prussic acid last night. He was found at 9 o'clock this morning in his room, in a dying condition, and removed to the Emergency Hospital at Fort Sam Houston, where he died tonight.

He left a note which read: "To whom it may concern: This act has been inevitable since last November."

Lieut. Richardson was to have married the daughter of Maj. Kelly, who was stationed with the Twenty-fifth Infantry at Brownsville. On the day set for the wedding he did not appear, wiring that he was ill. The wedding guests were assembled, waiting for him to appear. The wedding was fixed for a second time, but he missed one train and arrived three hours late. When he did not appear at the hour set for the wedding, Miss Kelly and Maj. Kelly left for Washington and Lieut. Richardson returned to Fort Sam Houston. Within a short time his resignation was sent in, and Col. Brown, commanding the Twenty-sixth Infantry, recommended that it be accepted. The President followed the recommendation and last night a telegram to that effect was received here.

Richardson's death would have been instantaneous, only after taking the morphine he also took a big dose of prussic acid. One acted as an antidote on the other and prolonged his life for several hours.

Richardson was a captain in a Missouri regiment during the Spanish-American War and was later made a captain in the Sixty-ninth United States Infantry. At the conclusion of the war he was appointed to a first lieutenancy in the Twenty-sixth Infantry.

He was born in Tennessee, December 16, 1869, and is survived by two orphan children, his first wife having been dead several years.

Identifies Men in Open Court.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOISE (Idaho) June 7.—Harry Orchard went on the stand this morning for his third day of examination as the principal witness against William D. Haywood, the secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, charged with the murder of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg.

The cross-examination commenced yesterday afternoon. The State will then take Orchard in hand and the redirect examination will bring out more of the details of the terrible story.

The witness shows no signs of fatigue. When turned over to the defense he appeared to rally. He acted as though relieved from the strain.

Having once told in public of the murder of Steunenberg, he seemed to welcome a change.

His answers to Richardson's questions are delivered without hesitation.

He is quick-witted and self-possessed and appears not to feel the atmosphere of abhorrence with which he is surrounded.

The cross-examination is developing into a battle of wits between Richardson and Orchard.

According to those who know the facts of his early life, Orchard is not a naturalized citizen of this country. His parents were Canadians, the father of English and the mother of Irish descent. Orchard attended school in Canada, but passed through only a few of the lower grades, and is the second child of seven. All his brothers and sisters are living. When still a boy he hired out and worked for the neighbors and according to his own statement on the stand, he was over 20 years old when he left home and went to Saginaw, Mich.

In the course of Orchard's examination, Richardson asked questions to prove that Orchard began a career of dissipation early in life.

The man himself says that it was only after several years of hard work that he began to drink and gamble.

At that time he was building up a good business in the making of cheese, but it is now twelve years only since the turning point.

Infatuated, he ran away with the woman, changed his name and afterwards, ashamed to return to his wife and child, drifted into the life of crime, that gradually led to taking up killing as a trade by which he could earn easy money and avoid hard manual labor.

ORCHARD SEEMS NERVELESS.

While relating the most frightful of the crimes of which he accuses himself, his voice changes and lowers, but during the eight hours he has been on the stand, under fire of continual questioning, the man's manner has altered little, and except for the first flurry of nervousness, when he walked out into the courtroom and faced the crowd of curious faces after sixteen months of close incarceration, he has shown no sign that he realized he was dictating his record as the greatest criminal of the century.

That the cross-examination of Orchard will be severe in the extreme was evidenced by the first half-hour.

Counsel for the defense say that they will be able to tear down completely the story he has told in the direct examination.

They have called about 150 witnesses and the majority of these are here, they say, to disprove what Orchard has told.

The defense endeavored in various ways to throw the shadow of doubt and improbability around the whole Vindicator story and the alleged connection of W. F. Davis and William Easterly with the affair and the circumstances under which Orchard testified that he met Moyer and Haywood and was paid for the commission of the crime, and to discredit Orchard's story that he was sent back to Cripple Creek with unlimited credit and orders to commit any acts of violence that he cared to.

Orchard stood the strain and test very well and held tenaciously to the story he related yesterday and the day before.

Suddenly toward the close of the day the defense took up the trip Orchard made to Southern Colorado with Moyer in the early part of 1904, and showed that Moyer feared to go south unguarded, and had sent for Orchard to aid in protecting him.

It was agreed that they should carry cut-off shotguns and sit in the center of the railway car, so that if they were attacked they could defend themselves. Attorney Richardson in questioning the witness, made it very clear that this had been a perfectly straight proposition "free from any fake."

Counsel flared up several times during the day, and in the last passage at arms, Prosecutor Hawley said that Richardson told a falsehood when he intimated that Orchard was a fixed witness.

Mr. Richardson insisted that he be allowed to ask questions his own way.

"When you lift the lid you may expect to find out what's in it," said Senator Borah.

"Oh, I know the lid's been fixed for me," replied Richardson.

Mr. Hawley jumped to his feet, and said: "When you make a statement like that you say what is absolutely false."

The court ordered silence.

The trial goes on at 9:30 tomorrow, when the cross-examination of Orchard, who has now been on the stand three days, will be continued.

IDENTIFIES ACCOMPLICES.

ORCHARD CALMLY TELLS HOW HE KILLED MEN.

As a General Rule the Cost of a Life Was About Four Dollars. Easterly Stands Up in Court and Witness Says That is the Man.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOISE (Idaho) June 7.—A lively fight took place in the Courthouse this morning before the opening of the Haywood trial. A big, loose-jointed miner from Silver City, anxious to see the famous witness and hear the examination, sought admission to the courtroom, about an hour before opening. At the bottom of the stairway he was stopped by three sheriffs deputised as guards. The miner resented the questions put to him and undertook to break through the lines. Jack Wooden, a big deputy, tackled the stranger, who made a lively resistence. Wooden, however, finally landed his man on the lawn. He was allowed to go, but not into the courtroom.

The trial was resumed at 9 a.m. Orchard took the stand and Attorney Richardson began at once to ply him with a rapid fire of questions.

Before answering, Orchard asked permission to correct two statements made yesterday.

He said he had neglected to give the name of his sixth sister, Minnie Horsley, who married a man named Rogers and who lives in New York.

Orchard also said that he stated yesterday that he had no partners in the wood business in Burke, Idaho. He remembered today that there were two men to whom he owed money and to whom he had promised an interest in the business.

While Orchard was making the latter statement Richardson interrupted him with a question.

The attorneys for the State at once objected to counsel cutting the witness off. Orchard also protested to the court, saying he would like to have the opportunity to answer before being interrupted.

"We both can't talk at the same time," he said to Mr. Richardson. "And yesterday you asked me new questions before I could answer the old ones."

Counsel again joined in the protest and Mr. Richardson became somewhat excited, declaring that if it was the purpose of counsel to start a row between him and the witness he thought they might just as well have it out at once.

"The witness will be allowed to answer the questions without interruption," said Judge Wood sternly. The examination then proceeded.

Orchard admitted that while he was in the Idaho mining country he became quite a gambler, playing poker most of the time.

He was asked how he voted the day the unions decided to go to Wardner to blow up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine mill, and he said he did not remember. Mr. Richardson wanted the witness to name all who attended. He named five or six.

"And are those all you remember?" asked Richardson. "Not all I remember, but they are the only ones whose names I can recall," he answered coolly.

The attorney next took the witness through a description of the make-up of the train which took the rioting miners to Wardner. Orchard said it was composed of fifteen cars, some being freight and others passenger coaches.

"Are you sure?" finally asked Richardson, "that you were not at Burke or Mullen playing poker when this explosion occurred?"

"I am sure," came the reply.

LIT ONE OF THE FUSES.

Mr. Richardson wanted to know the names of all who helped unload the powder at Wardner, and all who helped place it under the mill.

Orchard gave several names, and said they were all he could remember. "Did you know Haywood, Moyer or Pettibone at this time?"

"No, sir."

"They were not with you at Wardner when the mill was blown up, were they?"

"No, sir; not that I know of."

Orchard said he did not hear of Gov. Steunenberg's action in suppressing the Coeur d'Alene troubles until some time after he left the State of Idaho.

The witness said it was his own initiative which took him to Colorado, and said that no one connected with the Western Federation of Miners had urged his going. At that time, July or August of 1902, there was no trouble in Cripple Creek. Arriving in Colorado, he went to work in the Trachite mine and renewed his membership in the Western Federation of Miners, joining a local chapter, headed by W. F. Davis, who had been in charge of the party which blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine.

Attorney Richardson asked the witness repeatedly about his gambling experiences, laying much stress on this feature of his cross-examination.

"Did you lose when you first began to play?" demanded Haywood's attorney.

"Not always."

"But you finally got so the other fellow always lost, did you not?"

Counsel for State objected to this form of questioning, but it was allowed by Judge Wood.

"I nearly always lost," quietly replied the witness.

The attorney wanted to know how much money the witness had at each place, and Orchard supplied the information to the best of his recollection, admitting that a large percentage of his wages went over the gambling table. He seldom remained more than from one to three months in any mining camp.

Up to the time he went to Colorado, in 1902, Orchard said he had never heard of Haywood, Pettibone, Moyer or Simpkins.

When the Western Federation of Miners ordered a strike at Cripple Creek, in August, 1903, Orchard said he went out with the other union men. The strike committee was composed of W. F. Davis, Sherman Parker and a man named Kenniston. Orchard said he had heard that Parker and Kennis-ton are dead.

Mr. Richardson next took the witness through the "high-grading" experience in the Vindicator mine.

"When you said the other day that you had 'high graded' in the Vindicator during the strike, you simply meant that you were an ore thief, didn't you?"

ADMITS THEFT OF ORE.

"I don't know what you call it," replied Orchard. "We took the high-class ore out secretly and sold it."

"You often made as high as $25 or $30 a day, didn't you, from high-grading?"

"Yes."

Orchard said he also "high-graded" while at work in the Vindicator before the strike.

In his direct testimony Orchard said he had reported to Davis the finding of a carload of powder in the Vindicator mine.

"Up to the time you told this to Davis, had there been any talk to you of proposed violence to the mine?" asked Mr. Richardson.

"No, sir."

"You broached the subject?"

"Yes. I'd heard the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners had blown up mines before."

The witness could not recall who had told him of this, but he believed it was Arthur Doolin.

"Your object was to suggest to Davis the firing of this powder?"

"I felt some enmity to the mine owners and had thought of it. The soldiers had been brought in there, and were running us around."

Asked how he came to know there was powder in the mine, Orchard said he had stolen some and sold it.

"Was there anything in your experiences at Wardner, Idaho, which also suggested the touching off of this powder to you?"

"It may have."

"Did the suggestion that the powder in the mine be touched off come from you or from Davis?"

"From Davis. He said he would give $200 to touch it off."

Orchard said he had communicated his thoughts about blowing up the mine to Davis.

Orchard said there were about fifty non-union men working in the Vindicator mine, and he believed the touching off of the carload of powder would have meant the death of all.

"Did you average the men up at about $4 a head?"

An objection to this question was sustained by the court.

Orchard said that Moyer came to Cripple Creek during the week and made a speech urging that no overt acts of any sort be committed, saying they would surely be charged up to the Western Federation of Miners. Haywood spoke to the same effect, cautioning the strikers against drinking and gambling as well.

"Didn't Haywood say that the mine owners would like violence, for they could then bring in troops and break up the union?" asked Richardson.

"I don't remember that."

"Didn't he say that any violence would react on the union and was not to be countenanced?"

"I believe he did."

With a man named Scholtz, Orchard said he went into the Vindicator mine to attempt to fire the powder. A "cager" discovered them and they shot at him. This incident caused an abandonment of the plan of blowing up the mine at the time.

Orchard said the mine was guarded by the militia when he and his companion went down, but there was one passage left unguarded. Two months later the matter of blowing up the mine was again taken up.

"Then who suggested it this time?" demanded Richardson.

Sherman Parker and Davis."

Orchard said the plan this time was to attach a pistol to a lift bar at the seventh level. The cage would lift this bar, discharge the pistol into a box of giant caps, which in turn would fire the powder.

He said Will Easterly helped him conduct experiments along this line.

IDENTIFIES EASTERLY IN COURT.

A man stood up in the rear of the court and was commanded by the attorney for the defense to come down the center aisle and confront the witness.

"Is that the Easterly you mean?" Richardson asked of Orchard.

The witness looked at the newcomer and quickly replied:

"That's the man."

Orchard said the experiments were conducted in an abandoned shaft house. Soldiers were stationed within 3-0 yards, but nobody said anything to the revolver shots and exploding caps.

"Whose revolver did you use?"

"My own."

Orchard said Easterly told him he couldn't be mixed up with the explosion.

"Did you ask him to participate?"

"No."

"He declined without being asked?"

"Yes; he said he was an officer of the union."

For the second attempt on the mine, Orchard said he was promised $500.

"Were you going to fire the carload of powder?"

"No, it was to be a bomb this time."

Superintendent McCormick and Mel Beck were killed a week later, and Orchard supposed their death was due to this bomb. "Billy" Ackerman helped him place the bomb.

The court took a recess at 11:30 until 1:30 p.m., with Orchard still under cross-examination.

CALMLY ADMITS BIGAMY.

In July, 1902, Orchard said he married Mrs. Ida Toney—a widow with three children.

The witness said the woman continues to live there so far as he knows.

Orchard said he went to Davis and Parker for money after the death of McCormick and Beck, and they promised some the next day. He admitted he had felt "sore" because he had been refused money for his first attempt on the mine.

Asked why he informed the Florence and Cripple Creek Railway Company of the miners' plot to wreck a train, Orchard said he was perhaps a little jealous because he had not been employed to do the job.

Taking up the admission that Orchard made in direct examination, that he had been treacherous to his comrades in Cripple Creek by tipping off a train-wrecking plot, it was developed that Orchard entered the employ of D. C. Scott, who had charge of the railway detectives.

Orchard said that with Scott he had met K. C. Sterling, a detective in the employ of the Mine Owners' Association, and that Scott had paid his expenses and accompanied him to Denver when first he met Moyer and Haywood.

He had seen the detective several times, but denied that he was reporting to the detective, and also said he had been to see D. C. Sterling, who had charge of the detective force of the Mine Owners' Association.

"Didn't you tell Scott and Sterling that you were going to the headquarters to get something against the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners?" asked Richardson.

"I told Scott I was going to try to find out something about Easterly?"

"Who paid your expenses to Denver?"

"Scott."

"Who paid your expenses in Denver?"

"I got some money from Moyer."

"Didn't you tell Scott you were going to find out something about Haywood and Moyer?"

"Yes, I told him that."

Orchard said he was not employed by Scott, and went to Denver only once—in December, 1903. He said he had tried to conceal the fact that he had been to see Scott and Sterling, but told Parker and Davis, of the union, about it when they got out of jail.

Orchard denied that he had ever given any information concerning Moyer or Haywood, and said he was lying to Scott when he promised to get information for him.

Attorney Richardson again began to interrupt the replies of the witness to some of his questions and this brought out a protest from the prosecution.

TILT BETWEEN COUNSEL.

"You mustn't lift the lid without expecting what is beneath to come out," taunted Senator Borah for the State.

"When I lift the lid I want it to come out," replied Richardson.

Then after a moment he added:

"I know that this lid has been fixed up for us, and what's beneath it is also fixed up."

Attorney Hawley was on his feet in a jiffy.

"If you make a statement like that," he shouted to Richardson, "you make a statement that is absolutely false."

"Proceed gentlemen," called out Judge Wood.

Orchard said that when he went to Denver in 1903, of money supplied by Detective Scott, it was the first time he had met Haywood and Moyer. He had not heard of Pettibone up to this time.

Haywood and Moyer told him, when he introduced himself, that they had heard of him.

Richardson read an extract from Orchard's testimony of yesterday, and the witness interrupted once to say that he had omitted something. Richardson read again and Orchard inserted one or two words, which he said the stenographer had left out.

"These words were under the lid yesterday, I suppose," the attorney hurled at the witness.

"I don't know anything about a lid," replied Orchard unperturbed.

Orchard said he had never told Detectives Scott and Sterling anything about the explosion in the Vindicator mine. Richardson questioned the witness closely as to the shaft he used in entering the Vindicator mine. He said he thought he went down No. 11 to place the bomb.

"Didn't you say the Whiting shaft yesterday?"

"No, sir."

"Has some one told you since yesterday that there is a bulkhead which prevents entering the mine by the Whiting shaft?"

"No, sir."

"Have you seen Detective McParland since yesterday?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long were you with him?"

"I saw him for five or ten minutes in Mr. Hawley's office today at noon."

Orchard said that when he returned to Cripple Creek from Denver he reported to Detectives Scott and Sterling, but did not tell them about his interview with Haywood and Moyer.

FEDERATION CHANGES POLICY.

At this interview, Moyer and Haywood had told him, Orchard said, to get busy at Cripple Creek, and do whatever he could do—that he couldn't go too far for them. Moyer gave him $20, and Haywood said he could get more whenever he wanted it.

"So you never were broke after that?" suggested Richardson.

"I was broke several times, but I got money every time I asked for it."

Orchard was next told to describe the making of the two bombs in Cripple Creek, which were to be thrown into the Vindicator mine.

The witness said he stole the powder from a man named Charley Perkins. He and Owney Barnes made the bombs in Barnes's cabin.

Then for a second time during the day Orchard was confronted with a prospective witness for the defense. Barnes was in the audience, and was told to stand up. Orchard looked at him and once more, without hesitaion, said:

"That's the man with whom I made the bombs."

Barnes, a short heavy-set man, with a large mustache, grinned and sat down.

Orchard said no one told him to make these particular bombs—he did it in accordance with the understanding at the interview with Moyer, Haywood and Easterly in Denver, to go ahead and do what he could. He said he got $150 from Moyer in Cripple Creek.

Orchard said that in December, 1903, he was told by Haywood and Moyer to turn things loose—that he couldn't go to far to suit them. During the first days of January, he said, he was told to keep quiet until some of the federation men, under arrest in Cripple Creek, had been tried.

"So the policy of the federation changed completely inside of two weeks?" asked Mr. Richardson.

"It was more than two weeks," replied the witness.

Richardson asked Orchard if the railroad detective, Scott, had not told him that the company had arranged to stop a train at a certain curve, draw some spikes and charge the Western Federation of Miners with it?"

Orchard denied that he had ever heard such a story. At the subsequent trial of alleged trainwreckers, Orchard said he heard one of the witnesses testify that he was a detective of the Thiele Agency and at the same time a member of the Miners' Union. This man was involved in the derailing.

"Did Scott ever give you a passport through the military lines?"

"No, sir," said Orchard, "he told me that if I ever got into trouble with the militia to let him know."

"Did you ever have any trouble with the soldiers?"

"No, sir."

"Did the pickets or sentries ever stop you?"

"No, sir."

"You went where you pleased?"

"Yes, sir."

Orchard told of Moyer sending to Cripple Creek for him soon after this. Moyer wanted him to go along to Ouray and Silverton, where the Telluride miners, who had been deported by General Bulkley Wells of the Colorado militia, were gathered.

Moyer told him that the mine owners had threatened to beat him up if they caught him outside of Denver.

Orchard was to go along to help defend Moyer in case of attack. Two sawed-off shotguns were placed in their grips, Moyer saying the guns would be good protection in the event of an attack. Orchard said he also carried two pistols. He said Moyer had the shotguns all ready when he reached Denver.

Nothing happened on the trip to Ouray. Once there, Moyer was received by the miners. Moyer eventually was arrected for disfiguring the American flag, having drawn pictures of the flag and printed something on the stripes.

Orchard said he took the two sawed-off shotguns back to the miners' headquarters in Denver, where they remained until he got them some time later, using one to kill Lyte Gregory with.

Richardson asked the witness if he did not know, as a matter of fact, Moyer still has possession of his gun, and that it had never been fired. Orchard said this might be so—he said there were more than two of the guns at headquarters.

It was evident that Orchard's cross-examination was not one-half completed when court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 9:30.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

The rain today was accompanied by a cold northeast wind, which fixed things all right for the pessimists. Chicago's maximum temperature was 52 deg.; minimum, 50 deg.

ILL LUCK ENRICHED HIM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BELLINGHAM, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On the mere difference between the words "sailor" and "tailor," E. O. Lindblom, who came to Bellingham today to be married, owes the fact that he is a millionaire. He is one of the founders of Nome, Alaska, and principal owner in the Pioneer Mining Company, which paid dividends of three-quarters of a million dollars last year. In 1897 Lindblom was loafing about the docks in San Francisco, where whaling ships were preparing for the summer in the Arctic, one of the men asked if he was a sailor, and Lindblom, who is a tailor, misunderstood him, and went aboard the ship. He discovered his mistake after the vessel was at sea, but it was too late.

After enduring privations in the north by reason of which the crew almost mutinied, three sailors, including Lindblom, were lost from the ship. They harpooned a whale, which took them far from the vessel. They drifted ashore at Nome, after days of suffering, and there discovered the gold that has made Nome famous. Lindblom was married here today to Hanna Sparman of Oakland, Cal.

HAU'S WIFE DROWNS SELF.

BERLIN, June 7.—A dispatch from Karlsruhe, to the Lokal Anzeiger, says that Mrs. Karl Hau committed suicide by drowning yesterday in a lake near Pfaffikon, Canton of Zurich, Switzerland. Mrs. Hau was the wife of Carl Hau, professor of Roman law in George Washington University, who is charged with the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Molitor, at Baden Baden, in November last.

At a bullfight Thursday, in Madrid, one of the toreros, a wealthy Mexican, Señor Vicente Siguero, proved himself very intrepid and was frantically applauded by the public. He gave his share of the gate money to the poor.

WANT RELIEF FROM STRIKERS.

The Von Platen and Dick Company at No. 843 West Kinzie street, has asked the Circuit Court to restrain the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Amalgamated Woodworkers of America from ruining its business. The firm prays for relief, because of the differences existing between the two rival labor organizations. It says that it employs union men from the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union, and that because of this the carpenters have directed strikes and boycotts against it and the output of its mill.

CYCLONE IN DUQUOIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DUQUOIN (Ill.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] This city experienced the worst storm late tonight that has visited Perry county in years. The disturbance assumed the appearance and proportions of a cyclone and wrought damage to residence property and crops which will run into the thousands of dollars. The cyclone swept over the residence portion of the city, uprooting trees, lifting roofs from residences, and in many cases carrying houses off their foundations. A number of injuries are reported late tonight though none thought fatally hurt. Four box cars in the railroad yards were swept completely off the track. The downpour of rain accompanying the cyclone has demoralized railroad traffic east of here. No effort will be made to clear away the wreckage and débris until daylight.

SCORES IDEAS OF PRESIDENT.

Huntington Agent Says Talk Ties Up Money.

Orders Executive's Views Hurt Road's Financing.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] W. G. Kerckhoff, who represents the immense Huntington electric interests through the State and is personally heavily interested in several roads, is vigorous in denouncing the President for his railroad talk. He declares that the money stringency occasioned by this attitude of the President is hindering the building of the Yosemite road. The contracts have all been completed and Mr. Newman expects to have the bonds and estimates ready in a very few days, but the financing, Mr. Newman declares, is most difficult on account of the existing conditions of unrest stirred up by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Kerckhoff expresses great confidence in the State and its opportunities and believes that the development of property will go ahead very rapidly here if capital is not for the money question. He says the foundries are away behind in getting orders and it is difficult to get materials.

Concerning the Huntington interests Mr. Kerckhoff says that half a million dollars in bonds about Fresno. No new lines are at present being contemplated in the valley except those already announced.

there is more yard space and better facilities. This means that "hospital cars" will no longer be segregated and switched at Truckee and as these trains move very slowly, the new plan of making them up at Sparks will take much irregular freight traffic off the mountain route between here and Truckee. Those who attended the conference were W. R. Scott, assistant to Superintendent Krutschnitt; W. S. Palmer, general superintendent of the northern district; T. R. Jones of the Sacramento division; Engineer F. C. Miller and other officials from Sacramento.

POWDER MILL EXPLODES.

TWO ARE INSTANTLY KILLED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SANTA CRUZ, June 7.—Another fatal explosion occurred at the E. I. Dupont powder mill this evening, when the mill went up in smoke. Two men, Thomas Kearney and William Manseau, both employés of the powder company, were instantly killed. The direct cause of the explosion cannot be learned, but it is supposed to be through the carelessness of the men. Kearney and Manseau were the only men in the mill when the explosion occurred.

The force of the explosion was terrific. All the buildings in the city were badly shaken, and in many homes dishes were thrown from the shelves and were broken. Kearney is a married man, and, besides his wife, he leaves six children. Manseau is a single man.

INDORSE TORRENS ACT.

FEDERATION FIGHTS HARD.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN JOSE, June 7.—After a spirited all-day session and later in the face of considerable opposition, the California Realty Federation adopted a resolution indorsing the Torrens Land Act, which provides for a certificate of title as easily transferable as a stock certificate or personal property and doing away with abstracts. The resolution was introduced by J. D. Howell of San Francisco, and supported by United States Attorney Robert Devlin of San Francisco, L. C. Gates of Los Angeles leading the opposition.

In the afternoon the convention adjourned early to permit the members enjoying a pleasure trip over the valley. This evening members of the federation gathered at a banquet in the St. James Hotel at which many toasts on subjects affecting the realty business were given. The election of officers will take place tomorrow.

Four Hurt in Wreck.

SANTA CRUZ, June 7.—Four Greeks in the employ of the Southern Pacific were seriously injured in a wreck on the line of the company this evening. Two of them will probably die as a result of their injuries. The men were returning from Gondola siding, where they had taken a load of bitumen. All four were sitting on the top of the flat car, which was loaded with the bitumen, when the car left the tracks. The cause of the wreck was a defective truck on the flat car. As the train was crossing Bay street, near California, the trucks broke and the car tipped over, entombing the men under the bitumen.

COURT FOILS WOMAN'S PLOT.

Millionaire She Kidnaped Declared Insane.

Midnight Marriage by Force Is Annulled.

Judge Flays Lawyer, Officer, Clerk and "Wife."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The contest over the estates of George Rhodius, a young millionaire of 20, who recently married Elma Dare, keeper of a house of ill fame, resulted in a decision in the Boone Circuit Court this morning in which Rhodius is adjudged to be a person without mind and without capacity to control himself or conduct any kind of business.

The court also found that he did not marry the Dare woman, but "was married to her through the machinations of an Indianapolis lawyer, an Indianapolis officer, the woman herself and the night clerk of the Circle Park Hotel."

The decision today ends a famous case in Indiana. George Rhodius, a millionaire, traveled with the Dare woman in Europe as his wife and when they returned she claimed a common law marriage. Through the intervention of friends who did not believe Rhodius was responsible, she was induced to forego the claim in consideration of $5000, which was paid to her and an agreement duly signed.

One night, three months ago, she appeared at the Circle Park Hotel, went to Rhodius's room, assisted him to dress, and then hurried him to a train for Louisville, where she was married to him.

Friends then instituted proceedings to declare Rhodius insane and the suit resulted in the decision of the court today, fully sustaining their contentions. The court appointed a guardian for Rhodius's person and also for his property.

MISSIONARIES ESCAPE DEATH.

Mob of Hindus Set Upon Home and Lives Are Saved by College Students.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Attacked by a mob of Hindoos at Ruwalpindi, India, Lorimer Porter, an American missionary and his wife and child, had a narrow escape from death recently and were saved only through the aid of students from a missionary college.

After a shower of stones and other missiles had shattered all the windows in the Porter home the mob set fire to the house and it was destroyed with its contents, which included wedding gifts of almost priceless value. The disturbance grew so great that a squadron of British cavalry was sent to patrol the district. In a letter just received by her father, William L. Bassett of this city, Mrs. Porter gives a graphic version of the onslaught, which, he says, was due to an unpopular act by the British Governor with whom they were thought to be in sympathy.

WILEY CONDEMNS PIE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. Wiley, chief government chemist, steelly of eye, hard of heart, unyielding of purpose, has been looking into pie, and circumstantial report declares that his verdict is against it.

If pie is to be examined from the fellowship of prandial properties, it will be one more alarming testimonial to the menace of commercializing tendencies.

Some weeks ago it was announced that Dr. Wiley, as chief executioner under the pure food law, was investigating benzoate of soda. It transpires that, instead of a long and laborious treatise, Dr. Wiley's conclusions about benzoate of soda have been summarized into a brief and succinct statement of two or three paragraphs, and that it is dangerous when used with food.

FALLS INTO VAT; BOILS.

Worker Meets Terrible Death While Mixing Asphalt—Body Is Cooked in Coat of Tar.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BROOKLYN (N. Y.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Boland, 24 years old, was boiled to death early this morning at the plant of the Barber Asphalt Company, on Stagg street and Varick avenue, while he was mixing asphalt.

With the help of sticks and ropes his body was pulled out, and later it was taken to the Stagg-street police station.

It will be impossible to prepare Boland's body for burial, for the suit of working clothes, which is completely coated with tar, is made a part and parcel of the boiled flesh.

The body has the grewsome appearance of an ebony statue and the hands are tightly clenched and show signs of a terrific dying struggle.

SLEEPS ON MOTHER'S GRAVE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charlie Hopkins, 11 years old, wanted to be near his dead mother, so every night he went to the cemetery and slept on her grave. Today he is at the Harrison-street police station, after being taken from the cemetery by a policeman. There is no charge against the boy.

Charlie's mother died last February. The discovery that the boy was making a habit of using a mound in Park Ridge Cemetery for his couch was made by F. H. Sears, who notified the police. This morning Detective Sacklin went to the cemetery and found the little fellow. Although wet to the skin, the boy wept when he was taken away.

TO OUST STANDARD.

ST. PAUL, June 7.—The State of Minnesota, through Atty-Gen. Young, is about to bring suit to oust the Standard Oil Company from the State. The suit will be based on an alleged violation of the so-called Hinton law, which provides that price of oil must be uniform throughout the State, allowance being made for shipping charges.

HOW RUEF GRAFTED.

"Yes," said Loupy. "Borrowed money."

"Weren't you in fear that you would lose your license if you didn't pay this money to Ruef?" demanded Heney.

The defense objected vigorously on the ground that the question was leading. "Further," argued Mr. Campbell, "the question does not go to the issue. The indictment charges this defendant with extortion under threat. The witness has testified there was no threat. Now what might have been in the witness's mind is surely not relevant."

"Oh, yes, it is though," cried Heney. "The highway robber may smile politely, and ask the passengers to kindly hand their money out of the stage—but the threat is there just the same. The New York Supreme Court has held that a threat need not be spoken; it may be conveyed by even the wink of an eye."

Loupy announced: "We knew Mr. Ruef was a lawyer and the only man who could help us."

"If Ruef had not been a lawyer, whom would you have hired?"

"Some other lawyer, I suppose."

"Well, did you pay this money to Ruef because he was a lawyer or because he was the political boss?" Heney demanded.

"Because he was the boss," replied Loupy.

"That's all," said Heney.

"But Ruef never asked to be employed, and never made a threat?" said Campbell.

"No," replied Loupy.

"That's all," said Campbell.

N. M. Adler, proprietor of the Bay State restaurant, was called by the prosecution. He said the only thing he knew about the relations between Ruef, the Mayor and the Police Commission was that Ruef was boss.

The witness's own attorney was, and for years had been Marcus Rosenthel. To him Adler went for advice and Rosenthel applied to the Board of Police Commissioners to ask for a renewal of the license of the Bay State, but they would not hear him.

"The only man who can help you," said Rosenthel, "is Ruef."

"Did Rosenthel tell you," asked Heney, "that what you needed was a doctor, not a lawyer?"

Mr. Campbell denounced this question as a flagrant attempt to lead the witness. Heney admitted it was leading but claimed he was merely trying to refresh the witness's memory.

"I don't recollect that he said that," replied Adler.

The witness said that because Ruef had an influence with the police board, the restaurateurs looked upon him as the one man who could help them. They felt that if they did not employ him their licenses would be taken away.

The defense made determined objection to the question by the prosecution:

"Were you not in debt at this time?"

WAS "FINANCIALLY SICK."

Heney, supporting the question, contended that Adler was "financially sick" at the time, and, fearing the ruination of his business by removal of his license was too weak to resist the extortion.

Judge Dunne sustained the objection.

"Why did you pay this money?" asked Heney.

"For protection," was the almost inaudible reply.

"Please repeat that answer to the jury," Heney requested.

Adler turned to the jury box. "For protection," he said distinctly.

Adler said he never got a receipt for the $1115 given by him to Malfanti to pay Ruef.

"No, sir."

Adler said that immediately after the payment of the money, Police Commissioner Hutton was removed by the Mayor, and his license was then granted. A year later, in January, 1906, Malfanti came around to collect the second installment of the $10,000 and the witness refused to pay it.

"Why?" demanded Heney. And over the objection of the defense Adler answered:

"Because then I was out of debt and wasn't afraid any more."

"Take the witness," said Heney.

"You refused to make the second payment. But your license wasn't revoked, was it? You got it renewed, just the same as the one before, when you paid?" asked Campbell.

"That is true," confessed Adler.

"And Mr. Ruef never uttered to you a threat that you would lose your license unless you employed him?"

"He never did."

Attorney Marcus Rosenthel was called by the State. He testified that his client, Adler, sought his advice relative to the holding up of the Bay State's license in the fall of 1904. He appeared with Adler before the Police Commission, but the commissioners would not permit him to speak.

"After this meeting," he said, "I told Mr. Adler it was useless for him to appeal to the courts because there could be no review of any act of the Police Commission under our law which I considered more Russian than American. I told him that in view of the way things had been going on for the last several years there was only one man who could help him in his extreme need—his business was threatened with ruination—and that man was Mr. Ruef. I told him I would withdraw from the case, because I didn't want him to waste his money on a fee to me when I couldn't do him any good."

LOUPY "GRAFT AGENT."

The prosecution called Michel De Bret, before the fire a partner of Pierre Briet in the ownership of Marchand's restaurant. He said that in the beginning of 1905 Jean Loupy broached to him the employment of Ruef to look out for their license interests. Then the special meeting of the police board was held, and from it Loupy returned, saying the commissioners would not listen to his attorney, Rosenthel.

The witness's partner, Priet, then decided to see Ruef. He did so, and returned with the report that Ruef would take their cases for $10,000, $5000 down and $5000 in one year, Priet saying that Ruef would not accept checks or gold, but only currency, and would give no receipt.

In a tilt between Mr. Heney and Mr. Campbell at this point over the admission of conversations between De Bret and Priet, the prosecution claimed that Priet merely became the agent for the collection of the money. This was scouted by the defense, who claimed Priet was the agent of the restaurateurs and of them only.

Priet, whose name appears as a signature to the contract alleged between him and Ruef, is dead. Over this disputed point counsel argued at length, the prosecution claiming the right to establish the Ruef agency of Priet by the testimony of De Bret. The court inclined to stand with the defense against this contention.

Adjournment was taken at 12 o'clock until 2 to enable the looking up and submission of authorities by both sides.

Throughout the two-hour noon recess scores of persons to whom the bailiffs refused permission to remain in the auditorium stood on the synagogue steps or lounged on the sidewalk in Bush street waiting for court to reconvene. By 1 o'clock the crowd was hammering on the big doors and good-naturedly demanding admittance. When the doors were finally opened at 1:30 the rush of feet into the audience room fairly rattled the windows. Several persons lost their footing on the stairs and were in danger of being hurt.

Interest in the trial is intensified daily by anticipation of Ruef's appearance as the star witness for the State.

At the commencement of the afternoon session, Assistant District Attorney Langdon, Rudolph Spreckels and Joseph Dwyer followed each other down the long aisle to the counsel table, each bearing an armful of law books which they deposited on the table.

Mr. Heney argued at length the right of the prosecution to show by Michel De Bret what the dead Priet had told him Ruef had told Priet—in order to establish before the jury the agency of Priet in representation of Ruef, the point being that the acts of the agent are the acts of the principal, and if Ruef was guilty Schmitz must be guilty.

Mr. Campbell, replying, said Mr. Heney was arguing in the air. He contended that Priet himself was the only person whose testimony would be competent as to what he told De Bret that Ruef had told him.

In support of his contention, he coincidentally urged that the prosecution had the right to establish the fact of agency by circumstantial testimony, Mr. Heney quoted several authorities. His argument consumed nearly one hour and the jury was present.

Replying, Mr. Campbell disclaimed any denial of that doctrine of agency which holds the principal responsible for the representations of the agent, but he insisted that the fact of the agency, that is, the agency of Priet in behalf of Ruef, must be established first, and he pointed out that Priet was the agent of himself and his associate restaurateurs, but not of Ruef.

The court finally ruled against the defense, and Michel de Bret was recalled.

RUEF DEMANDS GREENBACKS.

Mr. Heney asked him what Priet said to him when he returned from his visit to Ruef. De Bret replied:

"He told me the verbal agreement with Ruef was that Mr. Ruef was to have $10,000, half down, half in a year, all in greenbacks—no gold—and he would give no receipt."

After that De Bret and Priet, as proprietors of Marchand's, put up $1175 which they gave to Malfanti to give to Ruef. A year later, after the death of Priet, in August, 1905, the witness paid Malfanti an additional $1000 for Ruef. These sums were paid because they "saw after consulting no way to get out of it, Mr. Ruef being the political boss." The permanent loss of their licenses would have killed their business. They would not have paid this money had they not believed it was the only way to save themselves from business ruin.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Campbell, De Bret said he understood the local cooks and waiters' unions was responsible for the opposition before the Police Board that resulted in the holding up of Tortoni's license. De Bret had never talked with Ruef or with the Mayor about the French licenses. He merely, along with his associates, agreed to the payment of the $10,000 to Ruef because Ruef was the political boss. De Bret was of the opinion that Police Commissioner Hutton "had a kind of a spite against the French restaurants."

No threat ever had been made to the witness or to Priet, his partner, so far as he knew.

The only trouble Marchand's ever had was once after the payment to Ruef, when its license was held up for one week.

"How did you feel when you had paid this money?" asked Heney.

The court allowed the question:

"Just like a man that has been held up by a footpad and relieved of his money," replied De Bret.

"Take the witness," said Heney, smiling broadly.

"You were told to say that, Mr. De Bret, weren't you?" demanded Campbell.

The witness hesitated, then said:

"Yes, sir."

"Who told you to say it? It was Mr. William J. Burns, wasn't it?"

"No, sir," protested De Bret, "no one told me to say that before this jury," and so stood.

The prosecution called Joseph Malfanti, proprietor of Delmonico's before the fire. He had called on the Mayor after the revocation of Tortoni's license, and asked him what the trouble was. The Mayor was very friendly and expressed surprise that any difficulty should have arisen.

"I have nothing against these places," he said; "I enjoy going to them myself. But I'll call a special meeting of the commission and we'll see what can be done. I'll be there myself."

Malfanti attended this meeting, but Schmitz did not show up.

PUT HAND IN POCKETS.

After the meeting, the restaurateurs decided that the outlook was very blue, and at the proposal of Loupy they decided to see if Ruef could do something for them. The next day they held a meeting at Adler's. When Loupy reported having seen Ruef and said that Ruef demanded $7000 a year for two years to take charge of the cases, "we instructed Loupy," said the witness, "to see all the other French restaurants, but the only ones who came in were myself, Marchand's, the New Poodle Dog, the Pup and the Bay State. We decided to stop talking and put our hands in our pockets.

"Pierre Priet was not willing to trust Loupy, so went himself and saw Ruef. He reported to us the next day. He said Mr. Ruef would take $5000 a year for two years; if we paid we were to get our licenses. We agreed to pay. Mr. Loupy said he was too poor to pay his full share, so we allowed him to pay $300.

"I had about $400,000 invested in Delmonico's. I did not pay my money to Ruef for fun.

"He was the man that controlled the administration. His relations with the Mayor were such that he could do anything he wanted. I paid because I was afraid I would lose my license. That would have ruined my business. I would have to close up.

"We paid the money, and we got Mr. Ruef's word that it would be all right. I asked Pierre Priet if he got a receipt. 'No,' he said, 'you ought to be glad to get Mr. Ruef's word of honor.'"

"Then did Ruef appear before the police board and represent you and others, and were your licenses regranted?"

Malfanti answered affirmatively.

But he said that in the meantime the Mayor came to his restaurant for dinner.

"I went upstairs to him at once when a waiter told me he was in the house. I said: 'Mr. Mayor, how is it our licenses are still held up? Our business suffers very much.' The Mayor said: 'I don't understand why it is. I told him to fix it right away, and I don't see why he hasn't done it. But I'll see him today and see that it is all right.'"

"By 'him,' did he refer to Ruef?" asked Heney. The witness said he had not mentioned Ruef's name. This was after the money had been paid to Ruef.

LABOR.

BLUFF CALLED, UNION WILTS.

Demands Rejected, but Miners Call Off Strike.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The conference of the executive boards of the Indiana Operators' Association and the United Mine Workers of America reached an agreement early this morning, and the order calling out 5000 men this afternoon was rescinded and the miners notified to remain at work.

One after another of the demands of the miners was rejected by the operators at the conference till there was nothing of importance left to contend over. The main hitch was over the discharge of the union Mine Committee and the refusal of the operators to reinstate its members. But the miners finally conceded that the committee was in the wrong, and agreed to issue an order to admit all miners to work in the mines, and then have them deposit their union cards afterward.

When this concession was made the operators offered to pay half of the wages of the discharged men if their organization would pay the other half, and to reinstate them in the mines. In the Fontanet case, where the men were out of work because of water in the mines, the miners receded from their demand for wages during the period of idleness and this left nothing to wrangle over. Of the eleven disputed points the operators conceded that they were wrong in one, and the miners receded from ten.

Older Members Hesitate to Further Antagonize Board of Education, Fearing Loss of Pensions and Say They Will Resign from Organization Unless Laborites Are Dropped.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is a strong undercurrent in the Chicago Teachers' Federation in favor of its withdrawal from the American Federation of Labor.

It was reported today that a resolution directing that a segregation be effected at once would be presented to the next meeting of the federation, which will be held next Saturday.

Leaders of the Federation are said to be opposed to the withdrawal and a clash is certain unless the seceders are frightened into abandoning their intentions.

The movement for secession started with the older teachers of the federation. Many of them are within one, two or three years of being eligible to a pension. These old-timers are afraid if the Board of Education gets into the fight with the federation it might resort to the means within its power—that of jeopardizing pensions.

If these teachers are unable to get the Teachers' Federation to withdraw from the labor unions, it is said they will resign from the organization.

JOEY ON NEWFOUNDLAND.

Believes Its Interests in Future Will Be Best Subserved by a Union With Canada.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A Canadian Associated Press cable from London, says:

"Sir Robert Bond was entertained at dinner by the West India Club. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain wrote, apologizing for his non-attendance. He said he had watched with interest the progress which has been made by Newfoundland under Sir Robert Bond's administration, and hoped that Britain's oldest colony was fairly launched on a career of prosperity. He trusted recent differences about the fisheries would be satisfactorily arranged, and the settlement might be a prelude to that union with the Great Dominion to the West, which he believed to be ultimately most conducive to the permanent interests of Newfoundland.

"Responding to the toast of his health, Sir Robert Bond said that while he was not prepared to challenge the correctness of Mr. Chamberlain's statement that the permanent welfare of Newfoundland depended upon the blending of that colony's interests with those of Canada, he would be constrained to say that such a union at present was not desirable, nor within the region of practical politics.

"Alluding to the alleged dramatic incident at the colonial conference, Premier Bond emphatically repudiated it, and denied that he ever said the report was substantially correct. During the whole conference there had not been one heated expression or dramatic incident.

"As to the fisheries question, he had told the British Governor that a repetition of the action of last year, would not only be regarded as humiliating to the colony, but would lead to the total disregard of all constituted authority with it."

SHIP BEEF TO ALASKA.

Cattle Will Be Driven Four Hundred Miles to Finally Tickle Palates of Klondike Miners.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OMAHA (Neb.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A number of carloads of fine beef cattle were shipped from Ravena, Neb., today, destined for Fairbanks, Alaska, where they will be used to feed hungry miners.

W. L. Powell of Seattle made the shipment, which is the first of its kind made to Alaska. The cattle will be loaded into a ship at Seattle and transferred thence to Valdez, Alaska, where they will be unloaded and driven overland, 400 miles, to Fairbanks, between two and three months being consumed in the journey.

The long overland journey and the exposure and hardships it will involve make the shipment an extremely hazardous one. It is made as an experiment, and, if it proves successful, Mr. Powell will continue shipments, which will be highly profitable, beef retailing in Fairbanks from 60 cents to $1 a pound.

There are 4000 people in Fairbanks, and 7000 or 8000 in its immediate vicinity. The market for beef is therefore an excellent one, and butchering there is as profitable as mining.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION.

Syracuse Brewer Seeks to Avoid Return to New York for Perjury and Arson.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OTTAWA, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A New York State millionaire is putting up a great fight against extradition. A special from Welland, Ontario, tonight, says there are further indications of the strenuous fight which millionaire Herman Bartles of Syracuse, N. Y., will put up to save himself going back to New York State to serve a sentence for attempting to burn one of his breweries at Auburn, N. Y., at the risk of great loss of human life.

H. H. Dewart, K.C., of Toronto, counsel for the prisoner, held that the perjury charge, upon which the New York State authorities sought to extradite Bartles, was too flimsy for a British court to consider. In his trial he had given evidence in his own behalf, and had been asked if he knew Martin Wittig, the firebug, who, it is said, was engaged to fire the building. Bartles said he didn't know Wittig, and that constituted the commission of perjury charged against him. It is stated by State officials from Auburn that Bartles has practically spent his fortune, and has comparatively little left. The judge promised to give his decision on Saturday.

ELOPES AT EIGHTY-EIGHT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CARBONATE CITY (S. D.) June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Amos Hubbard, an 88-year-old Black Hills man, has eloped from his home, south of Bear Gulch, with Miss Jeannette Springer, his own 19-year-old stepdaughter, and his wife and her mother is trying to find the runaway couple. They disappeared from their home in the night.

Miss Springer left a note telling her mother that she and Hubbard were in love with each other and had decided to run away together, believing that it was better for all concerned that they should do this than to stay at home, feeling as they did toward each other.

She did not say where they were going, and the deserted and distracted wife and mother does not know where to look for them. She has set out in search of them, but has little hope of overtaking the elopers.

Hubbard used to live in Canada and she suspects he will take his sweetheart there. Hubbard is a singularly well-preserved man for his age, not looking to be more than 65 years old. He had been infatuated with his stepdaughter for more than a year and his wife was very jealous of the attentions he paid the young lady, who is good looking and attractive.

HOW AMERICAN JACKIES FIRE.

Swinburne's Pacific Squadron Wins All Trophies.

Cruiser Boston Makes Average of Nearly Eighty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports published today of the standing of fleets, squadrons, divisions and vessels in the annual record target practice of 1907 show that the Atlantic fleet made 59.346 per cent., and the Pacific fleet 59.241 per cent. In squadrons the highest percentage was made by the second squadron of the Pacific fleet, which includes the Boston, the Charleston, the Yorktown, the Princeton, the Preble and the Paul Jones.

The highest percentage in any one division was made by the fourth division of the Pacific fleet, the Boston and the Princeton being the vessels that fired. The fourth torpedo flotilla made the best average in that class, the Preble and the Paul Jones being the vessels that fired. The Illinois made the highest percentage for battleships, making 75.782. The Boston was the only winner among the cruisers, with an average of 9.997. The Princeton won the gunboat trophy, with an average of 73.295.

Among the vessels competing for the torpedo trophy, where guns and torpedoes both counted, the Preble made the best percentage, 78.822. Where guns alone were used the Hull made the best score, with 76.544 per cent., and the torpedoes only counted the Bailey led with 82.962 per cent.

The second squadron of the Pacific fleet, commanded by Rear-Admiral Swinburne, won all it could win—the battleship gunboat, and torpedo trophies there being no battleships in the squadron.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Exclusive Dispatch.] Preliminary suggestions as to whether or not chambers of commerce in France and England will be given the same rights as the Chamber of Commerce in Germany were considered today by Secretary Root, who declared that they would be granted the same rights, provided the conditions of their organization were the same. The announcement that the American Protective Tariff League will test the legality of the German tariff agreement attracted much interest but was not unexpected.

The function which the German Chamber of Commerce exercises over fixing the export price of products shipped to the United States is based on the fact that that body is legally a government institution, and makes its reports to the government and is subject to government orders. This is not the case in the United States, nor is it the case in France.

HOW AMERICAN JACKIES FIRE.

Swinburne's Pacific Squadron Wins All Trophies.

Cruiser Boston Makes Average of Nearly Eighty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports published today of the standing of fleets, squadrons, divisions and vessels in the annual record target practice of 1907 show that the Atlantic fleet made 59.346 per cent., and the Pacific fleet 59.241 per cent. In squadrons the highest percentage was made by the second squadron of the Atlantic fleet, which includes the Boston, the Charleston, the Yorktown, the Princeton, the Prèble and the Paul Jones.

The highest percentage in any one division was made by the fourth division of the Pacific fleet, the Boston and the Princeton being the vessels that fired. The fourth torpedo flotilla made the best average in that class, the Paul Jones being the vessel that fired. The Illinois made the best percentage for battleships, 75.782. The Boston was the winner among the cruisers, with an average of 3.997. The Princeton won the gunboat trophy, with an average of 72.395.

Among the vessels competing for the Hilton trophy, where guns and torpedoes counted, the Prèble made the best percentage, 78.822. Where guns alone counted the Hull made the best score, with 76.544 per cent., and where torpedoes only counted the Bailey led with 92.962 per cent.

The second squadron of the Pacific fleet, commanded by Rear-Admiral Swinburne, won all it could win—the Hilton gunboat, and torpedo trophies there being no battleships in the squadron.

CITIES SEEK G. O. P. MEET.

Predicts Warm Contest and Vast Attendance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Five cities have already made formal application to the Republican National Committee for the national Republican convention. They are Seattle, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago.

Harry S. New, chairman of the National Committee, says that Philadelphia and St. Paul are also "nibbling" and may yet decide to enter the race for the big event. Denver's invitation was sent through Senator Guggenheim of Colorado; Seattle and Kansas City applied through their commercial bodies, and St. Louis made application through the city officials. Chicago is represented in the race by the city officials, the commercial bodies and the Hamilton Club, and a delegation of Chicago "rooters" will come to this city in a few days to talk over the matter with Chairman New.

"The city that gets the next convention," said Mr. New, "must have a big hall—big enough to take care of it. No attention will be paid to the interest of any candidate or of anything else except the convention itself. The committee members themselves will absolutely control the matter, and the selection will be made by them to suit their own wishes.

"I look for the next national convention to be a record-breaker, and it will draw an immense crowd. The last two conventions were mere ratification meeting, the one that nominated McKinley at Philadelphia and the other that nominated Roosevelt at Chicago, but the next one will be a fight from start to finish, and the attendance will be much larger than at either of the others. Therefore the question of adequate hall space will be most important."

CORNELIUS INVOLVED IN DYNAMITE PLOT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A peculiar incident which seems to involve Cornelius in the "dynamite plot," was called to the attention of the police today.

Cornelius held an interview with a chauffeur by the name of Handy at the latter's house in the forenoon. He was accompanied by a striking carman by the name of Rohan. In the adjoining room were Captain of Detectives Colby and Sergt. O'Day. At the psychological moment Colby broke open the door and entered the room, to the surprise of at least one member of the conference. How Colby happened to be in hiding in the adjoining room, and whether it was Handy or Cornelius who was taken by surprise by his sudden entry, is a matter of dispute between the parties.

The United Railroads claim that the conference was arranged by their secret-service agents, and that Colby overheard Cornelius make a statement which would go far to incriminate him in a dynamiting plot against the company. Cornelius, on the other hand, says that he arranged the interview, and that the information secured has been placed in the hands of the grand jury. Dist.-Atty. Langdon went far to substantiate Cornelius when he said last night that if Cornelius had been entrapped he would have been arrested, and Colby denied indignantly that he was working with the detectives of the company.

DETECTIVE IN OPIUM TRADE.

OFFICIAL JEALOUSY CAUSES HIS CAPTURE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The trial of James Bunce, accused of smuggling from Vancouver, B. C., 200 pounds of opium, today developed the fact that he is a government detective, whose arrest was caused by jealousy.

Bunce was placed on the stand, and told of his having proposed a plan with the government officials of this city to capture the smugglers in Vancouver, and that the plan was adopted.

Bunce then told of his meeting with boss smuggler Stewart in Vancouver, and learning from him where the smugglers carried on their business and where they bought their opium.

He stated that when he was caught with the opium in his possession, he showed the officials here a letter from Customs Collector Harper, stating that whatever he did was in behalf of the government, and to let him have headway in everything.

It is rumored that the arrest of Bunce by the officials was through jealousy, as they were fearful that Bunce might capture some of the boss smugglers, a thing they have never been able to do.

They knew the report of the capture would go to Washington, and that they would be placed on the carpet for letting an outsider step in.

IRON WORKERS ALL GIVE IN.

BEG EMPEROR FOR SUFFRAGE.

BUDAPEST, June 7.—Emperor Franz Josef arrived here this afternoon for the celebration of the jubilee of his coronation as King of Hungary, June 8, 1867. The Socialists seized the occasion to make a demonstration in favor of the extension of universal suffrage to Hungary. The great crowds which assembled in the streets during His Majesty's journey from the railroad station to the palace greeted him with shouts of "give us universal suffrage." The police pushed back the people with drawn swords. Several persons were injured.

DELMAS GIVES HENEY TROUBLE.

ARGUES THAT INDICTMENT OF GLASS IS INVALID.

Finally He Compels State Attorney to Admit That All Testimony Is Included in Transcript of Jury Notes—Such Is Not so in Case Against Calhoun.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Delphin M. Delmas, the attorney who defended Thaw, swung a blow into the Heney prosecution tonight in Judge Lawlor's court, calling into question the validity of the indictments. As attorney for Louis Glass he raised the question as to whether the transcripts of the testimony as given to Glass contained all the testimony introduced against him at the grand jury hearing. He claimed if it did not the whole proceeding is invalid.

He said passionately: "The question, I say, is one the importance of which cannot be overestimated. If, however, it shall be contended that it is in the power of the grand jury so to do, then the liberty and good name of every man in this community are at the despotic mercy of a body of men who may be prompted by prejudice, by malice, by public clamor or by any unworthy and illegal motive to bring him into disgrace."

Mr. Heney's associate, Mr. Cobb, finally stipulated that the transcript contained all the testimony. In certain other cases, however, like Calhoun's case, part of the testimony has been withheld.

Ruef's story was not taken down in any case save the gas investigation.

JEFFRIES TO HOLD FIGHTS.

Panorama Rink Selected as Site for Pavilion.

Champion Asks Councilmen to Grant Concession.

Rival to McCarey's Club May Revolutionize Game.

Jim Jeffries has decided to go into the fighting game—as a promoter. He proposes to build a great pavilion out of the Panorama skating rink and stables, and to conduct matches between tthe best boxers—if the Mayor and City Council will let him.

Jeffries is now in the position of a suppliant and asked the Mayor and Council to pass an ordinance extending the zone wherein boxing bouts may be conducted, so that it will include the site mentioned. He has called on Mayor Harper several times and talked the matter over with him, and has held interviews with Councilmen interested as committeemen before whom the preliminary matters would come.

The retired champion is backed by a powerful coterie of local sports who for long have been attempting to break into the fight game. Adolph Ramish, a contractor, is said to be one of those interested. He holds a lease on the Panorama rink, said to be for five years, the alleged rental for which is $110 a month. As a business venture the scheme is said to appeal to Ramish. Others interested are desirous of entering the fight game for sport's sake.

The entrance of Jeffries in the fighting game means a strong rival to Manager McCarey and the Pacific Athletic Club. Jeffries has been in a receptive mood for a long time, when friends suggested that he start a fight club, and his action will not cause surprise.

Formerly, Jeffries was very friendly to McCarey, and at one time promised the latter that if ever he fought again he would give McCarey the first chance. Then came Matchmaker Skinner from Rhyolite and offered Jeffries a big purse to fight Bill Squires. Jeffries was reported to have accepted. McCarey remembered the alleged promise and felt "sore" at the big fellow. A coolness sprang up between the two, and it is believed by the students of the game that it was then that Jeffries first seriously considered the advice of his friends.

It is believed that Jeffries will endeavor to pull off shows composed of short-round bouts, either six or ten rounds. Although in his day Jeff was anything but a success in short battles, it is believed that there may be more money and greater general popularity in the venture. The four-round fights in San Francisco have proven a success, while in Philadelphia the six-round bouts have drawn lots of money and aroused much enthusiasm.

ROUNDING TO SHAPE.

BURNS AND MONTANA KID.

The bout between Jimmy Burns and Montana Kid promises to be one of the prettiest fights ever seen here. In addition to being exceptionally clever, both boys are hard hitters, able to land a punch with either hand. Burns has the better record, and the class, and the chances are that he will win. Montana Kid, however, is a coming boy, and there are many who believe that he has more than a good chance with Burns. In Burns he has picked the toughest boy in the lightweight division, outside of Joe Gans and Nelson, and if he beats Jimmy he will be near the top of his class in a bound.

Burns and Montana Kid met once before and Burns won on a decision, after ten rounds. Montana, however, claimed that he was not in condition as he had been ill a short time before. So Chief Dalton is of the opinion that he has an equal chance with Burns that he made the proposition to fight, winner take all, with the exception of $300 to the loser for training expenses. Burns readily accepted that proposition, and in addition promises Montana a good beating for his temerity.

Burns is in good shape. He expects to be well below the weight when he steps into the ring next Friday night. eH looks mighty good right now, and expects to be in better shape.

Burns will finish his real hard work tomorrow. He has been boxing with Kid Webster and Eddie Webster, but after Sunday will cut out the sparring. Molly McDonald also thinks that Jimmy cut out the swimming after today, for he holds that the water has a certain weakening effect. Jimmy has been in the habit of taking a daily swim in the lake near his training quarters at the East Side Athletic Club. He enjoys swimming immensely and would go in the water two or three times a day if McDonald would let him. In order to avoid colds, Molly oiled Jimmy's body copiously before he entered the water, in order to close the pores of the skin.

A match swimming race of 200 yards has been arranged for tomorrow afternoon, between Eddie Webster and Danny Webster. Both boys have been training for the event by swimming an hour every day. Rivalry has become keen between them. The match is the result. Jimmy Burns is going to hold the match, and McDonald will referee. The course is to be straightaway, as the present depth of water allows swimming that distance.

Out at Cahuenga Pass, Montana Kid is licking himself into shape. He is training harder than ever he did, for he has the best chance of his life to make good. Montana has been accused of being lax in training in his former fights here, but from the way he is performing at present, a similar accusation cannot be made in this instance.

Montana is enjoying good health, something which has not been his good fortune for some time. He is working carefully and the weight of 133 pounds will not bother him in the least and will leave him his full strength. This is the most important engagement Montana ever arranged. If he is beaten, he will lose little, for he will have lost to the best man in his division; if he wins, he will jump at once to the top of the heap.

DeWitt Van Court is training Montana, and the old boxing instructor is satisfied with his man's condition. Montana has had trouble in securing suitable sparring partners. Kid Dalton acted in that capacity for a time, but quit. Then a fellow by the name of Sullivan took up the gloves, but he flunked out yesterday. Steve Quierolio spent all Friday afternoon looking for a man to work out with the Kid. Jim Trimble finally was secured.

Montana has a way of hanging hard rights onto the jaws of his sparring partners, which may be the secret of their indisposition.

WALSH AND ATTELL.

WEEKS'S FIGHT IS OFF.

The scheduled bout between Jimmy Walsh and Freddie Weeks for Denver is off. The Mayor of Denver refuses permission to Reddy Gallagher to conduct any show until after the Denver Athletic Club and the Eagles hold one. The boys were to have met at 122 pounds, this month, but the Mayor's action puts a crimp in the aspirations of Weeks to defeat the little bantam champion.

The Goldfield promoters have stepped in and offered to match Walsh and Abe Attell at 122 ringside, for July 4. Walsh is willing to take his third trial against the featherweight champion. He believes that in Goldfield he will be able to get in better condition than he did in Los Angeles. He weighed but 113 pounds when he met Attell here, and believes he can put on more weight in the desert country and be stronger. He gave Attell a hard battle in the East for fifteen rounds. He claims that a chance blow early in the fight put him out of the running, as the blow injured an optic nerve and bothered him considerably thereafter.

Attell has not yet given an answer, but with Abe there it is always a question of the money, and if the Goldfield people can show him enough coin he will fight anybody, from Slugger McGovern to Jim Jeffries, so he has declared time and again.

ANGEL TEAM IS SHUT OUT.

Hogan Pitches Great Ball for the Commuters.

Great Triple Play by Southerners Is Feature.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With Hogan pitching shut-out ball and with "Truck" Eagan hitting the sphere over the fence when the chance offered, the Southerners were on the short end of a 5 to 0 score yesterday afternoon, at Recreation Park.

It was an Oakland day all the way through, save in the single instance that Los Angeles stirred things up with a triple play that retired the Commuters when they looked to be in a position to score more runs.

Aside from that triple, Eagan was easily the feature. After Jim Smith had tallied for Oakland in the opening frame, Eagan put the ball over the fence; that made enough and to spare for Oakland, but "Truck" was not satisfied. He waited until the ninth inning and duplicated. The only difference was that he had men on the bases ahead of him, so that it counted for more.

Lefty Smith opened with a two-bagger and was sacrificed to third by Van Haltren. Heitmuller was given free passage, and Eagan's high one over right field fence brought in the extra three runs.

Hogan puzzled the visitors from start to finish. He allowed them four scattered hits, only one of which was for more than a base, and gave never a walk. Los Angeles's one chance to shine came in the last of the second. Bergman was more than a trifle wild and walked Haley and Devereaux in succession. Hogan had his orders to put the ball on the ground for a sacrifice, but it popped into Bergman's hands. Quick as a flash Bergman hustled it to Delmas at second, and Haley was caught off the bag. Delmas in turn relayed it to first, and Dillon had the ball before "Brick" could get back to the sack.

MILLER IS SUSPENDED.

Rough Riding Causes Nasty Spill Which Almost Causes Death of Two Jockies.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, June 7.—As a result of his alleged rough riding at Gravesend today, Jockey Miller was suspended by the stewards for one week and fined $200. Miller was held responsible for an accident in the last race, in which two boys narrowly escaped being killed when their mounts fell.

The start in the last race was near the judges' stand, and when the barrier was sprung, Miller, who was on the outside with Brother Thomas, cut across his field in an endeavor to get the rail. This caused considerable crowding, and Wielde, with Swain up, and Helen Porter ridden by W. Doyle, fell in the midst of the big field.

Both boys were injured, but how badly the doctor was unable to say. It was reported, however, that Swain was seriously hurt. They were taken to the Emergency Hospital. Miller finished second, but his mount was disqualified.

FINAL AWARDS IN PASADENA DOG SHOW.

ASCOT JIM BROOKS, the race-horse man, furnished the sensation at the Pasadena dog show yesterday by protesting what is said by Judge John Bradshaw to be the best Boston terrier lady dog in the country. The protest on the question of weight was not allowed by the officials and thus Mr. Brooks got no award in a class in which he would have received second and third prizes at least, and possibly a reserve.

The little sensation, if such it might be called, came in the judging of class 80, which was for Boston terrier limit bitches over seventeen and under twenty-two pounds in weight. There were only three entries in this and these were Jersey Lily and Endcliffe Dorothy from Brooks's Ascot kennels, and Mrs. M. S. Severance's Endcliffe Topaz. All three of these little dogs are fine specimens of the Bostons. Brooks's dogs have won prizes in every dog show and Mrs. Severance's is an eastern winner and worth at least $1200 in New York, Bradshaw. Topaz was shown in the East as a light weight, under seventeen pounds, and when she was entered in the limit bitches class, for animals over seventeen and under twenty-two pounds, Mr. Brooks very naturally objected.

It seems that Mrs. Severance had asked Fred Herr to handle her Endcliffe Topaz and when Fred took the little thing into the show Thursday afternoon, he had her weighed by one of the officials and she tipped the scales at seventeen and one-quarter pounds, and it is said that Brooks's dog superintendent, Halliwell, saw her weighed. Yesterday, when the Brooks animals and Topaz were taken into the ring to be judged, "shorty" Venables, representing Brooks, asked that Topaz be weighed. This was refused and then the Brooks dogs were withdrawn and a protest filed by his man against Topaz. General rule 11 gives any handler the right to demand the weighing of any dog, other than those whose weight has been registered, but as Topaz had been weighed, there was no ground for a protest and the officials threw it out. The protest is characterized as a very unsportsmanlike act. As it was, Topaz was given first prize in limit bitches over seventeen and under twenty-two pounds and was also first in the winner's class.

The freaky weather hurt the attendance at the show yesterday, but notwithstanding this there was a large crowd there all day and great interest was shown. One exhibit that attracted particular attention was that of W. C. Burns's kennel of eight American foxhounds, for on the wall behind these finds dogs are the skins of three large wild cats and one coyote that the dogs have captured, among many others, during their chases over the hills. These dogs have the long silky ears of the bloodhound and are lighter in weight and fleeter of foot than the English foxhound. The judging was finished yesterday, with the exception of the specials and these will be put on this evening at 8 o'clock. The breeds judged were the Airedale, fox, bull, Irish, Scotch, Yorkshire and Boston Terriers, French bulldogs, English and Japanese toy spaniels, toy poodles, Chihuahuas, miscellaneous and non-sporting class, and the awards were as follows:

LONDON HORSE SHOW OPENS.

AMERICAN ENTRIES EXPECTED TO SCORE HIGH.

King and Royal Family Prepare to Inspect High-steppers—Promoters Have Made Show Social Event, Thereby Following Yankee Precedent—Fine Judging Ring.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, June 7.—Horse shows, provincial and metropolitan, have been spring and summer features in England for years, but never before has there been such an attempt to interest the public as has been successfully undertaken in connection with the international show, which opened at Olympia today and continues for a week. Heretofore, a horse show in England has merely attracted the attention of exhibitors and those interested in the breeding of high-class stock. But, emulating America, the promoters of the international exhibition have, by making it a social event, interested many who in the past have left the showing of their horses to their grooms and stable boys, but who, during the coming show, will watch from comfortable boxes the parade of the aristocrats of English and American stables.

A special box has been reserved for the King and members of the royal family, while others have been taken by leaders in American and English social circles. The judging ring has been converted into an ideal arena, 2000 square feet of turf having been laid down, so that the exhibits will be shown to the best advantage without the accompaniment of clouds of dust.

In all, over 1000 horses will go before the judges, representing every class. In the draught class it was anticipated that Armour's team of six American grays would have a clear road for first, but some of the English brewers and other manufacturers who use heavy teams have entered their best to keep the prize in England.

Besides Armour's team, some fifty American horses have been entered in various classes, the most prominent among them being Alfred Vanderbilt's coach four, hackneys and jumpers. The presence of Mr. Vanderbilt's stable has greatly accentuated interest in the show, with the result that in every class he enters he will have to meet a score of competitors.

Hunters have been sent from Ireland, Scotland and France, not to mention those from England, to prevent the prizes for jumpers crossing the Atlantic, while in the hackney class Mr. Vanderbilt will have to compete against Walter Winans, an American resident of England, and Mrs. Hartley Batt, two famous owners of high-steppers, besides many others.

Americans are competing in all for 300 prizes, many of the horses from across the Atlantic being entered in several classes. C. W. Watson of Baltimore has entered twenty-two carriage horses, including his famous pair, "Lord Baltimore" and "Lady Maryland," besides his jumpers and coach team.

Alfred Vanderbilt is showing five carriage pairs. Mrs. W. Orr Barclay has entered her carriage horses, including "Sandow" and "Sultan," winners at most of the American shows and which she will drive herself. A. B. McLain will exhibit hackneys: Cecil Lawrence Jones, Kentucky hunters; and F. Pabst of Milwaukee, hackneys; Adam Beck, M.P., of Canada, has brought over his hunters and jumpers, and Mrs. Beck will drive several carriage pairs.

OCCIDENTAL WINS TENNIS TOURNEY.

WOMEN PLAYERS BRING VICTORY TO PRESBYTERIANS.

Nat Brown Proves Bright Individual Star, but His Playing Alone Is Not Enough to Take Tournament for Methodists—Miss Merrill Best of the Women.

Occidental defeated U.S.C. in a closely contested tennis tournament yesterday afternoon, on the Presbyterian courts, and won the intercollegiate championship. There were eleven events, and the Presbyterians captured six.

The play began at 10:30 o'clock and continued through the day. Five matches were played before luncheon, and Occidental succeeded in winning three of them. The Presbyterians took three more matches in the afternoon, and the Methodists won the same number, but the visitors were unable to take the lead.

Nat Brown and Miss Marguerite Merrill were the stars of the tournament. U.S.C. won every match in which Brown participated. The Methodist crack defeated Cleland and Lowry in the singles, and played in the men's and mixed doubles, which went to U.S.C.

Miss Merrill easily defeated Miss Franklin and Miss Allan in the ladies' singles, and, with Miss Clopton, won the ladies' doubles.

The young women won the tournament for Occidental. Four of the five events for ladies were won by the Presbyterians. Miss Franklin and Miss Allan were not able to compete successfully against the Occidental young women, and Miss Allan won the only ladies' match for the Methodists, defeating Miss Clopton in the singles.

The men's doubles was full of spectacular playing, and the spectators applauded almost continually. Occidental started off by winning the first set without permitting U.S.C. to score a game, but the Methodists took a brace and won the next two sets and the match.

Crippen was no match for either Lowry or Cleland, but Brown easily disposed of both. The U.S.C. team was weak, and, had it not been for Brown, the Methodists would have made a very small score. Nat was the "whole show."

Summary of events:

Men's singles: Lowry, O., beat Crippen, U.S.C., 6-2, 6-3; Brown, U.S.C., beat Cleland, O., 8-6, 6-2; Cleland, O., beat Crippen, U.S.C., 3-6, 6-2, 6-2; Brown, U.S.C., beat Lowry, O., 6-0, 6-2.

Men's doubles: Brown and Crippen, U.S.C., beat Merrill and Lowry, O., 0-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Ladies' singles: Miss Clopton, O., beat Miss Franklin, U.S.C., 6-2, 2-6, 6-4; Miss Merrill, O., beat Miss Allan, U.S.C., 8-6, 6-2; Miss Merrill, O., beat Miss Franklin, U.S.C., 6-0, 6-2; Miss Allan, U.S.C., beat Miss Clopton, O., 6-1, 6-4.

Ladies' doubles: Misses Merrill and Clopton, O., beat Misses Allan and Franklin, U.S.C., 6-1, 6-4.

HEARTLESS HANDICAP.

Ethel Day Got Away Poorly, but Beat Out Pal in the Feature Event at Oakland.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—In the Heartless handicap at Emeryville, today, Ethel Day, the winner, got away poorly but managed to keep ahead of Pal, who had speed but was staggering at the end. Romaine was a good third. Royal Maxim was admirably handled in the mile and sixteenth race and won easily from Frascuelo. Treasure Seeker came next under keen pressure. # WATER BONDS SURE TO CARRY.

Victory Indicated by Great Popular Interest.

Two Enthusiastic Meetings Held Last Night.

City's Need of Water Pointed Out to Voters.

Representative citizens of Los Angeles attended the Owens River bond meeting held last night in Korbel Hall at Boyle Heights. Merchants, realty men, clerks, laborers in their working clothes, street railway men in uniform, came to hear of the proposed bonding of the city in order to get a better water supply. The meeting was held to give the Ninth Ward people a chance to hear all about the great advantages for the bonds.

Enthusiasm, which seemed to show unanimity of sentiment, greeted every speaker. The mention of Owens River water was the signal for an outburst of applause. The audience showed itself in hearty sympathy with the plan to bond the city and so expressed itself in repeated cheers whenever the project was mentioned. William Mulholland, the principal speaker, was given an ovation. J. P. Lippincott ably dealt with statistics, was listened to with careful attention. The meeting was one of the best that has been held in the campaign.

Speakers declared that the Owens River water will be sufficient to supply a million people with water for domestic purposes and to irrigate a million acres of land. The claim was made by Mulholland that the aqueduct can be built within the estimate called for in the proposed bond issue and within the time named.

"The opposition has sifted their objections to the Owens River plan down to a point," said Mr. Mulholland. "It is now whether we do not desire a supply of water we have here in Los Angeles. I came here in this city a year, and we had only 11,000 inches to care for. I bored artesian wells and had opportunity to study the geological formations. I gained knowledge of the water supply conditions and the following year went to work for the water company, measuring the city. I have kept records since.

"We had 5000 inches of water in the Los Angeles River in 1893. In 1903 we threatened water famine and the water in the river decreased to 1000 inches. Farmers in the San Fernando Valley sank wells and took part of the supply. We went to court and got judgment against them. We were forced that judgment as the years which followed gave us more water for present needs. We have a problem before us to supply the city with water until the Owens River water comes. This is a greater problem than the bringing of water by conduit to this city was."

Mulholland concluded his address with a earnest appeal to the voters for their thanks. Concluding, he said: "We can afford to be on the right side of the matter. Let no man stay away from the polls on Wednesday. I will ask you for your votes, we will give you information. We are citizens of the city and are conducting this campaign of information so that all may know what we intend to do. We intend to let every one have a chance to vote intelligently on this matter and if you are in favor of the Owens River bonds or believe them it is your duty to vote according to your conviction."

J. P. Lippincott told of the great benefits declared will be conserved by the Owens River water reaches the city. He stated that profit will be made by the city from the sale of power. He declared that the statement made by Mulholland is "safe." "We will bring from the Owens River enough to supply a million people for domestic purposes," said Mr. Lippincott, "and to irrigate 75,000 acres of land. We have supplied 250,000 people and made a profit, and we will make a greater profit with more water to sell. We have the opportunity to bring Owens River water to make Los Angeles a great manufacturing city without having to have a chance to become a great agricultural center. This point has not been overlooked in this campaign. I am satisfied that the use of the Owens River water to be obtained will be our greatest stride in the line of progress we are making."

The meeting was in charge of R. M. Clement of the Ninth Ward Improvement Association. Other speakers were Councilman Dromgold and Cooper of Arizona.

WIDE VOTERS MEET.

Several hundred voters assembled at Vernon and Moneta avenue last night. Andrew G. Park and Attorney Leslie R. Hewitt speak on the Owens River question. Park spoke briefly but forcibly outlining the opposition to his hearers. He said the opposition of certain water companies in strong words cost President Roosevelt. Speaking of the nature of this opposition it was brought before Congressman Smith of this District, and praising the movement Los Angeles' great Hewitt pointed out the fallacy of the claim that if the bond issue is carried each person in the city will have to pay $100, based on a basis of the present population and not of the proposed bond issue. It is but fair to assume that the growth of this city will increase on as rapidly as it has in the past, he said, "if the bond issue carries or not, then in 1920, with a population at a conservative estimate, we will have 400,000 people, so that the liability will be far less than $100 in the future. Moreover, the bonds are not all to be sold at once. The opposition therefore is failing to deceive." The people are misled by taking up and discussing the various objections that have been raised, both in the meeting and by the people of Los Angeles. He said that while Los Angeles does not desire to deprive the rights of any future additions, in case of the greatest number, and will have the water.

Football Play.

Games were played yesterday between the Los Angeles Athletic Club and Vernon, the results being as follows: Vernon beat Eyton 21 to 16 and Vernon beat Eyton 18 to 18; Barnard beat Eyton 20; Marsh beat Watlington beat Dur-

FEARFUL ITCHING BURNING SORES

Boy in Misery 12 Years—Eczema Spread Over Body in Rough Scales, Cracked, Inflamed, and Swollen—Case Pronounced Incurable, but Completely Cured by Two Sets of Cuticura Remedies.

HIS SKIN NOW FINE AND SMOOTH AS SILK

"I wish to inform you that you wonderful Cuticura has put a stop to twelve years of misery I passed with my son. As an infant I noticed on his body a red spot and treated same with different remedies for about five years, but when the spot began to get larger I put him under the care of doctors. Under their treatment the disease spread to four different parts of his body. The longer the doctors treated him the worse it grew. During the day it would get rough and form like scales. At night it would be cracked, inflamed, and badly swollen, with terrible burning and itching. When I think of his suffering, it nearly breaks my heart. His screams could be heard down-stairs. The suffering of my son made me full of misery. I had no ambition to work, to eat, nor could I sleep.

"One doctor told me that my son's eczema was incurable, and gave it up for a bad job. One evening I saw an article in the paper about the wonderful Cuticura and decided to give it a trial.

"I tell you that Cuticura Ointment is worth its weight in gold, and when I had used the first box of Ointment there was a great improvement, and by the time I had used the second set of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent my child was cured. He is now twelve years old, and his skin is as fine and smooth as silk. Michael Steinman, 7 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., April 16, 1905."

ARMY WIFE TO SUE OFFICERS.

SHE ASKS ENTRY TO GROUNDS OF WEST POINT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WEST POINT (N. Y.) June 7.—In the absence of her husband, who had gone to New York for the day, Mrs. Elizabeth Fairfax Ayres declined today to discuss the details of the suit for damages which, it is said, she is about to bring against several of the high officers at the United States Military Academy. Mrs. Ayres said the case is now in the hands of a New York lawyer, and formal papers in the suit soon will be served.

If the case comes to trial, it is believed that some interesting side lights will be thrown on the social life at the academy.

Under ordinary circumstances, any misunderstandings in which the officers of the academy or their wives might become involved would be thrashed out before a court-martial and the testimony never would be published. In this case, however, appeal is to be made to the civil courts, and any testimony probably would be given in public. Mrs. Ayres is the wife of Lieut.-Col. Charles Ayres, who returned Saturday on leave of absence following duty in the Philippines, and is now stationed at the academy. She resides just outside the reservation, in Highland Falls, and under a recent order issued upon request of the academy officials, Mrs. Ayres is denied the privilege of visiting the academy grounds.

The order of prohibition, which is said to have a large place in Mrs. Ayres's complaint in support of her suit for damages, does not apply to her husband or to her son, who is a cadet at the academy. The order of prohibition against Mrs. Ayres, which was issued before her husband had returned from the Philippines, followed a long period of misunderstanding between Mrs. Ayres and the academy officials. The facts are disputed, and it is believed that interesting testimony may be introduced by both sides to the contention should the case come to trial.

WILL AID HIS WIFE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HIGHLAND FALLS (N. Y.) June 7.—After reading a communication from the War Department, Lieut.-Col. Charles G. Ayres tonight declared that he would support his wife in the action she has instructed her attorney to institute against Superintendent Hugh Scott and other officers of the West Point Military Academy.

Col. Ayres returned this evening from New York and found the letter from Washington awaiting him. While declining to discuss its contents, he intimated that they touched upon the course adopted by Mrs. Ayres. He made it plain that he proposed to see his wife "through to the finish."

Col. Ayres said that he would not make public the letter from the War Department until he had first shown it to his wife's attorney in whose hands it would be placed tomorrow.

Mrs. Ayres's attorney, Mann Trice of New York, has been instructed to file damage suits aggregating $100,000 against Col. Scott, Lieut.-Col. Robert L. Howze, commandant of cadets; Capt. Llewellyn D. Oliver, assistant instructor of tactics, and Lieut.-Col. Stephen C. Mills, inspector-general.

It is understood that Mrs. Ayres bases her allegations upon alleged discourtesies received at West Point and which culminated in the colonel's wife being forbidden to enter the reservation. The Ayres home adjoins the academy grounds.

EXPRESS FRANKS ARE CALLED IN.

RAILWAY OFFICIAL ORDERS EMPLOYEES TO SURRENDER.

Rock Island Holds That Interstate Commerce Commission Ruling Prohibits Interchange of Passes by Common Carrier Companies of Country.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] B. L. Winchell, vice-president of the Rock Island road, has directed officials and employes of that system to send their express company's franks to the general offices.

This is done, it is stated, in conformity with an informal ruling made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Other Chicago railroad presidents are undecided what to do, but it is stated today the Harriman lines management, on the advice of G. W. Kretzing, an attorney, had decided to ignore the ruling.

Mr. Kretzing declared the law contemplated an interchange of passes between common carriers, but the commission declares the law contemplated personal passes only.

INVALID INHALES GAS.

SAN JOSE, June 7.—Alexis Bouchetel, a retired jeweler and member of a well-known family, committed suicide this evening by inhaling gas. He had been an invalid for fifteen years, and was despondent.

INTEREST GROWS IN GREAT RACE.

Whittier and Ventura Nominate Candidates—Sawtelle Takes a Hand. Los Angeles Boys and Girls Eager for the Contest—Chinese Musician Seeks Scholarship.

DAY by day interest increases in the coming contest. The mail-bag for the scholarship manager grows heavier with each incoming mail and the sharp ring of the telephone continually announces new applicants. Judging from the preliminary enrollment, the contest of 1907 will eclipse its predecessors in numbers and interest.

Six former contestants have enrolled up to date, the last one being Fannie Wolff, who came to see the scholarship manager yesterday and announced her candidacy. Fannie made a fine record last year, standing with the high sixteen and winning a $25 prize besides the scholarship she sought in Signor Buzzi's school of music. She intends, however, to improve her record of last year and stand among the top-liners. Fannie is a good worker and has the advantage of experience, for one who has passed through one contest is bound to learn a lot of things about successful soliciting. Fannie is a pupil in the Los Angeles High School and ought to have the support of her fellow-students.

SHE MAKES THE GOAL.

Ventura will have a candidate this year, thank you, in the person of Miss Muriel Eells, whose application is filed by her pastor, Rev. J. N. Boyd, of the First Presbyterian Church of that pretty city by the sea. This is what he writes: "I take pleasure in commending Miss Eells, whose parents are members of my church, as an energetic, wide-awake young woman who will do her level best to win a scholarship. She is a 'crack' player on the Ventura High School basketball team and generally makes the goal when she tries for it."

FROM THE QUAKER CITY.

The Edmund Peycke Co., wholesale merchants of this city, nominate a little lady from Whittier, Miss Helen Wilson, who will enter the grand free-for-all race. Good luck to the representative of the Quaker town.

SAWTELLE FALLS IN.

Miss Ella Hinsdell of Sawtelle sends in her name for enrollment and will doubtless compete with Wallie Swain, the Soldiers' Home candidate, for honors.

Two more Los Angeles girls entered yesterday, Miss Winnie Baldwin of 1051 Temple street, and Ellen M. Robinson of 1035 Vermont avenue—two widely-separated parts of the city, each with a rich territory of its own. Miss Winnie expresses her preference for a scholarship in the Dobinson School of Expression.

A CHINESE CANDIDATE.

A young Chinese boy, Mar Moon Gong, is earnestly recommended as a candidate by Mrs. Addie T. Friesner of No. 2217 South Figueroa street, who has employed Moon for several years. She writes: "He is a young Chinese who was born in San Francisco. He is very bright and smart and very anxious for a musical education. He has been going to night school for years and is a member of the Chinese mission. He lived with us for a long time and is always interested in the news of the day. My young son tells him every morning about the important things in The Times and he often brings us pieces of the paper to explain words to him. I have told him it is hard work to win a scholarship, but he is anxious to try. I hope the church people will take him up. He wants to go some time to China to teach music."

The scholarship manager had a talk with Moon over the 'phone yesterday and he speaks excellent English. He plays the organ now and sings in a quartette, being the possessor of a fine voice. If his fellow-countrymen and Christian people who are interested in mission work will take up his cause, Moon stands an excellent chance to be a winner.

The nomination blanks at the foot of the page will continue to be printed till the opening of the contest, June 2. Patrons of The Times are invited to fill them out with names of deserving young people whom they know and will recommend and who wish to enter the contest.

CASH PRIZES INCREASED.

In accordance with its usual custom during the six previous contests conducted by The Times, special cash prizes will be offered in addition to the scholarship. This year the sum of $1200—$100 more than last year—will be divided among the fifteen contestants ranking highest. A prize piano will also be offered, as last year, the contestant scoring highest having first choice of scholarships and, in addition, the $200 first cash prize, or the piano. The cash prizes are designed to help defray the student's incidental or living expenses while attending school and will be divided according to the following scale:

|---|---|
| 1 | $200 |
| 2 | 140 |

COLLISION; MOTORMAN HURT.

Griffin-avenue Cars Come Together With Force and Flying Glass Does Harm.

In a collision between two Griffin-avenue cars at Avenue 20 and Pasadena avenue last night, S. P. Johnson, a motorman, was injured. He was taken to the Receiving Hospital.

From the police it was learned that car No. 531 was "back-tracking." Johnson says that the car was not lighted, and that when it turned on the curve, he did not see it. Johnson was on car No. 564, which was on schedule time and running at a moderate rate of speed.

The motorman of car No. 531 saw that a collision was inevitable and leaped in time to save himself. The glass in the ends of both cars was shattered. A piece of it hit Johnson on the right temple, inflicting a cut three inches long. After his wound was dressed, he was taken to his home, No. 3402 Dayton avenue.

TALK OF SEWER OTHER WAY.

Santa Monica Trustees May Yet Decide to Reverse the Grade of Drainage System.

SANTA MONICA, July 7.—The City Council's Sewer Committee is still investigating the feasibility of reversing the grades for the main outfall and locating an asceptic tank along the beach in the vicinity of Port Los Angeles. A new septic system that is said to do away with all noxious odors is being inquired into and, if found to be as represented, may be incorporated into the city's new sewer system.

The first carload of powder has been sent up the beach for the use of the graders who are now engaged in building the Hueneme, Malibu and Port Los Angeles electric line. The shipment consisted of 880 kegs. From the supply depot here they were hauled by team to the front, where two grading camps are now providing accommodations for, and giving work to, more than 175 laborers.

The baseball game to be played here Sunday afternoon will be between the Santa Monica and Seal Garden teams of the Southern California Amateur League.

Miss Mabel Lambert has tendered her resignation as teacher in the Garfield school.

This afternoon while attempting to drive across the electric tracks on Oregon avenue at Sixteenth street, a passenger coach struck a horse driven by M. Barnwell, a member of the Soldiers' Home. The horse was killed instantly and Barnwell sustained a painful though not serious scalp wound.

Miss K. L. Darling has returned to her beach home, after a visit of two months with friends and relatives in San José.

Mrs. H. A. Izzard of Goldfield, Nev., is here for the season and is occupying a bungalow on Grand avenue.

The pipe organ donated to the Presbyterian Church has arrived and is being placed in position. The donor is J. H. Clark.

Christopher Rempp, a wealthy farmer, who came here two months ago, from Montezuma, Iowa, for the benefit of his health, died this evening. He was 37 years of age. The body will be sent to the old home in Iowa for burial, being now at the undertaking parlors of Bresee Bros. & Todd Co. Rempp leaves a widow and daughter, who are now in Santa Monica.

VENICE HOME SHOW.

Products of the Canal City to Be Exhibited—Exposition to Open Today.

VENICE, June 7.—The Made-in-Venice Exposition, which will open tomorrow in the European section of the exposition building promises to be one of the most successful semi-social functions ever conducted in the Canal City. About 250 exhibits have been secured, and all of them have been manufactured at the beach. The exhibit of the children of the public schools, showing the work of the Sloyd department, will be of especial interest. There will be 150 completed specimens of handiwork in carpentry and basket weaving. Another interesting display will be that of the Pelp souvenir factory, the carpet weavers, the terra cotta kilns and Peano's antique jewelry establishment. There will also be mission furniture, flowers, paintings, ice, and the products of the bake shop and the candy factory.

CANAL CITY BRIEFS.

There will be a continuation of the sunshine religious services at the Auditorium Sunday morning, under direction of Miss Mabelle Biggart. There will also be an informal vesper service on the sands of the ocean front at 5 p.m., the first to be held under the auspices of the Venice Sunshine Society.

Free baths Saturday and Sunday is the announcement made by the Kinney Company for the surf bath-house.

Two hundred Native Sons of the Golden West, members of Ramona Parlor, are coming from Los Angeles by special electric cars tomorrow night and will enjoy the annual banquet aboard the ship Cabrillo. The excursionists will be met by the band and escorted from the Terminal grounds to the ship.

HOLLYWOOD MAN MISSING.

I Will Cure You

DR. TAYLOR
The Leading Specialist

You Pay When Cured

When I have accepted your case for treatment you may look forward to a complete and permanent cure, and with the very first treatment the curing will begin. This is pretty definite talk upon what is commonly regarded as an uncertain and speculative matter. But I am in a position to speak definite and positively. With me the cure of men's diseases is not uncertain or speculative at all.

I have treated so many cases that I know just what I can do and what I cannot do, and I never promise or attempt too much. I accept no case in which I have doubt as to my ability to cure, and results are always equal to the claims I make. Following are some of the diseases I cure, and reasons why my cures are certain:

Contracted Disorders

In no other ailment peculiar to men is a prompt and thorough cure so essential. Contracted disorders tend to work backward until the most vital nerve centers become involved in the inflammation. Then follows a chronic stage that stubbornly resists all ordinary treatment. Safely demands that every vestige of infection be eradicated at the earliest possible moment. My treatment is thorough. The remedies employed have a more positive action than has ever before been attained, and so perfect is my method of application that even chronic cases yield completely.

Varicocele

This most prevalent of all diseases of men is also the most neglected, either through dread of the harsh methods of treatment commonly employed, or through ignorance of the grave dangers that accompany the disease. As varicocele interferes directly with the circulation and process of waste and repair throughout the generative organs, the necessity of a prompt and thorough cure cannot be too forcibly emphasized. I cure varicocele in one week by an absolutely painless process. My cures are thorough and absolutely permanent, and are accomplished without the use of knife, ligature or caustic.

I ALSO CURE TO STAY CURED "WEAKNESS," HYDROCELE, SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON AND ALL MEN'S DISEASES.

I state nothing in my announcements but the straight, square truth. It will cost you nothing to call and talk over your case. You can find out all about your trouble and you can later arrange to begin treatment any time you like. My offices, comprising ten rooms, are the largest, most elegant and best equipped in the West.

"THE ARGONAUT" ON THINGS IN LOS ANGELES.

[From the Argonaut, San Francisco, June 1, 1907.]

LOS ANGELES, Saturday, June 1, 1907.—To the Readers of the Argonaut: I ran down here yesterday with two thoughts in mind. First, I would even though only for a few hours, to get out of the atmosphere of social confusion, of class hatred, of struggle and conflict, of criminal suggestion. I wanted to again breathe the air of social order, to see the wheels of industry in normal movement, to see others with cheerful and happy faces, to listen to hopeful talk about the present and to come. Second, I wanted to find out why things are as they are in Los Angeles, while conditions in San Francisco are what they are.

I had not gone the short half-mile from the Arcade Station and the Athletic Club before I saw substantial evidences of much that we have been hearing lately about Los Angeles. The streets were thronged with well-dressed people, all looking as if they were going somewhere for some purpose. Corners quite familiar two or three years ago I could not identify, because the shacks of an earlier period had given way to skyscrapers. Looking in any direction the air seemed literally full of steel frames, about which busy men were climbing, and where welding and hammering, prevailed as in San Francisco two or three years ago. Pervading everywhere and drowning there was the hum of human activity on a large scale—the rattle of the street-car bell, the toot-toot of the automobile in endless number, with ten thousand other evidences of an eager and orderly life. The Los Angeles people have never been known for backwardness in telling their wonderful town; I have heard the story in its infinite variation over and over again, and have learned to smile inwardly at the enthusiasm of our friends and neighbors, who have brought the Chicago spirit with a whole lot of Chicago added and have reëstablished both on the Los Angeles River (which I did not see with the eye of faith) and in Pasadena arroyo (which, old fogy once an knee-deep for the Los Angeles type is not without charm, but—it hasn't overtold the truth. The population of Los Angeles [illegible] editor told me, is 260,000. [illegible] editor put it at 180,000. Still [illegible] told me that it was a "round hundred thousand." [There's no [illegible] for these wide discrepancies of opinion.] The correct number of population is a little rising of 200,000. Times.] I shall not attempt to reconcile these differences, because I don't want to set the journalistic war to baying in [illegible], and partly because it is a matter. Whatever the census may be the boomer may figure out in [illegible] of numbers, the fact is apparent that there is a prodigious lot of [illegible] in Los Angeles; and, what is more important, they are busy, and united in spirit, hopeful and [illegible]. Their town is getting [illegible] at a prodigious rate, and every [illegible] one of them feels himself a [illegible] to the universal welfare. [illegible] a few figures:

[illegible] number of manufacturing [illegible] and small, in Los Angeles at the last reckoning 1537; [illegible] in manufacturing, approximately $25,000,000; estimated annual [illegible] of products, $50,000,000; annual [illegible] sell, $14,700,000. In the year [illegible] country of which Los Angeles [illegible] dispatched to the world's [illegible] shipments estimated in [illegible],000; value of these shipments [illegible],000,000. Los Angeles has [illegible] banks, with a combined [illegible] $17,078,142; deposits (a recent [illegible] months back,) $90,874,—. [illegible] bank clearings for a period [illegible] months are reported at $421,—. [illegible] Building permits for a period [illegible] months aggregated $14,—. [illegible] three transcontinental railroads for the business of Los [illegible] The local street railway and [illegible] system aggregates 885 miles, [illegible] 85 miles are double-tracked. [illegible] there are 229 churches [illegible], 71 schools, 20 institutions [illegible] "colleges," 24 hospitals [illegible] theaters. The first of last [illegible] were enrolled in the public [illegible],820 pupils. These figures [illegible], truly. I don't wonder [illegible] Los Angeles man is a loud [illegible] profoundly wish that we [illegible] something of the exuberance of his spirit into San Francisco. [illegible] are a few of us, temperamentally disposed to a quiet life, [illegible] have to retire into obscure [illegible] but perhaps the town [illegible] has us much, and it would [illegible] helped by that spirit which sees things in their [illegible] and which invariably [illegible] the sunny side of the street.

[illegible] let the grass grow under [illegible] day and a half since my [illegible] Los Angeles. I have gone to [illegible] manufacturers, workmen, editors, merchants and real [illegible], and have put this [illegible] purely to them: How do you [illegible] the splendid activity of [illegible] your freedom from so- [illegible] your exemption from [illegible] efficiency and respectability [illegible] government, while San [illegible] your nearest neighbor, suffering [illegible] seriously and no terribly? I [illegible] this question of no less [illegible] men within the past thirty [illegible] shall attempt to reflect, [illegible] of a composite statement, [illegible] that have been given me: [illegible] is active, in all the details of [illegible] life; there is peace [illegible] here because, broadly [illegible], there is good will and [illegible] between the elements of [illegible] capital. Neither is dominated [illegible] controls nor attempts [illegible] control the other. The city [illegible] with Mayor Harper, a [illegible] at the head, commands unlimited [illegible]. The Sheriff, a Republican [illegible] of unimpeachable character [illegible] and thorough in all his [illegible]. The municipal police [illegible] efficient head, is impartially [illegible] serving at the point of its [illegible].

[illegible] shop" principle prevails [illegible]. There are labor unions [illegible], but unionism has no [illegible] industry. Efforts to give the [illegible] same autocratic authority [illegible] holds in San Francisco [illegible] and again, and but [illegible]. In a few instances [illegible] discrimination against [illegible] Times newspaper will [illegible], although it pays [illegible] any union printing [illegible]. The Huntington Electric [illegible] system will not employ [illegible] a union. These are exceptions [illegible] rule is in all trades to [illegible] on the open-shop basis [illegible] labor, either individually [illegible], without discrimination [illegible] at the point of union [illegible].

[illegible] not attempt to limit [illegible]. It does not say [illegible] must not organize, but [illegible] that it shall not by [illegible] and arrogance destroy [illegible] social order. To the [illegible] rights cease when [illegible] work; the rights of [illegible] at that point. Assert [illegible] emphatically as you [illegible] the urgency of these demands every resource which lies within the law; but at your peril do not lift so much as a finger to enforce your demands by illegal or violent methods. This system works effectively, because the peace officers do their duty. It goes without saying in Los Angeles that the Mayor, the Chief of Police, the Sheriff, will promptly take into custody any man who seeks to enforce or to intimidate any other man. In Los Angeles the rule of non-interference is not only broadly but strictly enforced. No group of foul-mouthed hoodlums of either sex is allowed to hang about places under the approval of unionism for the purpose of enforcing a boycott. They have a way of so strictly interpreting and enforcing the laws of misdemeanor as to cover these forms of social disturbance and to make a quick job of jacking up whoever violates them. It is not left to individual policemen to determine whether they shall or shall not act in any given case; stranger still, the police practice addresses itself to the aggressors of an assault rather than the victim of it. I am told that there is no instance in the recent history of Los Angeles where a policeman has shot down a working man going about his business because a gang of hoodlum strikers have set upon him. Strange that there should be in Los Angeles a practice so out of harmony with what we are accustomed to in San Francisco!

Noting these answers, I have asked as to the conditions of labor thus under compulsion to live in accordance with the Constitution of the United States and in decent respect for the rights of others. I find, first of all, that labor does not shun Los Angeles, but that there are men in reasonable numbers for every work calling for cooperation of hands. I find that the general wage scale is as high as in any other American city, if we except San Francisco since its demoralization began. The average working day is a compromise between the eight and the nine-hour systems, although in many industries the eight-hour rules prevails. Bricklayers get $6 per day; carpenters, $3 to $5 per day, this difference marking a discrimination between the qualities of workmen; first-class journeymen plumbers get $5 per day. Street-car work is on a scale running from 24 cents an hour for beginners to 30 cents an hour for trained men. An expert man working ten hours gets $2 a day, with the usual extra pay allowances for overtime.

So the story runs all through the wide range of industrial occupations. Wages are as liberal as they are anywhere else in the world. And here let me note a very important point. In Los Angeles no working restrictions are allowed. If a man can lay any given number of bricks per day he is allowed to do it, and to get any special rate of pay which the employer may allow to expert and exceptional capability. Under this system, a first-class mason will lay 1500 bricks per day. I have been told that in San Francisco no man is permitted, under the rule of unionism, to lay more than 450 bricks per day. Let the reader with a taste for figures do a little calculating and take note of the general economic loss inevitable under this stupid and immoral system of restriction. I call it stupid, because there is neither rhyme nor reason in it; I call it immoral, because it enforces laziness, dilatoriness, the spirit and the practice of a cheap fraud, and inevitably rots at its core the character of every man who works under it. Let me go further still; it is in effect treasonable, because it is a blow at that system of social and personal liberty which attaches to the theory and to the fabric of our American system. Under this oppressive rule no man can rise to better rewards and to higher levels of achievement and character through capacity and diligence. It holds every man who accepts it a bondslave to a course of life based upon the capacity of the slowest and least efficient. Viewed broadly, it stunts the growth of citizenship, and thereby cheats government by the people of the special character and special talent essential to its maintenance in the full and broad measure of highest integrity.

Let me ask how would American history read if this tyranny had ruled our life in earlier times? Most of the great figures which adorn our civic record—the men who have given us wise laws, who have led our national life, who have fought our battles with sword and with pen—most of these, I say, would have been smothered in their powers and in their ambitions by a system which fixes the rule at the capability of the lowest, which locks and bars the door against advancement, which holds back the eager and the strong, which ultimately and inevitably vitiates and depreciates every workman to the level of the least capable. Under this cruel system, we should have had no Lincoln in the White House. No Grant would have marched at the head of our armies. No Seward would have guided our councils with the nations of the earth. No Beecher and no Greeley would have inspired us with manly courage. No Whittier, rising from the cobbler's bench, would have sung the songs to which a million freemen marched with guns in their hands to God's bloody but just and necessary work. If the capability of the least efficient shall become the rule of American life; if men of exceptional energy, resolution, diligence, hardihood, and courage shall not be permitted to seek and win that which their powers and merits entitle them, we have already seen the best days of the republic. For no nation which represses intellect, character, capability, can maintain itself upon that high plane whereon our fathers established the United States of America.

I have exhibited the working of the Los Angeles system in its relations to the public peace, to material progress, and to the welfare and the character of the individual citizen. Let me glance briefly at a few of its effects upon individual enterprise, for it is out of individual enterprise that every good thing has come to Los Angeles. There was pointed out to me today a nine-story building, comparable at all points with the Mills building on Montgomery street, complete as to walls, roof, and everything excepting windows and interior fitting, with the information that for this building ground was broken in November last. In its construction there has been no hour of embarrassment from first to last. There has been perfect cooperation between owner, contractor, and the twenty or more trades employed in the work. Calculations made before the ground was touched have worked out to the cent. There has not been one hour of delay, there has been no waste of energy in conferences, protests, demands, of anything else. From start to finish the thing has gone like clockwork. I was assured by the owner of the building that the construction had been a "real pleasure," and that as soon as he got his job done he intended to take up another, just because he "liked to be doing things."

It would be easy to duplicate this story twenty times, for all over town building on a great scale is going on with perfect cooperation between all the elements and forces in any way related to these enterprises. The situation is one in which every blow that is struck, in which every ounce of energy that is expended, and in which every thought contributes to progress. The capitalist is not lying awake nights worrying over the uncertainties of his undertaking; the contractor is not worried and fagged by the cares and burdens of his part of the work; the mood of the workman is not dominated by discontent and by enmity to his work; nor is he taxed to support a brood of walking delegates and other bloodsuckers. Whatever energy of mind or body is directed toward the particular job on hand, that energy counts toward getting ahead. Need anybody wonder that under such a system building is a "real pleasure" to the capitalist, that there is spirit in every phase of the work, that the town in which this sort of thing prevails goes on, and on, and on?

I asked a merchant of Los Angeles today to define the force which holds the municipal government, including the police, and the county government, including the Sheriff, to the line of responsibility and duty under which trades-unionism has been prevented from doing here those violent and unlawful acts by which San Francisco has been, and is being, so terrified, humiliated and injured. The reply was prompt. We have in Los Angeles, he said, a public sentiment which discriminates against cheap and characterless men on election day, and which gives to men in office an inspiration which holds them to their work. Public sentiment in Los Angeles is no timid and spineless thing; it knows where it stands, and it never hesitates to assert itself. I will not venture to say, he continued, what might happen to a Chief of Police who should prove recreant to his duty under the law. It is unthinkable that any man here should pursue in a crisis a course comparable with that of San Francisco's Chief Dinan, who, I understand, is a product of tenderloin life, a hoodlum by instinct and practice, a criminal by affinity, association and habit. We have, you see—he pointed to the nearest corner—a very firmly planted system of lamp-posts. Probably, should the need arise, we should know how to make effective use of the one nearest at hand in such a crisis. There is no saying what we would do, because there is no danger of our having to do it; for no man of the criminal class could get to be Chief of Police, and no such man could possibly remain in office. There is a positive unanimity of sentiment among our business community, and it is a sentiment in which the great body of our industrial population are full and worthy sharers.

By way of illustrating the united spirit of the business community, another merchant gave me a detailed account of an incident only just now a month old. On May 1 of this year there was a strike of teamsters upon the basis of demands which the business community could not accept as just. There was no violence, no picketing, no resort at any point to unlawful methods, but there was widespread embarrassment. There are few idle men in Los Angeles, few who can be picked up to do any unusual work. It was found impossible immediately to supply the places of the strikers, and for a few days business was very much hampered and hindered. Consulting their immediate interest the employers of teamsters were in the way of coming to a compromise, of yielding where the judgment of the business community in general was that there should be no concession. The employers were advised to hold fast, but they pleaded poverty, and the urgency of their need. At this point public sentiment and community spirit stepped in. Within three hours a fund of $50,000 had been provided, not secretly and sneakingly, but openly and boldly, with the names of the parties opposite their contributions. This fund was put into the hands of the employers to be used in compensation for any losses which they might sustain through a firm stand for equity and decency. There were many subscribers to the fund, one notable one—Henry E. Huntington—who stipulated that his contribution of $5000 was contingent upon a definite and positive determination to fight the fight out to a finish with no concession at any point. The rest of the story is soon told. The strikers, seeing themselves beaten, returned to their work. It developed in this connection that the initiative of the strike and of the demands upon which it was based, was not with the teamsters themselves, but with an itinerant agitator representative of national unionism, who thought that a time when San Francisco was in such confusion would be a good time to insert the thin edge of the labor-union wedge at Los Angeles.

I come now to the most interesting part of this whole story, to consideration of the conditions by which, and under which, public sentiment in Los Angeles with respect to industrial freedom was created and has been maintained. Ask any man in Los Angeles why sentiment is what it is, and he will answer promptly in two words—"The Times!" The Times newspaper stands in Los Angeles in a curious and unique character. It is, par excellence, the newspaper of the city, besting its several contemporaries at every point in journalistic efficiency, and double-discounting them all taken together as a social force. It gives to Los Angeles an intellectual and moral leadership much like that of the Oregonian in Portland, of the Tribune in Chicago, of the Evening Post in New York, of the Transcript in Boston, of the Constitution in Atlanta, of the Courier-Journal in Louisville. The Los Angeles Times is not a popular newspaper, in the sense that everybody approves it at all times, or that everybody likes the color of its editor's hair. You don't need to go far in Los Angeles to find men who don't like The Times, men who denounce it as opinionated, obstinate, partisan, etc. Say so where you will, ask whom-ever you will, and you will find no man to say of The Times that it is faithless as a newspaper, that it is a bearer of false lights, that it panders to sensationalism, that it corrupts youth, that it knuckles under to influence, that it cowers to the mob. The Times conceives the duties and responsibilities of journalism in accordance with time-honored standards—the standards of Horace Greeley, of Samuel Bowles, of Henry J. Raymond, of Lawrence Godkin, of Harvey W. Scott, of Henry L. Pittock, of Edward Haldeman, of Henry Watterson, of George Jones, of Joseph Medill, of Adolph Ochs. Harrison Gray Otis, editor of the Los Angeles Times, is of this high breed. He belongs to it by identity of brains and moral courage; and what the man is, The Times is. Gen. Otis has some whims and some hobbies—there are many in Los Angeles who will tell you that he has too many. On the contrary, he aims to be, and is conceded by those who know him best, to be eminently level-headed.—The Times.] First and foremost among his fixed ideas is a respect and a veneration, indeed, almost an idolatry for the principle that "every citizen has the lawful right to pursue, unhampered and undisturbed, any lawful occupation of his choice in a lawful way, and to be protected in that right by the whole power of the State and of the nation, if need be."

Gen. Otis's fight for industrial freedom in Los Angeles has been no holiday affair; it did not come to its finish in a single round. It has been attended by every species of difficulty and moral trial that interest and malice could devise; it has struck far and wide in the social and political life of Southern California—and elsewhere—and it has made scars which perhaps nothing but the progress of time with the amnesty of a thousand funerals can wipe out. But out of it all there has come a consequence so vast and so beneficent as to have made the work of Harrison Gray Otis, in one corner of our great country, in a new and relatively limited field, one of the fixed stars of journalistic achievement in America. To have given to one city the tradition of industrial freedom, to have made a pattern for all other American communities, to have set up a beacon light to the journalism of today and of the future—this is truly an achievement of tremendous significance and of imperishable distinction.

The unique and victorious fight of the Los Angeles Times for industrial freedom, for its rights under the Constitution and the law, had its inception on August 5, 1890. The struggle continued for sixteen and a third years; it continues today, in the sense that The Times still wears its armor and carries its sword in hand, meeting every suggestion of aggression, whether related to itself or to anybody else, in the old spirit and with the old valor. In August, 1890, when business conditions in Los Angeles were at the lowest ebb of depression, a demand was made upon the four newspapers then published there that they enter into an agreement to give to the typographical union a monopoly of employment with acceptance of men provided by the union, irrespective of personal merit or of workmanlike performance, to the exclusion of all other workmen in the same line, however superior in all respects they might be. It was a demand for the closed shop, long before that offensive term was invented. No question of wages or hours was involved in this demand, since then as now the highest rates were paid in the printing trades. The strike was called upon one day's notice upon all four of the Los Angeles daily newspapers and at the same hour. Three of them made a brief stand for freedom; one surrendered to the strikers at the end of three days; a second succumbed a little later; the third held out for about two months. The Times stood alone and stood firm, and it has been standing ever since. After a little time there was a lull in the fight, but in 1903 it was resumed with increased vigor and with unexampled bitterness. It was taken up in sympathy by all the labor union organizations in Los Angeles and by the labor-union leaders all over the United States. For sixteen years and four months everything that could be done against The Times, at home and abroad, by the malice of organized labor, was done persistently and bitterly. To carry on this warfare organized labor taxed its votaries to the amount of about $25,000 per year. In one campaign $40,000 was expended by the unionists. The Times never weakened, even though there were weeks and months when its publication and printing offices were maintained as barracks. [Not exactly, but nearly true.—H. G. O.] In all the years of conflict The Times never ceased to fight aggressively and stubbornly, not only for its own right to conduct its business in its own way, but for the right of every other interest and every citizen to do the same. And in the face of this controversy and in despite of every effort of its adversaries, it built up a commercial business and a moral influence which stand unparalleled in the journalism of the country. Organized labor has thrown up the sponge; it no longer seeks to maintain the conflict; it has withdrawn its boycotts. The Times has yielded nothing. It stands where it stood at the beginning; in season and out of season it maintains the principle of the lawful right of every citizen to pursue undisturbed and unhampered any lawful occupation of his choice.

I had this morning a long and most interesting talk with the grizzled hero of this long fight in his beautiful home—"The Bivouac"—opposite Westlake Park. Gen. Otis is no longer young, he crossed the seventy line in February last, but in body and mind he illustrates the vital value of persistent physical and mental activity. He is firm on his feet, he looks clearly out of his eyes, his voice is as clear as that of the average man of fifty. He has ceased himself a little of late. He goes to his office later and comes home earlier than in his more strenuous days. But even when he rests he does it in his own way. I found him in a spacious "den," furnished with trophies of his career in journalism and in war, dictating an address which he was good enough to finish up rather hurriedly and to give me leave to print in the Argonaut. It will be found elsewhere in this number, and it may be taken as a message from Gen. Otis to the people of San Francisco in this desperate crisis of their affairs. It is worth the reading of every citizen. Indeed, we shall do well if we take it as a bugle note, as a call to arms in the fight for liberty, for the integrity of the Constitution and the law.

Gen. Otis received me with courtesy, and talked with absolute freedom when I asked him, as I had already asked others, to explain the exemption of Los Angeles from the blight of labor unionism. It is, he said, due to the universal respect here for the principle of industrial freedom. Many, he said, have assumed because Los Angeles is free from labor troubles, that there has been no serious effort to make trouble. There has been here as elsewhere, he said, extreme pretensions, backed by the grossest spirit of aggression. There have been many attempts, in various interests and at many times. There have been strikes and boycotts without number, ending always in failure and generally within two to ten days. In instances there have been running fights covering a period of many years, but in every case the outcome has been the same. Passing lightly over the experience of The Times, he pointed out that for eleven years the firm of Hamburger and Sons, the biggest department store in town, was under boycott for the crime of advertising in The Times. The Hamburgers stood by their guns, never accepted dictation, never ceased to keep out to renew their contracts with The Times. "You may have noticed," added the veteran, with a touch of pardonable pride, "that splendid steel structure going up [on Eighth and Broadway, six stories] with a floor space of something like twenty-five acres—that building is for the Hamburgers. You see what the fight did for them."

"Our people," added Gen. Otis, "deserve an immense amount of credit for their firmness in these matters." I suggested to him that they had been carefully educated. He replied that that was so, but that they had had a splendid capacity to assimilate education and to build up community character upon sound lines. The Times, he said, had fought its battle for liberty and law with a logic which could not be resisted, and which had become absorbed and fixed in the very fiber of the community. The walking delegate system, he pointed out, was an exceedingly effective one where employers are not armed to meet it. It literally talks the life out of the individual employer when he is left to stand alone. The chief service of The Times, he said, had been to arm the public with arguments, to meet the walking delegate with a knowledge as complete as his own and with a spirit quite as valiant. It has enabled them to knock out the ignorance, the fallacy and the dishonesty of unionism at the points of its unwarranted pretensions. The Times had been a factor in the fight because it had furnished the powder and the shot, and had stiffened the backbone in those to whom these resources were given. The ridiculous part of the whole business, he said, rests upon the fact that unionized labor is only a pitiful minority of the labor element of the country—less than 15 per cent. all told. There is never anywhere, or at any time, he said, an instance where employers may not win if they will be just and honest, if they will take the pains to be informed, and if they will work in decent respect of and for each other. Speaking of his own long fight, Gen. Otis said he had never attacked labor because it was organized, he had never lifted hand or pen against it except where it was lawless.

The talk turned to San Francisco, and here Gen. Otis spoke with sympathy and emphasis. I hope, he said, your people will not think of any compromise, for there is no possible compromise, with honor. I pass over all questions of hours and wages, all minor and temporary issues, to the essential principle. You must maintain the lawful right of every citizen to pursue undisturbed and unhampered any lawful occupation of his choice in a lawful way. You must not allow that any citizen must seek the consent of an irresponsible union, to which he must submit and pay taxes, in the form of dues, before he can have the privilege of earning his living. You, he said, have put it straight in the Argonaut; I have never seen it put straighter or more forcibly anywhere. You have pointed out the line of responsibility and duty to your people. It remains for them to accept the lesson, to cast off a tyranny which is oppressing and dragging down your city, to reëstablish credit, and restore prosperity, by hanging out the sign of the "open shop"—by asserting and enforcing the right of every man to pursue undisturbed and unhampered any lawful work of his choice in any lawful way. It was with this utterance ringing in my ears that I said good-by to the grizzled old hero.

GENOA BOURSE DISTURBED.

NEW YORK, June 7.—According to private advices received in the financial district the panic in the Bourse in Genoa, Italy, began with the preparations for May settlement when a serious break occurred in securities of the Ramifera, an incorporated association of the copper industry of Italy. The decline in the securities of this association was particularly severe as may be judged from the quotations reported by Il Secolo XIX of Genoa of May 26 last, the newspaper of latest date received in this city. On May 25 Ramifera declined from 1305 to 1282 lire. The settlement has not yet been effected, according to the latest advices, and the excitement runs high.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

UNTO THE LEAST.

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer-meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies for June 9: "How to Help Those Younger Than We Are."—[Matt. xviii, 1-16.

By William T. Ellis.

Innocence and childhood are sacred. The sower who casts in the seed, the parent or teacher casting in the fruitful word, are accomplishing a pontifical act and ought to perform it with religious awe, with prayers and gravity, for they are laboring in the kingdom of God.—[Amiel.

Christ would still seek the lost, but he must do it now on our feet; he would still minister, but he must do it with our hands; he would still warn and comfort and encourage and instruct, but he must do it with our lips.—[Joseph Strong.

"Dream not of noble services elsewhere wrought;
The simple duty that awaits thy hand
Is God's voice uttering a divine command;
Life's common deeds build all that saints have thought."

O lead me, Lord, that I may lead
The wandering and the wavering feet;
O feed me, Lord, that I may feed
Thy hungering ones with manna sweet.

O strengthen me, that while I stand
Firm on the Rock and strong in Thee,
I may stretch out a loving hand
—[Frances R. Havergal.

To be a strong hand in the dark to another in the time of need, to be a cup of strength to a human soul in a crisis of weakness, is to know the glory of life.—[Hugh Black.

Where poverty in pain must lie,
Where little children suffering cry,
Bid us haste forth as called by Thee,
And in Thy poor Thyself to see.
—[Emily Vernon Clark.

O Master, let me walk with Thee
In lowly paths of service free;
Teach me Thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.
—[Washington Gladden.

A boy was there, with a few barley cakes and small fishes, which his foresight had brought for his ever-recurring condition. He gave them up—I do not know why, except that he was a boy—and in the Lord's hands they became a feast, and more. It is true still; the boy holds the loaves. By his wealth and his consent the world is to be fed.—[Alexander McKenzie.

"Out of the very life of each
Must come the power to heal or teach,
That which helps thee has power again
To help the souls of other men."
To sacrifice, to share;
To give, even as He gave;
For others' wants to care;
Not our own lives to save.
—[Lucy Larcom.

"Do not be discouraged if you cannot talk religion, but look to it that it is the strong current of your life; that it guides you, and, through you, your children. If this be so, the fruit you bear may be small, but it shall be perfect and sweet of its kind, and steadily, year by year, the harvest will increase."

"Strong Christophers there are that daily stem, with others' burdens, life's exhausting flood; who, serving well the human brotherhood, unknowing, bear the very Christ with them."

Father of all men, lead me into the secret places of that great name. May the love that is in it lead me into the brotherliness! May I not call Thee Father and yet not be a brother. Because Thou art our Father, lift me into the spirit of loving kinship—[Jowett.

AT LIFE'S BEGINNING.

Five Young Women Receive Diplomas at Huntington Hall After Impressive Exercises.

The flower-banked portico at Huntington Hall and the velvety lawn at the side of the building made a beautiful setting for the graduation exercises of that institution, which were held yesterday afternoon.

Guests and friends were seated upon the lawn, while the five girl graduates and those who took part in the programme were on the portico.

Rev. Dr. Pierce offered the invocation, and then the vocal instructor, Miss Marthine Dietrichson, sang delightfully. The address of the afternoon was delivered by Rev. Baker P. Lee. His Subject was "Character Building," and he referred to the influence of women as one of the greatest factors to be reckoned with on earth. He pronounced an eloquent eulogy on the Book of Books and advised the young women to make it their guide and familiar friend.

The address was followed by a solemn and sweet ceremony, consisting of responsive reading from the Episcopal Prayer Book.

LEAVES JOB VACANT.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Indications are that the vacancy in the Isthmian Canal Commission caused by the early retirement of Purchasing Agent Ross will not be filled. Secretary Taft is considering a proposition, which is believed to be strongly supported by Col. Goethals, president of the commission, to transfer to Gen. MacKenzie, chief of engineers, the responsibility for the purchase of all materials, save food and hospital supplies, needed for the prosecution of the canal work.

LODZ IS TERRIFIED.

LODZ (Russian Poland) June 7.—There has been another reign of terror and violence in this city since June 2. Eleven persons have been killed, including two mill owners, and thirty-seven have been wounded. The workmen have formed a secret vigilance committee, which every night executes one or more bandits or terrorists. The corpses are left on the street and to the lips of the dead men are pinned pieces of paper setting forth the exact reasons for the execution.

VOTE WITHHEL

IN ORDER to insure a record-breaking vote on the Owens River bond issue, the Campaign Committee needs more vehicles for the use of precinct workers, who have volunteered to see that voters get to the polls. Although more than one hundred automobiles and other vehicles have been placed at the disposal of the committee, about as many more will be required. There are 142 precincts to be covered, the distances are great, and there are many voters to be looked up and brought to the polls. Citizens owning automobiles or carriages, who are willing to permit their use for the good of the city on Wednesday, June 12, are urged to call at the Campaign Committee rooms, Chamber of Commerce, or to telephone their willingness. The Campaign Committee's telephone numbers are Main 4774, Main 4775, A4778, A4951.

APPEAL TO CITIZENS.

Secretary M. Lissner of the Campaign Committee said last evening:

"We simply must have more automobiles and carriages for the election day work. Everything in the situation seems to indicate the success of the bond issue. But it is of the highest importance that we get every available vote to the polls. We want to break the voting record in carrying the bond issue, to serve notice on the world of our progressive spirit and the capacity as a community. More than this, it means dollars and cents to the citizens and taxpayers in the sale of the bonds, to have them carry by such a majority as to show that the people are solidly behind the great enterprise. The campaign, in fact, now resolves itself into a matter of getting out the vote. It is the plain duty of every loyal citizen of Los Angeles to cast his ballot next Wednesday. It is our duty to aid to the utmost of our ability in giving every voter, even to the busiest and hardest worked, the chance to cast his vote.

"For this work we need vehicles, more than anything else, and I ask during these last few days, that loyal citizens will call or telephone of their willingness to supply automobile or carriage on election day. This is the best way to give practical aid to the bonds now. Your action will mean votes and prosperity for all."

MASS MEETINGS.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, in Turner Hall, Second and Main streets, will be held the first of the two big mass meetings of the Owens River bond campaign.

This is the first downtown meeting of the Owens River Campaign Committee, and there will be addresses by speakers. Ex-Mayor M. P. Snyder will preside as chairman of the meeting, and Mayor A. C. Harper will read his chief address of the campaign. Chief Engineer William Mulholland and Assistant Chief Engineer J. B. Lippincott each will speak on the features of the great aqueduct project, their remarks being illustrated with moving pictures, stereopticon views, maps and charts. Geographies will present the layman's view of the crucial bond election to be held on Wednesday. A tremendous crowd is expected at this Turner Hall meeting tonight. The doors will be thrown open at 7:15 o'clock and the meeting will open at 8 o'clock sharp.

The final big rally of the campaign will be held in Simpson Auditorium, Hope street, near Seventh, on Monday evening, when Rev. Dr. P. Lee will preside, and the speakers will include Mayor Harper, Mr. Mulholland and Engineers Mulholland and Lippincott.

The big noonday meeting for tomorrow will be held at the Lacy Tabernacle, on North Main street, at 12 o'clock a.m. today, when voters will assemble from all the shops of the neighborhood and listen to an address by Chief Engineer Mulholland.

MINISTERS WILL AID.

Sunday Will Be Owens River Day in the Churches of This City.

Tomorrow will be "Owens River day" in the churches, when scores of clergymen will add the vital cause of water to the votegs of their congregations to cast their ballots for the Owens River bonds on Wednesday.

The ministers, following out the pledge of the Ministerial Union to put forth every effort for the successful water-bond issue, have now, in the name of the Campaign Committee at the Chamber of Commerce that they will support the aqueduct project, deeming such action not only proper, but a duty of loyal citizenship.

Rev. Dr. William Horace Day, pastor of the First Congregational Church, put it yesterday:

"I shall make the Owens River project the subject of a talk to my congregation next Sunday evening, for I cannot think of any better one at this time. I have been heartily in favor of the Owens River project ever since it was explained to me by Mr. Mulholland years ago. I have never had any reason to change my original opinion that it is a splendid move for Los Angeles. On the contrary it is my belief that the success of the enterprise is vital to the welfare of our whole city."

The most response of the ministry to the appeal for volunteer helpers in the campaign movement for more water was one of the most striking instances of the general support of the people for the $23,000,000 bond issue.

Many of the ministers, who have volunteered to aid the cause either by addressing the pulpit or in personal work among the voters of their congregations, is a long one. Among the ministers who have notified the Campaign Committee of their helpful action are the following: C. T. Scholz, Evangelical; J. W. Thursby, Ascension; R. A. Henek, H. H. Anderson, Second (colored); A. Jackson, Highland Park Methodist; L. Martin, Boyle Heights Methodist; W. H. Peck, First Methodist; William Davies, Vernon; Thomas Day, First Congregational; F. Lee, Christ Church; R. Hall, St. Luke's; J. J. Wilkins, St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral; Clifford N. Carter, Congregational; Isidore Myers, Pro-Congregational; Isidore Myers, Congregation Beth Israel; Sigmund Hecht (rabbi), Congregation B'nai B'rith synagogue; A. Atkinson (presiding elder); G. L. Trew, All Saints' Episcopal; C. Marshall, Church of the Nazarene; Lewis G. Morris, St. Paul's; J. T. Price, Brooklyn Methodist; W. Forbes, East Los Angeles Presbyterian; Clatworthy, George A. Hubbard avenue; W. F. Taylor, M.E.; Robert McIntosh, M.E.; John Nicholson, Garvanza; D. Kamp, German Methodist; Miller, Hazen M.E.;

This is the best way to give practical aid to the bonds now. Your vote means votes and prosperity for Los Angeles."

MASS MEETINGS.

At 8 o'clock, in Turner Hall, Spring and Main streets, will be held the first of the two big mass meetings of the Owens River bond campaign. At the first downtown meeting of the Owens River Campaign Committee, and there will be addresses by speakers. Ex-Mayor M. P. Snyder will preside as chairman of the meeting, and Mayor A. C. Harper will make his chief address of the evening. Chief Engineer William Mulholland and Assistant Chief Engineer J. B. Lippincott each will speak on the features of the great aqueduct, their remarks being illustrated with moving pictures, stereopticon views, maps and charts. Gesford Hall will present the layman's view of the crucial bond election to be held on Wednesday. A tremendous crowd is expected at this Turner Hall meeting tonight. The doors will be thrown open at 7:15 o'clock and the meeting will open at 8 o'clock sharp.

The big rally of the campaign will be held in Simpson Auditorium, Hill street, near Seventh, at 8 o'clock Monday evening, when Rev. Dr. Dennis Lee will preside, and the speakers will include Mayor Harper, Chief Engineer and Engineers Mulholland and Lippincott.

The Monday noonday meeting for workers will be held at the Lacy tabernacle on North Main street, at 12 o'clock a.m. today, where voters gathered from all the shops of the neighborhood and listen to an address by Chief Engineer Mulholland.

MINISTERS WILL AID.

Sunday Will Be Owens River Day in Many Churches of This City.

Sunday will be "Owens River day" in many churches, when scores of clergymen will tell the vital cause of water from the pulpits and urge the voters of their congregations to cast their ballots for the Owens River bonds on Wednesday.

The pastors, following out the suggestion of the Ministerial Union to make every effort for the success of the water-bond issue, have no-tified the Campaign Committee at the Chamber of Commerce that they will preach the aqueduct project, deem-ing it a moral action not only proper, but the duty of loyal citizenship.

Dr. William Horace Day, pastor of the First Congregational Church, said yesterday:

"I will talk the Owens River project for half an hour at a talk to my congregation next Sunday evening, for I cannot conceive of any better one at this time. I shall speak heartily in favor of the bonds. This project ever since it was first presented to me by Mr. Mulholland years ago. I have never had any reason to change my original opinion. It is a splendid move for Los Angeles, and on the contrary it is my belief that the success of the enterprise is vital to the welfare of our city."

In response of the ministry to the call for volunteer helpers in the movement for more water one of the most striking instances of the general support of the people for the bond issue, the following pastors, who have volunteered to aid the cause either by addressing the pulpit or in personal work among the voters of their congregations, is a long one. Among the pastors who have notified the Campaign Committee of their helpful attitude are the following: C. T. Scholz, Temple Baptist; J. W. Thursby, Ascension; R. A. Heneck, Trinity; E. Anderson, Second (colored); Jackson, Highland Park Methodist; Martin, Boyle Heights, Methodist; W. H. Peck, First Methodist; William Davies, Vernon; Day, First Congregational; F. Lee, Christ Church; R. Bell, St. Luke's; J. J. Wilkins, Pro-Cathedral; Clifford N. Tyler, Congregational; Isidore Myers, Congregation Beth Israel; Sigmund Hecht (rabbi), B'nai B'rith synagogue; Atkinson (presiding elder), G. L. Trew, All Saints' Church; Marshall, Church of the Messiah; Lewis G. Morris, St. Paul's; J. T. Price, Brooklyn Methodist; Forbes, East Los Angeles Methodist; Chatworthy, George A. Gordon, Second avenue; W. F. Taylor, M.E.; Robert McIntyre, M.E.; John Nicholson, Garvanza; D. Kamp, German Methodist; Miller, Haven M.E.; B. F. Coulter, Broadway; D. B. Loofborrow, Pico Heights M.E.; W. A. Jackson, Church of Redeemer; D. A. Mata, Spanish Presbyterian.

TIME TO VOTE.

Business Houses Urged by the Mayor to Close on Election Morning of Wednesday.

General closing of offices and business houses until 10 o'clock a.m. and of shops and factories until 9 o'clock a.m. on the morning of election day is being urged by the Campaign Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to emphasize the importance of the water bonds and permit the working men as well as the employers to get to the polls and vote early.

There has been a good response from the business community to the closing-up appeal of the Campaign Committee, and indications are that the friends of Owens River will do nothing during the early hours next Wednesday but vote and work for the success of the bond issue.

Mayor Harper has been particularly eager to secure the general closing of business houses on election day morning, in order to give the working people ample opportunity to express their will.

The Mayor yesterday issued this second proclamation:

TO THE BUSINESS MEN AND EMPLOYERS OF LOS ANGELES:

The Owens River Campaign Committee is striving, for the good of the aqueduct project, to secure the general closing of business houses until 10 o'clock a.m. and the factories and shops until 9 o'clock a.m. on the morning of election day, Wednesday, June 12.

This movement, if generally successful, I believe will add greatly to the total number of votes cast on the $23,000,000 water bond issue, and as it is of first importance that a full expression of the people's will be secured, and that the ratification of the bonds be made by a large overwhelming majority, I urge all business houses to close up as requested.

The adoption of the bond issue by this much-to-be-desired overwhelming majority depends mostly upon the plain people who work for their living getting to the polls, and the working men will surely perform this duty of citizenship almost to a man if they are given a fair opportunity.

Therefore, I respectfully urge once more upon the business community the general acceptance, both by large firms and by small, of the Campaign Committee's programme for a complete cessation of business activity until 9 o'clock a.m. and 10 o'clock a.m.

A. C. HARPER.

PLEDGED TO CLOSE.

Pledges to close until 10 o'clock a.m. on election day, circulated by representatives of the Campaign Committee yesterday for the first time, met with hearty responses.

The roll of merchants who were the first to agree to close bears the names of the following firms:

J. W. Robinson Co., Boston Dry Goods Store, C. M. Staub Shoe Co., Jacoby Bros., S. Nordlinger & Sons, Cunningham, Curtis & Welch Co., New York Store, F. B. Silverwood, Lyon-McKinney-Smith Co., Llewellyn Iron Works, Commercial Engine Co., Fulton Engine Works, Thompson & Boyle Co., Johnson Foundry and Machine Works, Stearns Gas Engine Works, Acme Brass Foundry Co., Vulcan Iron and Tool Works, Lacy Manufacturing Co., Bishop & Co., Globe Iron Works, Los Angeles Engine Works, J. L. Berry Supply Co., Wood Brothers, Harris & Frank, C. C. Desmond, California Cornice Works, Dixon Machine Works, F. W. Braun Co., Axelson Machine Co., Baker Iron Works, Luitweiler Pumping Engine Co., Maine Machine Works, Keating & Ogle Burner Co., A. Peasley Plumbing Co., A. J. Koll Planing Mill Co., Harrison Machine Works.

The Campaign Committee urges all business houses willing to close until 10 o'clock a.m. on election day as requested, to telephone such information to the headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce, as it will be impracticable to reach all houses with the agreements now being signed.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Pico Heights Civic Federation Thursday afternoon, a resolution was unanimously adopted, indorsing the Owens River bonds, and promising energetic work for them in every way possible.

SHE LOSES FIVE RELATIVES.

While Woman Lies Unconscious Her Father, Sister, Grandmother and Two Others Die.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, June 7.—If Mrs. Jennie Danks recovers from the critical illness in which she lies in ignorance of what has happened about her, she will awake to find three near relatives dead, who were alive and well at the beginning of her illness. Her father, Eugene A. Sittig, a prominent German business man of the city, the fifth to die in fourteen days, died yesterday of pneumonia.

In six weeks six members of the family have died—Mr. Sittig's mother, one of his daughters, a cousin, a daughter-in-law, a sister-in-law and Mr. Sittig himself.

Mrs. Danks, the surviving daughter, knows her grandmother is dead, but not that her father, sister and other relatives have died of the same disease with which she is struggling.

With six members of the family ill at the same time, and with death succeeding death, and funeral succeeding funeral, the survivors were not allowed to know that one by one the number of the living was being decreased.

MOTHER BEAR STOPS TRAINS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

OGDEN (Utah) June 7.—A mother bear in quest of her young yesterday tied up the Kemmerer division of the Union Pacific Railroad system. Incidentally she kept two operators at Bryan, Wyo., prisoners in their sleeping apartments for hours, while angry train men swore at having to stop at a place where stops were not scheduled.

A newly-arrived telegrapher foolishly invested in two cubs—the offspring of the mother who for days had hunted high and low for her children. As a last hope, she peeped into the bunkhouse of the operators, who fortunately had seen her coming, and at a lively rate had proceeded to bar the door which led into the station. Mother bear growled a little but seemed content to wait, evidently not thinking that a great railroad might need the assistance of the operators in pushing transcontinental trains through.

A freight train crew, not seeing the semaphore in place, started to investigate. They found the operators waiting to be rescued. With the assistance of 300 Greeks, who were in work cars up the road a short distance away, the mother bear was driven off after she had disarranged the schedule of Mr. Harriman's railroad for hundreds of miles east and west.

RULES AGAINST STANDARD.

Minnesota Court Upholds Government in Suit to Dissolve Oil Syndicate Merger.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PAUL (Minn.) June 7.—The United States Circuit Court today overruled the exceptions to the bill of complaint of the United States against the Standard Oil Company and the defendant is granted leave to answer as to portions of the bill to which it has filed exceptions.

The overruling of the company's bill of exceptions to the petitions of the government's complaint that the Standard Oil Company is a trust, conspiring and operating in restraint of trade, is a first victory for the government.

The government by today's decision has opportunity to bring evidence tending to show that the present Standard Oil holding corporation is but a continuance of the previous trust combination which existed from 1882 to 1899.

UHRIG'S CAVE ROOF FALLS.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—A portion of Washington avenue dropped twelve feet below the surface this morning, by the collapsing of the roof of one of the natural underground passages known as "Uhrig's Cave." It is feared that the surrounding buildings may sink.

BEVERLY HILLS

"Between the City and the Sea"

There's ONE Section Where Things Are Simply Humming

The tap of the hammer, the song of the saw, the clatter of lumber—activity seems in the very air at Beverly Hills.

Building! Building! Building! Our building department is fairly snowed under getting out plans for beautiful new homes and handling the construction work of those already commenced.

When you visit Beverly Hills let us take you for a spin to the nurseries and show you the thousands of young shrubs and flowers that are being cultivated for the lawns and parks.

Some day when your nerves feel worn out with the crash of city traffic, the dust, crowds and "shop worn" look that is bound to creep over city property—take a ride out to fresh, airy, clean, immaculate Beverly Hills.

Let your eyes feast on the wide expanse of dustless, taintless avenues with cool, green lawns here and there.

Come and see just what Beverly Hills offers to home builders in the way of advantages and attractions.

You can feel assured of one thing; Beverly Hills is going to be even more beautiful than was first anticipated. Realize that if not another home was built except the ones already assured, Beverly Hills would be comparatively well occupied.

This phenomenal record in so short a period suggests what the future will bring forth.

Country places of 2 to 5 acres and large building lots. Prices and terms have never yet failed to interest a builder who has serious intentions.

DEAD WOMAN'S PAST CRIMSON WITH GORE.

"Olga Miller," Whose Life Went Out Here in Mystery, Is Identified as Bertha Beilstein, Notorious Murderess of Pittsburgh.

BERTHA BEILSTEIN, noted matricide and fugitive from Dixmont Asylum for the Criminal Insane in Pittsburgh, Pa., lies dead in the receiving vault in Evergreen Cemetery and the mystery that surrounds her startling escape from the asylum and the consequent scandal that rocked the Keystone State is partially cleared.

Instead of "Olga Miller," an ordinary drab, who died in convulsions at the County Hospital, May 21, it was discovered yesterday that the woman, masquerading under the name of Mrs. Olga Miller or Mrs. Wilson, was no other than the notorious criminal, Bertha Beilstein, who, in 1898, murdered in cold blood her mother, Mrs. John Frederick Beilstein, in Allegheny, Pa., and who is thought guilty of murdering her father, a Councilman of the city of Allegheny, one year before.

The discovery was made after three weeks of waiting by finding three horrible wounds on the woman's head and body, which were inflicted by herself in an attempt at self destruction following the murder of her mother. The wounds, a bullet-hole in the left side of the skull, a deep fracture on the right side and a bullet-hole one inch below the heart, tallied exactly with the self-inflicted wounds of the Beilstein girl. In a trice the truth was known, that the notorious Bertha Beilstein, murderess and escaped lunatic, wanted by Pittsburgh authorities, had at last been found.

"OLGA MILLER'S" DEATH.

It will be remembered that the girl known as Olga Miller became ill in the Royal Hotel on Main street about May 18, and was taken to the County Hospital by a man named Hardin, Hardin visited the girl regularly and on May 21 called and gave her a glass of milk. Half an hour afterward she died in violent convulsions. Then Hardin was arrested and held pending the Coroner's inquest. It was ascertained that the stomach of the woman contained nothing that would have caused death and Hardin was released. The body was placed in charge of Pierce brothers, undertakers, and the incident was considered closed.

Then from far across the continent came a message from a newspaper man, inquiring if a woman named Olga Miller had died recently and if she had a wound on either side of her head and one on her breast. This was the entering wedge. In the cursory examination made by the authorities these wounds, were noted, but were deemed of no importance. The answer was sent back that the three wounds were found as described.

Yesterday Clerk McGill of the health department received a telegram from Frederick Beilstein, Jr., at Chicago, saying merely that Olga Miller was Bertha Beilstein, and to hold the body, as he was coming to claim it. Not one word had been heard from this brother concerning the death of his notorious sister until the truth became known through other sources. Now preparations are being made to send the remains of the insane criminal back to Allegheny City, where she will be buried beside her murdered mother and father.

RUNS RED WITH BLOOD.

The story of the life of Bertha Beilstein runs red with blood of murdered victims and suicides, with at least one scandal thrown in as extra.

She was born in Allegheny, Pa., about thirty years ago. Her father was John Frederick Beilstein, a wealthy German resident of Allegheny. He was elected to serve in the Select Council of the city from the Eighth Ward. Bertha was a decided blonde of great beauty. She was morbid at times and ran to excesses. On the night of October 2, 1898, she shot her mother three times and took a hatchet and hacked the body almost to pieces. Her mother had retired early to her bedroom and Bertha remained up. She waited until her mother was asleep and then deliberately entered her bedroom and shot her to death. Then she secured a hatchet and hacked the body.

Afterward she walked the floor for hours, when a cloud seemed to leave her mind and she saw what she had wrought. She seized the same revolver and sent a bullet crashing into her skull just to the left of the temple. She fell to the floor and struck her head on the point of a piece of furniture. She lay there for hours—her murdered mother on the bed and the daughter unconscious on the floor. Then she regained consciousness and, raising herself, saw the bloody body of her parent on the bed. She seized the revolver again and sent a bullet into her breast over her heart.

MOTHER DEAD, GIRL ALIVE.

The next morning, neighbors discovered the daughter about dead and the cold body of the mother. The girl recovered, despite the terrible odds. She was tried for the murder of her mother and the trial was one of the most sensational of the decade. At the trial it was practically proved that the girl poisoned her father, who had died one year before under suspicious circumstances. She was adjudged insane and sentenced to imprisonment in the Dixmont Asylum for the Criminal Insane, located in the outskirts of Pittsburgh.

Shortly after the trial a brother, Edward Beilstein, unable longer to bear the horror of the whole affair, walked out to lonely Voegtley's cemeterly in Allegheny and committed suicide by drinking prussic acid. His body was not found for days.

David Reich, an uncle of the girl, who had made his home at the Beilstein residence for years, gave up the fight against the horrible stigma on the family and threw himself in front of an express train and was ground to death.

Bertha was a model patient at Dixmont. She was a beautiful young woman and won the admiration of several of the officials of the institution. She was given liberties that no other prisoner was allowed, and after a year or so the breath of scandal reached outside of the institution and gossip leaped from tongue to tongue of the beautiful Beilstein girl who seemed to have the run of Dixmont.

A few days after this the good people of Pittsburgh and Allegheny were startled to hear that Bertha had escaped from the asylum. No trace of her could be found. It was ascertained that the girl had left by a fire escape by night.

This caused a great commotion and the State of Pennsylvania took up the matter. It resulted only in two nurses being discharged and pressure being brought to bear to squelch the scandal.

ATTENDANT ALSO GOES.

At the same time the girl disappeared an attendant named Hardin was missing. No trace of him was found although the State authorities immediately connected his disappearance with that of the missing girl.

While the detectives were on the hunt for the girl a New York newspaper published the statement that "Bertha Beilstein" had sailed for Europe on a certain ship. This led the authorities in the wrong direction.

It is alleged that Frederick Beilstein, Jr., a brother, living in Chicago, and Edmund W. Wander of No. 544 Urling street, Chicago, harbored the girl after

CHAIN WIRED OVER RAILS.

Dastardly Attempt to Wreck the Shore Line Limited Train North.

Actuated by a fiendish desire to grind out human lives and destroy property, perhaps with the object of venting a grudge against the Southern Pacific, a dastardly wrecker made an attempt yesterday morning on the Shore Line Limited, No. 19, north-bound, near the place where the corresponding south-bound train was ditched at midnight three weeks ago with such disastrous results.

Yesterday's train was getting under good headway between Tropico and Burbank, when, rounding a curve, the engineer saw an obstruction ahead. It was too late to stop, but he slowed down. The locomotive gave a heavy lurch, and iron flew in all directions, but the wheels stayed on the track. As soon as the train stopped members of the crew and passengers rushed back and found that a heavy chain, such as are used with derricks for lifting débris after a wreck, had been placed across both rails and securely fixed in place with barbed wire.

Fortunately, No. 19's locomotive is particularly heavy, and its weight, coupled with the speed of the ponderous machine, had sufficed to break the links, which are three-quarters of an inch thick, scattering them by the roadbed. The chain had been in use while clearing the recent wreck at Glendale, and had been stolen from the company's stores and dragged a distance of half a mile.

Special instructions were sent yesterday to every terminal point on the coast division and handed to engineers on duty and in charge of locomotives running over the division, as follows: "On account of attempts to wreck trains, engineers will keep their locomotives under constant control and be on a constant watch for obstructions at facing points and at all obscure places."

COMBINING TO FIGHT PEST.

CONSTERNATION OVER FINDING WHITE FLY IN STATE.

Government, County and State Horticulturists Will Take Concerted Action to Destroy Ategredes Citsi. Southern Citrus Belts May Declare Quarantine Against Yuba County.

"Ategredes citsi," which, being interpreted into plain English, means the white fly, has reached California from the orange groves of Florida, and there is consternation among the citrus fruit growers.

County Horticultural Commissioners Meserve, Jeffrey and Dingel yesterday petitioned the State Horticultural Commissioner, Elwood Cooper, to declare a quarantine for Los Angeles county against the county of Yuba, where the destructive Florida parasite has been discovered.

It is likely that this action will be followed by similar requests from the Horticultural Commissioners of Riverside, Orange, San Bernardino and San Diego counties. Every precaution is to be taken to prevent the "ategredes citsi" from gaining a foothold in this great citrus belt.

A meeting of the Los Angeles county Horticultural Commission is to be held this forenoon, at which inspectors are to be instructed as to special measures for the protection of local orange groves.

The white fly was first discovered in the city of Marysville, Yuba county. Although Marysville is the home of one of the Horticultural Commissioners of that county, the pest was not recognized until it had spread so that at the present time it is declared that there are fully 1000 citrus trees in Yuba county affected by the parasite.

Various orange groves around Marysville have been infested by the pest, and the gravity of the situation is such that Horticultural Commissioner F. W. Harney has enlisted the assistance of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Horticultural Commission.

This pest is ordinarily about the size of a common pin head. It covers the back of the leaves on citrus trees, reaches down the stems to the fruit, and sometimes covers a considerable portion of the fruit itself.

Only once has its presence been detected in Los Angeles county. About eight months ago a shipment of trees from the South was intercepted by Commissioner Jeffrey, as some of the "ategredes citsi" were discovered on them. The whole shipment was bundled into the furnace at the engine-room of the Courthouse.

It is the belief of the Los Angeles Horticultural Commissioners that the spread of the white fly throughout Southern California can be prevented.

OCCIDENTAL RECEPTION.

Merry students and their friends thronged the library building of Occidental College last night at the president's reception in honor of the senior class. The main floor of the building was decorated with greens and large nets covered with red geraniums. President and Mrs. Baer, Dr. H. K. Walker, president of the board of trustees, and wife, and the members of the senior class received in one of the alcoves. Orchestral music was rendered, and refreshments were served. Tonight the school of music will give its annual recital in the Hall of Letters.

SWINDLER WATKINS WORKS LAND GRAFT.

Operating as the California Fruit Growers' Association He Ropes in Victims All Over Country With a Scheme at Rialto.

TAR and feathers, even if no worse, threaten to be the welcome extended to Ollie J. Watkins, of unsavory memory, in case he shows up in the neighborhood of Rialto, in San Bernardino county. In the parlance of the initiated, they are "onto" Ollie in that district, ignorant though they may be as to his previous condition of servitude and general all-around rascally character as a swindler and fisher after "suckers."

Take him from the ground up, Ollie J. Watkins deserves the admiration of every crook in the United States, and then some. As an organizer of shady "get-rich-quick" concerns he has proved to be the limit. Why, it is stated that Ollie even parted with his arm in the attempt to cheat an accident insurance company out of $5000. The story that he once told himself is that he deliberately let a car run over it and cut it off for the sake of the gold.

Unfortunately for the abbreviated victim of his own greed, the company not only refused to pay up, but actually had the man arrested on a charge of conspiring with himself to mulct the insurance people out of real money to pay for the arm he got rid of.

Just at present Watkins is the general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Association of Los Angeles, with swell offices in the Herman W. Hellman building. Naturally, some one has to pay the freight, and the result is that a howl is beginning to be heard from all parts of the country from victims of one of the "slickest" schemes which Ollie Watkins has ever "pulled off" during his wide career as a master faker.

WHO ARE WHO.

A man named Watson, with several letters before his name, was president until recently, but got out from under, and now James W. Lawrence, who was first vice-president, is the president of the California Fruit Growers' Association. H. E. Bassett has been the second vice-president, but it is not known whether he is still connected with the association or not. F. E. Peters is the secretary-treasurer.

But these people may be only victims, for Ollie J. Watkins is everything out of sight. In fact, there have been many changes in the list of officers and directors of the association, and nearly every time a victim calls at the high-toned office to inquire anxiously for the president, he finds some other figurehead in charge.

It is stated that President Lawrence has sold considerable land to the association. Whether he received any money for it is not known.

Up in San Bernardino and Rialto there is no mincing of words when Ollie J. Watkins and the California Fruit Growers' Association are spoken of, and the man and his association are denounced openly in the most scathing terms as a swindler and a blind to get poor people's money under false pretenses. The only thing people up there are surprised at is that any one having the faintest idea of the Watkins record would enter into a contract with him without the fullest investigation.

In the first place, the California Fruit Growers' Association claims to own about 7000 acres of orange-bearing land in the Rialto district of San Bernardino county. It was stated yesterday that the concern tried hard to raise barley on 5000 acres, but couldn't—that is, not to speak of.

VICTIMS KICKING.

Attorney Henry H. Roser of this city represents five victims of the association who are trying to get back the money they have been paying for alleged five-acre tracts of orange groves, bought under a curious contract which purports to sell them these five acres, but does not designate the land sold and besides expressly states that:

"It is hereby further agreed that nothing in the foregoing contract or conditions shall be construed as an agreement in any case to deliver the deed mentioned to the subscriber before seven years from the date hereof."

These five victims are Theodore H. Adamson, L. O. Baldwin, a nephew of E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin, owner of Baldwin's ranch and Arcadia; M. D. Preston, Roy Roby and K. Jozeposki. All of them have contributed to the support of the astute Watkins and now they are sorry.

Adamson has instructed Attorney Roser to bring suit in the Superior Court against the association either to get five acres of real land or to get his money back. Under pressure the association is said to have put in escrow with the Merchants' Trust Company of this city a "quit-claim" deed for Adamson, which is not worth the paper it is written upon.

No one knows this better than the officers of the Merchants' Trust Company, because the company holds two trust deeds to this same tract in which Adamson's alleged five acres is situated, one for $50,000 and one for $20,000. Besides this there are liens on this property said to amount to between $8000 and $10,000 for taxes and other expenses.

Adamson has paid in to the association $350 of his hard-earned money and he wants to know.

CANNOT GIVE TITLE.

The association refuses to give any certificate of title to any alleged purchaser of the land it claims to own, for a very good reason. One victim recently paid $20 to try and get a certificate at his own expense, only to learn that his title was only a bluff and that he really had no title. Another victim from Denver invested $500 first and investigated afterward. He quit right there and marked off the $500 to profit and loss on the experience side of the ledger.

Many years ago this tract was opened up by ex-Gov. Merrill of Iowa, who improved a small part of it. Then he died and the estate became mixed. It was later owned by the Semi-Tropic Land and Water Company, which mortgaged it to the San Francisco Savings Association and this association foreclosed the mortgage. Since then the titles are said to have become so mixed that no title company will give a certificate for any of it.

Up in San Bernardino, the county seat, it is stated that the whole tract is appraised at a valuation of about $100,000, and that possibly some of it is worth $45 an acre. The first contracts for the sale of the five-acre orange orchards is said to have been at $850, but this was so easy the association now charges $1500 for such a tract—deed in seven years.

In regard to this state of affairs President Lawrence is quoted as having stated recently to some of the Watkins victims that the association will be glad to take back the contracts—in about a month. Lawrence is also quoted as stating that the association is spending about $1000 a month on the tract for improvements and pay for a large force of men.

Investigation in San Bernardino and Rialto yesterday by a representative of Los Angeles victims, disclosed the fact that only a few men are employed there to gather a stunted crop of barley.

How much land Watkins sold, or how many times he sold it, is not known, but he has managed to get thousands of dollars out of the East, and a loud roar is coming from there. Exciting developments—at least for Watkins—are looked for in that quarter.

HIS FAKE SCHEMES.

The record of Ollie J. Watkins is almost duplicated in other "skin" schemes, some of which have led him to the bar of justice, and one to State's prison. It is not known as yet whether the United States postal laws have been violated in connection with the California Fruit Growers' Association or not, but certain statements are said to have been sent through the mails which might be as interesting to its officers as proved to be the case with Watkins in connection with the International Credit Company of Los Angeles about two years ago.

Ollie J. Watkins was the organizer and general manager of the International Credit Company, just as he is of the California Fruit Growers' Association, and of the American Loan and Trust Company, of which he is the president and whole thing.

The International Credit Company, with an alleged $100,000 capital, purported to sell a "merchandise contract," by which a victim paid $5 for the privilege of making a contract and agreeing to pay this company—otherwise Watkins—$1 a week for fifty-two consecutive weeks. At the end of this time the victim was to get a pure white diamond valued at $100 or else $100 in cash at the victim's option.

The bait took, in spite of the clause in the contract which stated that each victim was to get his diamond in rotation, according to the number of his contract.

FIND INDICTMENTS.

In July, 1904, the Federal grand jury found four indictments against O. J. Watkins on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud and of using the mails in aid of a lottery scheme.

The indictments to the charges were filed before Judge Wellborn in the United States District Court, and on September 7 Watkins was tried before a jury, which disagreed. On December 7, 1905, Watkins withdrew his plea of "not guilty," and entered a plea of "guilty" to the indictment, charging him with using the mails in aid of a lottery scheme. Judge Wellborn sentenced him to pay a fine of $250, and the other indictments were dismissed. Watkins paid.

"He, the said O. J. Watkins, then and there further intending as a part of the said scheme and artifice to defraud that whenever any payments of money should be made to the said company pursuant to the terms of the said contracts he would then and there collect and receive the money constituting said payments, and then and there appropriate the said moneys so paid and convert the same to his own use, and would not as general manager of the said company aforesaid or otherwise apply the said moneys or any part thereof to the uses and purposes set forth in the said contracts."

The officers at one time, of the International Credit Company, were Henry E. Kemp, president; W. C. Thompson, vice-president; R. M. Vail, secretary, and Hon. Hugh Percy, attorney. Watkins was general manager.

OTHER SCHEMES.

But the three companies named are only a few of the kind in which Watkins has been connected. The Wolverine Fruit Company was another, and Frank Giffin, a brave young man who put up the money to run the concern, suddenly found out that his money was gone and that Watkins had come out on top, while creditors attached the goods of the company which Giffin supposed he had paid for.

Then there was another deal up in Seattle which resulted in fifteen indictments, it is said, against Ollie, from which he escaped on a technicality. But he left Seattle.

But long before this Ollie J. Watkins lived in or near Detroit, Mich., and there he was arrested in 1894 on a charge of "Uttering and publishing a false, forged and counterfeited instrument," for which he was convicted on May 29, 1894, and of June 12, 1894, sentenced to three years in the State's prison at Jackson, Jackson county, Mich.

STUDENT'S SAD FATE.

Insane on Socialism and Mother Takes Him to Hospital—He Is Her Sole Support.

Fanatical ideas advanced by writers on Socialism made William McHale, a Berkeley student, insane and robbed his mother, Mrs. T. McHale of No. 1142 East Tenth street, of her only means of support. At the request of his mother, McHale was taken to the Receiving Hospital last night.

After McHale had finished the High School course here, he accepted a position as a brass polisher in a local foundry, and after a hard struggle accumulated sufficient means to go through college. He selected the University of California. He has been an exceptionally bright student, according to reports.

McHale became interested in Socialism, and gave much of his time to the study of it. Recently his health failed. Since he returned to his home, he has been showing signs of mental weakness.

Within the past two days he has at intervals been greatly excited, and medical attendance became necessary.

THIRSTY BURGLARS.

Burglars entered the home of R. S. Oxender at No. 510 South Los Angeles street last night. They used a pass key and, after gaining entrance, turned on the electric lights. They drank some liquor and then carried off a suit case and some clothing.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The University and Fifth Ward Improvement associations indorsed the plans of the Sixth District Agricultural Association, yesterday, for opening Agricultural Park as a public pleasure ground, and promised a cash donation of at least $10,000; it is proposed for the city to lease the property and maintain it as a city park.

Inspector Edwards of the department of street maintenance is working on an ordinance which will penalize truck companies for cutting up streets by sending out ten-ton loads on four-inch tires.

Engineers representing the city and the Los Angeles Railway Company are working on plans for a new city and railway bridge across the river at East Seventh street.

Testimony taken yesterday in the hearing of the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Mary Gamble in the Superior Court, to recover custody of her child, showed that her father had been impolite to her when she asked to take the baby to see a Fiesta parade.

Mrs. Flora Hilbish, yesterday in the Superior Court, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from the preacher-janitor, Tom Hilbish.

A petition for letters of administration of the estate of E. H. Conger was filed by the widow, yesterday. She urges haste, as money standing to the late Ambassador's credit at Washington cannot be secured unless application is made before a certain appropriation lapses.

M. L. Sherb, who was arrested on a charge of illegally selling drugs to a "dope fiend," contested the case, and the jury which tried him yesterday in the Police Court failed to agree. The case will be tried again next week.

Two convictions for cruelty to animals were secured against one of the dog catchers connected with the city pound, yesterday. The defendant will be sentenced this morning.

AT THE CITY HALL.

FIFTH WARD BEAUTY SPOT.

CASH DONATIONS PROMISED FOR AGRICULTURAL PARK.

Million-Dollar Site Soon to Be Opened as Public Pleasure Ground. Improvement Associations Indorse Action of City and State Boards. Must Keep Eye on Politicians.

Plans are maturing rapidly for opening and improving Agricultural Park as a public pleasure ground. Improvement associations representing the western part of the city visited the meeting of the Sixth District Agricultural Association yesterday afternoon and extended to the directors the assurance that they will be able to raise from $10,000 to $25,000 by popular subscription for improving the property as a city park.

For years the Fifth Ward has been struggling to secure a municipal plot that might be transformed into a handsome scenic park. Nothing has been accomplished for the reason that the city has been too hard pressed for cash to afford to pay the half million dollars needed to secure the kind of site desired.

Agricultural Park offers a solution to the vexed problem; the title is held in the name of the Sixth District Agricultural Association and must so remain "in perpetuity;" but it is held in trust to be used as a public pleasure ground and a place where agricultural and horticultural exhibitions may be held.

The directors of the State board present at yesterday's meeting were unanimous in their approval of the plan for the association and the city to improve the park jointly, and for the two to join in holding the agricultural exhibitions. A committee of directors is working with an architect on plans for the new Agricultural Park; the 100-acre tract is to be subdivided, laid out so as to provide grounds for baseball, football and tennis; there will be spaces for the use of the public school experiment stations in agriculture and horticulture; the fine speedway will be maintained and improved; and once a year there will be a general exhibition of California products.

Next Tuesday evening a mass meeting of Fifth Ward citizens will be held in the university chapel to discuss ways and means for the west end and for the city to cooperate with the State board. The directors of the Agricultural Association and the members of the park board will attend this meeting; the question of water and parks will be discussed jointly.

"It is a magnificent project," said Chairman J. T. Jones of the State board after the meeting yesterday. "I believe this is the beginning of the improvement of what will become the most noted park in all America.

"Under the peculiar terms of the grant the park must remain under the jurisdiction o fthe Sixth District Agricultural Association. This assures that it will be preserved 'in perpetuity' as a public pleasure ground.

"Agricultural Park will be to Los Angeles what its noted Commons is to Boston. The location is peculiarly appropriate for a public pleasure ground. The entrance will be through a 180-foot driveway off Figueroa street. The park owns the land needed for this entrance; all that is necessary is to open it.

"The speedway will be second to no other in America and the State fairs will be an annual feature vying in popularity with our Fiestas.

"Opening Agricultural Park means a long stride, too, toward the ideal 'city beautiful.'"

Mayor Harper and the Park Commissioners have been working quietly for months to coöperate with the State board in opening Agricultural Park to the public. "It makes me proud that I am a Fifth Warder when I see the public spirit my fellow-citizens in the southwest are manifesting," said the Mayor last night.

A survey of the park land is now being made under the direction of the Mayor and the Board of Public Works. The city is also joining in the preparation of plans for its new pleasure ground.

It is proposed that the city shall assume control of the park under an annual lease from the State board for a nominal rental; then a park force will be stationed there the same as in the other city parks.

The value of the land included in the park has been estimated at $1,500,000; in securing the use of this property the only obligation placed on the city will be to assist in making the annual State fairs a success. If the present policy is carried out the city will not only do this but it will maintain a permanent exhibition of California products in substantial agricultural and horticultural buildings.

The only enemies to the park project are certain State politicians who have been seeking for twelve years to secure possession of the property and sell it as their private holdings. Their scheme and its miscarriage was narrated in detail in The Times last Sunday.

Chairman Jones of the State board said yesterday that it is necessary to keep a weather eye still open for these politicians. They can operate only through the State Legislature.

"The people of Los Angeles must go into State politics if they want to preserve Agricultural Park as a public pleasure ground," said Chairman Jones last night. "The property has increased in value until we are playing for a $2,000,000 stake, and the ones opposed to us are adepts at the political game."

The officers of the university and the Fifth Ward Improvement Association assured Chairman Jones that these organizations will take the lead in selecting for representatives to the Legislature only men pledged to vote and work at Sacramento to preserve the integrity of Agricultural Park.

The danger lies in the fact that the Sixth District Agricultural Association is created by the State Legislature. It is possible for a Legislature to repeal the act creating this association. This is what the politicians hope to accomplish.

MUST LIGHTEN LOADS.

TO REGULATE TRAFFIC.

Inspector Edwards of the department of Public Works, has started an investigation to discover what action is necessary to protect the city streets from ruthless destruction by heavy trucks that cut through gravel and asphalt surfaces, costing the city tens of thousands of dollars in repairs and keeping many streets in a semi-impassable condition.

Recently one of these mammoth trucks cut through an asphalt surface on Spring street; there it stood half an afternoon, a ten-ton load on a four-inch tire. "It is not possible to build streets that will stand long under such unequal pressures," said Mr. Edwards last night. "The only protection for the city lies in an ordinance regulating the weight of the load by the width of the tire."

Mr. Edwards said he has understood that there is an old law on the statute books requiring truck companies to use wide tires on their vehicles. If such a law exists it is a dead letter. Gravel and oiled streets suffer even more than the asphalt surfaced ones from the trucks. Mr. Edwards expects to recommend to the Council an ordinance providing a schedule of weights and tire widths which will protect the street surfaces from unnecessary mutilation.

Discuss Bridge Plans.

Two conferences have been held this week between engineers representing the city and the railway companies to discuss the apportionment of cost for the proposed new roadway and railway bridge across the Los Angeles River at the foot of East Seventh street. The discussion has included loans for elevated crossings over the railroad tracks. The new street railway on Seventh street has been completed as far east as the river and work has commenced on the Boyle Heights extension. The road cannot be operated until the new Seventh-street bridge is built.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

HITS WIFE WITH "CLEAR WATER."

PREACHER-JANITOR CONFESSES SOME OF HIS SINS.

Also Administers Blow With Newspaper—Thinks Her Bruises Due to Nails in Narrow Passage Way of House—Court Awards Her Divorce, Custody of Her Child and Alimony.

Flora H. Hilbish, in the Superior Court yesterday, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce, custody of her child and $25 per month alimony.

Tom R. Hilbish, janitor of the Braly building, took the stand yesterday, to reply to the charges of cruelty testified to by his wife, on May 31, at the opening of her action for divorce. Referring to the beatings which she had told of, he said:

"She was trying to get into Mrs. Young's side of the house, and I tried to stop her. It was the first time I had ever struck a woman in my life. I only hit her with a newspaper. No, it was not rolled up; it was an open newspaper.

"Wasn't it bunched up?" was asked.

"No. Perhaps it was ruffled up, mussed up, or any old way, but it wasn't bunched up."

"How did it come that your wife's arms and shoulders were black and blue, then, as Mrs. Young testified?"

"Well," answered the preacher janitor sadly, "the passageway from one side of the house to the other, where Mrs. Young lived, is very narrow, and there are clothes hooks and nails there galore. I was trying to keep her from going through. I suppose she got bruised on the nails."

"And the other time you beat her?"

"I never struck her again except with a clear glass of water," declared Hilbish. "That was several days after the time I struck her with the newspaper."

"Did you think you were honoring God in that way?" asked the attorney sarcastically.

Counsel for the defendant objected to the question, and was sustained.

The witness denied that he had deserted his wife for the reason that she would not let him seek employment where he felt that he could do his best religious work. He had been a Methodist Episcopal preacher, and did not wish to abandon his labors wholly, even though driven to make a living in some other way.

When the question of alimony was taken up, Hilbish stated that his salary was only $65 per month (in answer to a question) and that there were very few tips.

"The under-janitors get a great many more tips than I," he said. "When I get 10 cents I am thankful. They are few and far between. When I get no more than $1 in a month I am thankful. Some months I get nothing."

When the decree had been ordered in favor of his wife, and the alimony awarded, he protested that he would find it hard to pay. He said he was carrying life insurance in favor of his daughter.

"The insurance is not necessary," decided Judge Houser. "The immediate needs of your wife and child are of more importance than future needs, and must be provided for."

OLD SOLDIER'S SPEECH.

THREAT TO KICK HER ALLEGED.

Contradictory testimony was presented before Judge Wilbur yesterday, when the hearing of the habeas corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Gamble to recover her child from her parents was resumed.

Previous testimony for the defense had been presented for the chief purpose of showing that Mrs. Gamble was unfit to have the care of her 7-year-old daughter, Margaret Elizabeth Fessenden, but efforts were made yesterday to prove the fitness of the grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. Freeby of Long Beach.

Mrs. Diehl, however, a friend of Mrs. Gamble, testified to an incident which was not very flattering to the old soldier.

It appears that Mrs. Gamble had called at her father's home to ask the privilege of taking her little girl to see the Fiesta parade. She was refused, and Freeby had called across to her, it was testified: "I'll come over there and kick you till you have to stay in a hospital six months."

"I thought that wasn't a nice way for a father to speak to his daughter," the witness confided to the judge.

"How wide was the street?" was asked.

"I don't guess it was very wide," answered Mrs. Diehl, "because my son drives a truck, and I know he can't turn around in that street."

"Was any one else on your porch when Mr. Freeby said that to his daughter?"

"Yes, there was another lady," she admitted, "but I don't guess she wants to get mixed up in this."

Apparently the other lady had been shocked by the inelegant terms which, according to Mrs. Diehl, the old soldier had used in his speech to his daughter.

Several witnesses were called to testify to Mrs. Gamble's fitness to have the care of her child. They stated that they had seen her with her sister's little children, and that she seemed a most devoted caretaker. When counsel asked if Mrs. Gamble had been heard to speak of her own child, expressing a wish to possess it, the petitioner bowed over the table at which she sat and wept softly. The answer was in the affirmative by each witness asked.

Mrs. Gamble was called to the stand, and again referred to the sailor-lover, Fessenden, whom she had married in San Pedro, April 4, 1899, after meeting him only twice.

"We were together only one night," she said. "I never lived with him after that, and after May, 1899, of that year, I never saw him again."

The witness was asked if she went to church, and answered that she had not done so very much since she had been a young girl.

"The minister was angry because my father and mother would not join the church," Mrs. Gamble replied to one of his questions. "He treated me and my sister spitefully because of it."

"What was the name of that minister?" asked her attorney.

"Fiske was his name. He is a Baptist."

"Is that the Rev. Mr. Fiske who has recently gone to Bakersfield?" the lawyer asked.

"The same man," answered the witness.

Mrs. Gamble charges that her father and mother have made plans to take the little girl out of the State, to prevent her regaining custody of her. The case was continued.

MORE TROUBLE COMING.

NEW WARRANT FOR PROPER.

Habeas-corpus proceedings were begun yesterday to secure the release of William Proper, who is charged with the murder of George Speice. At his first trial, seventy-three days ago, the jury disagreed.

The application for a writ is based on the contention that, under the statute of limitations, it is compulsory to try a man accused of crime within sixty days after the information is filed, unless he consents to delay. Counsel for Proper insist that the law applies in the case of a mistrial, and that the new trial must begin within sixty days thereafter. The District Attorney opposes this construction of the law.

Even should the District Attorney prove mistaken in this claim, and to have made a mistake in not bringing the accused to trial a second time before the expiration of sixty days, Proper will have only brief liberty. A new warrant was prepared yesterday by Deputy Dist.-Atty. Pearson of the Police Court branch of the office. It will be served on Proper immediately after his release, if he is released.

The new warrant charges Proper with the murder of George Speice, and will begin anew the process of law which will once more place Proper before the bar of justice in the Superior Court.

MURDER CASE DELAYED.

IMPORTANT WITNESS ABSENT.

Benito Mullais, who is charged with the murder of Jesus Verdugo, on March 16, 1907, was placed on trial yesterday in the Superior Court. The proceedings were checked, however, by the absence of Rosendo Suniga, the only witness of the killing.

The two men quarreled in their camp in Verdugo Cañon, where they were chopping wood. Mullais declares that Verdugo struck at him with a knife, and that he struck back in self-defense.

Verdugo, almost the last of a famous family, was stabbed in the abdomen, and died soon afterward.

WIDOW URGES HASTE.

CONGER WILL IS FILED.

A petition for letters of administration for the estate of E. H. Conger, late United States Minister to China and Ambassador to Mexico, was filed yesterday in the Superior Court by Sarah J. Conger, his widow.

The petition, stating that the decedent died intestate, places the value of his estate at $1100. It consists of $1000 standing to his credit with the State Department at Washington, and personal property to the value of $100.

Haste is urged in the petition, as the appropriation out of which the balance due from the government is payable will lapse on June 30, and the claim must be presented prior to that date.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

ANNULMENT ASKED. Myra L. La Shells, alleging that the man she married on July 26, 1906, while on a visit to Nevada, spoke falsely when he told her he was "single and unmarried," yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court for annulment. She asks that her maiden name, Myra L. Treat, be restored to her.

FLEMING WANTS PAY. Deputy Dist.-Atty. Edward Fleming has prepared a petition for a writ of mandamus, to compel the payment of his salary from the city, which is held up in the Auditor's office. He will file the writ this morning in the Superior Court.

SUNSET WINS SUIT. The jury in the damage suit of James C. Flannery and Mary Flannery against the Sunset Telephone Company, charging that the death of their son, Forrest Flannery, was due to the negligence of the company, gave a verdict for the defendant yesterday. Young Flannery was killed by grasping a live wire which had broken and sagged over the street.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

HUNG JURY IN ONE DRUG CASE.

H. L. SHERB CONTESTS STATE LAW AS TO PHARMACISTS.

Alleges Cocaine Supposed to Have Been Bought at His Place Was Carried There by Detective—Jury Disagrees and Case Will Be Retried.

After being locked in the jury-room five hours and then failing to reach a verdict, a jury called to try H. L. Sherb, charged with selling poisons and opiates contrary to the State law, was discharged from Justice Austin's court last night, and a second trial of the case will be had.

Of the score of arrests made thus far in the crusade of President Off and Secretary Whilden, representing the State Board of Pharmacy, the defendants in each case gladly paid their fines.

Sherb, however, intimated that the evidence in the case was illegitimate, and that peculiar methods had been used to secure it. He declared his innocence, and demanded a trial by jury. Secretary Whilden immediately sent for the man he had used to get the evidence, and yesterday morning the case was called for trial.

McFaren, a "dope fiend," and known about Los Angeles as a "hop head," was the first witness on the stand. He had secured the testimony against the druggist.

"On the night the officers notified me, I met them and went to the East Fifth-street pharmacy," said McFaren. "They gave me 50 cents and told me to go inside and buy cocaine. I went in and asked for the stuff. All the druggists in town know me, and this one told me he would fix it up. I gave him the money and asked for 5 cents back to go buy some tobacco. When I returned Sherb handed me the stuff in an envelope and as I turned and walked out the door, the officers grabbed me and took away the package, and then went in and arrested Sherb."

This Sherb denied. He denied the whole transaction. He testified that the envelope produced in court was an old one used by his pharmacy, that he had not used that kind of envelope for several years past, and produced specimens of the kind he is now using.

He told the jury that he never sold McFaren any cocaine, and intimated that if McFaren had the cocaine in his hand when he left the drug store he must have had it when he came in.

A clerk in the pharmacy gave similar testimony, regarding the envelope, and also regarding the sale of drugs.

"When McFaren went in the drug store he had nothing in his hands," testified the officer. "We took him along with us to secure evidence, and for that purpose only. When we got outside the pharmacy, I gave him 50 cents and told him to go in the store and ask for cocaine or any opiate he could secure. When he walked in, I watched him closely. He gave his order to the clerk and the clerk went back to fill it.

"When the clerk handed him the stuff, I could see that it was in an envelope as it passed over the counter. I grabbed McFaren as soon as he reached the door, and sent the cocaine to be analyzed."

The jury, upon being closely questioned, was discharged after having been in the jury room several hours. The case will be tried for a second time on Monday. According to the report of the jurors, they stood seven for acquittal and five for conviction.

Dog Catcher Twice Convicted.

Frank Judson, an employé at the city dog pound, was convicted twice, yesterday, of cruelty to animals, and will be sentenced on both charges this morning by Justice Frederickson of the Police Court.

In the first instance Judson was accused of having carried dogs in sacks, putting the sacks on the footboard of a little road cart, where they suffered considerably during the trip to the pound. This complaint was made by President Zimmer of the S.P.C.A.

Another charge of the same character is pending, and in that case the dogs have been held as evidence and will be produced in court.

Judson will be sentenced on the first charge at 9 o'clock this morning. An hour later he will be sentenced on a second charge upon which he was convicted yesterday afternoon. The complaint in the second case charged Judson with having driven a decrepit and wind-broken old horse when the animal was unfit for service. Convictions were easily secured in both cases.

persons confirmed during the two years that Mr. Lee has been the rector, is said to be the largest number of confirmations in any Episcopal church west of the Mississippi River during the same period, making the total membership of the church 1400.

Following the formal reception hundreds of guests greeted the receiving party, the line being furnished by Mrs. Snead's orchestra, and then all assembled in the auditorium. Vocal numbers were rendered by Master Vernon Bettin, which were received enthusiastically, followed by a recitation of "William Tell," for boys at the piano, by Miss Rockwell and Miss Baker. The young ladies received an ovation for their splendid performance. Then followed a selection of music by the orchestra.

Mrs. Lee has proven immensely popular with their parishioners, the social life of the parish being most notable during their residence in Los Angeles. Under Mr. Lee the Club of Christ Church has developed into a powerful instrument for holding the men together. The proposed clubhouse will be one of the finest and most complete in the city.

Throughout the ministrations of Mr. Lee have been characterized by a genial and kindly power, dealing with the questions of the day and calling things by right names.

NATURE AND ART IN EDUCATION.

AVENUE FIFTY-FOUR SCHOOL IN GALA DRESS.

Year's Work on Exhibition for Highland Park Parents and Friends. From Kindergarten to Highest Grade Visitors Find Much to Delight—Punch and Dainties Served.

Every kind of flower that blows in Highland Park found its way to the Avenue 54 school yesterday, and the golden mustard from the hills was mingled with the school colors of gold and violet to adorn the building for a gala day. The year's school work was on exhibition, and parents and friends were welcomed by the principal, Miss Thornton, by the teachers and the bright-eyed boys and girls, who escorted the visitors from place to place.

Each room was a little world by itself, with its own individual treasures. The kindergarten was a poem of bright colors, showing the cutting and folding done by childish hands, and the many object lessons in life and nature that these little people learn in their first year in school.

The weather man in Los Angeles may think he has the best weather maps in Southern California, but that is because he has never seen the records of the months in this kindergarten. A bright, round disk of gold is pasted on for a sunshiny day, when the children sing "Good Morning, Merry Sunshine." Little umbrellas are pasted on for rainy days, when they sing "Good Morning to the Rain." "Half and half" days are represented by half-dark and half-golden disks. And the calendars of the months—why, the weather man never dreamed of pasting October days on a round yellow pumpkin, or December days on a Christmas tree, or January days on a big bell, or February days on bright red hearts, or the days of the windy month on a kite, or the days of April on the petals of a big sunflower, or the days of June on a beautiful white-winged ship on which a little child might sail away for a vacation.

Little people of six or seven had exhibits of fine writing, strung in a frieze along the wall. Many original pieces of handicraft were on exhibition, too, including mats woven on little looms made in the school to show the principal of weaving and cloth manufacturing. Great imagination was displayed in the original color illustrations.

"What I am going to do when I am grown" revealed a number of engineers on trains, several freight cars with men running along the tops, a painter at work on a house, and other practical occupations that appeal to boys of 6. "Taking a trip" showed every form of travel, from "Shank's Mare" to ships and balloons.

A little girl in the A 3's had painted some pretty daisies, and underneath she had copied in a neat, round hand: "At evening when I go to bed,
They are the little daisies white,
That dot the meadows of the night."

Besides the regular display of arithmetic papers, and language and spelling lessons, the A3's and the B4's had some clever basketwork on exhibition. Their room was all in red, and the windows, with their vases, trailing vines and bright red flowers were artistic in the extreme. Practical ideas were infused into the language lessons. "How to Make a Bed" was the subject of a striking composition, illustrated with the picture of a well-made bed at the top.

The cardboard sloyd work and the beginning of the wood sloyd in the middle grades was most attractive, and the first steps of sewing in the fifth grade were very interesting. The various stitches and the darning were as fine as the needlework our grandmothers did in the painstaking long ago. "This is buttonhole year," said one of the teachers, proudly displaying the buttonholes in the sample doll's garment on exhibition. In the higher grades the sewing was done on larger garments, the finished products showing the finest skill.

The illustrated books of the various grades attracted much attention from the visitors. There were song books, drawing books, atlases, composition books and even cook books, with covers and text illustrated. The first steps in American history were also set forth and the beautiful poems of the English lessons of the grammar grades received talented treatment.

Everything from the flower to the conventional borders was shown in the designing of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Their book plates were especially noteworthy.

A fine library table with leather cover and mission nail heads was the astonishing work of one of the older lads. Albert Hays, while taborets, bookcases, magazine holders and other pieces of woodwork evinced a high degree of proficiency.

BEST HELP SELF HELP.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

YUMA (Ariz.) June 6.—Called to San Francisco suddenly from Phoenix, where he attended the closing of the Phoenix Indian school, Hon. Francis Leupp, United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs, passed through Yuma this morning. For twenty years Mr. Leupp has been connected with Indian affairs. In speaking of his work and the Indian in general, he said:

"It is the plan of the government to close all its business with the Indians and to permit them to forever stand on their own responsibility, but we cannot do this with haste. It is a work of years. Very largely our paternalism has pauperized the Indian. A majority of Indian schools have outlived their largest uses and they must go out of existence sooner or later. To send the Indian East to be educated is a plan held in less favor each year. Indians are just like other people. Helped too much, they will not help themselves."

Mr. Leupp desires, and will work to the end that the government treat the Indian exactly as the white except, of course, maintaining a few of the larger schools.

MANY MEN LAID OFF.

Five hundred men and as many horses have been laid off between Yuma and the dam at Laguna. They were in the employ of the Reclamation Service, and were building the levees. The men will scatter to the four winds of the earth. The private teams mostly will be sent to the Imperial country, while the government teams will be taken to the dam. The work will not be resumed before August.

UNDELIVERED TELEGRAMS.

There are undelivered telegrams at the Western Union telegraph office for D. Collins, Sr., Mrs. Irene F. Hart, James Herman, James Nevins, I. D. Hale, Kearney Hunter, John C. Oleary, H. O. Harris & Co., W. H. White, Mrs. Emily Atterberry, Mrs. Ida M. Gordon, Charles E. Hayes, J. M. Rothschild, Edward Crome and William H. Pridham.

ALLEGED PIRATE'S CASE.

Frank Manha, the alleged smuggler and pirate, will be required to make his defense in the Federal Court on June 19. United States Commissioner Van Dyke has denied the motion of his counsel to dismiss the action. It is believed that some sensational testimony will be introduced at the coming hearing. The Mexican government is using every effort to secure the person of Manha, through extradition proceedings. The man is now seriously ill at San Diego.

DEAD WOMAN'S PAST.

her escape from the asylum and arranged that she leave for Los Angeles under the name of Olga Miller. Hardin does not appear in the records of the movements of the girl except that she seemed always to have some one near her if not exactly accompanying her.

When she arrived in Los Angeles she secured work in the Rosslyn Hotel in a menial position and not long after this a man named Richard Hardin, who said he had never seen the woman before, appeared upon the scene.

Records at the County Hospital show that the girl was taken there by Hardin and that she was suffering from an ailment that necessistated her confinement in the contagion ward. Hardin visited her frequently. He carried flowers to her, and one time called and asked permission to give her a glass of milk. This he did and in half an hour she died in agony.

At the inquest it was stated that the girl died from an abscess on the brain. This, as it later develops, was induced by the gunshot wound she had inflicted on that horrible night when she killed her mother. The contents of her stomach showed that she had not been poisoned and the body was delivered to the undertaker with no thought that the notorious murderess had at last been located.

The reports emanating from Pittsburgh, that an attendant named Hardin was missing and was suspected to have had intimate relations with the Beilstein girl while she was in the asylum, have cast the limelight upon the R. L. Hardin whose name already has been associated with the death of the woman.

HARDIN "EXPLAINS."

Hardin was reached last night by telephone, and agreed to present himself and give an account of his meeting with the woman. All day yesterday attempts to locate the man failed.

Before the world knew that the female, Olga Miller, was in fact the famous criminal, Bertha Beilstein, Hardin was besieging the newspaper offices asking a correction of the story that he had been living with the woman as a common-law wife. He sent a communication to The Times, in which he tells of his meeting with the woman. It is given here for what it is worth:

"Miss Miller was not my common-law wife, nor had I any more love for her than that of caring for her, when I found her sick and without friends at the hotel where she was stopping. I called there to see her one evening, and found her in a very sick woman; then I called in Dr. Lamora and had him prescribe for her, and I merely had the prescription filled and gave her the medicine, and I also carried her meals up to her, for a week (from the restaurant,) when, had I not have done it, she would have probably died and starved there, and nobody have ever been the wiser, for she was a very proud woman.

"We met in the corridor of the hotel about three weeks ago, and, being we were both easterners, we had lots to talk about that caused us to become pretty good friends. Dr. Lamora told me that I had better send her to somewhere, where she would get proper attention, as she was very sick and needed a nurse, so I called up the County Hospital, asked for Dr. Barber, and he consented to have me bring her out there.

"I presume the doctors knew how to handle such patients, but (although we were only acquaintances of a few weeks,) it wrung my nerves to see her tied down and her hands tied, so that is why I asked the doctor to unloosen her hands and the waist bandages."

Hardin claims to be a writer of some sort of scientific books. His epistle scarcely bears out the statement that he is a professional writer.

ACTIVITY FOLLOWS DELAY.

Government Building at Main and Temple Streets Will Soon Show Above the Fence.

After eight months' delay, there is now a good prospect that work on the government building at Temple and Main streets will soon proceed rapidly. Yesterday the contractors, Dugan, Bridgham & Co., received notification from Washington that their figures on the last changes in the building were satisfactory. They at once telegraphed to the Des Moines Bridge and Iron Works to cast the structural steel.

Because of the change in the plans, made necessary in order that the building might conform with the line of Main street, the calculations on a large portion of the structural steel had to be changed.

The Des Moines concern is under bond to have the first of this material here by the last of August, and by that time the concrete work and the placing of the cast-iron bases for the piers will have been completed. The structure will soon appear above the high board fence which encloses the site.

At the present time there is a force of thirty men in this enclosure, completing the excavations for the piers. The excavation for the basement proper is completed. Plans for this were also changed from the original design, and there is now almost a third more basement space than was at first provided.

The contractors have installed a concrete mixer, to be operated by steam power, and they are assembling materials so that there shall be no delay. The work of placing the concrete for the huge piers will be begun next Monday, and the contractors plan to have this work done by the time the first structural steel arrives.

The cast-iron bases have been made in Los Angeles by the United Casting Company. There will be 140 tons of these bases, averaging 2700 pounds each.

CAR STRIKES NEGRO.

Charles Ford, a negro residing at No. 445 Aliso street, was run down and injured by an out-bound Pasadena car at Main and First streets, last night. Ford was crossing First street when the car swiftly swung around the corner, and struck him. Ford was hurled several feet. He was removed to the Receiving Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture of two ribs on the right side of the body, and several lacerations about the face.

Speaking of the conduit, there is no doubt but we can do it.

In speaking of Orchard, it is putting it very mildly to say that he was shady.

Puccini, the Italian composer, has tried in vain to find an American theme for an opera. He will, therefore, follow the old idea of constructing one that will merely have the American dollar in view.

Think of who it was, in the first place, that paid the money to the French restaurant keepers, and for what purpose; that the French restaurant keepers paid it to Ruef; afterward that Ruef paid it to Schmitz. If that same money were then paid to you, wouldn't you prefer to handle it with tongs, while you held a disinfectant to your nose?

THE MAIN ISSUE AND THE AX OF JUSTICE.

The Board of Supervisors, the Mayor and other municipal office holders in the city of San Francisco (nominated by labor-union conventions and elected primarily by labor-union votes as avowed advocates of labor-union pretensions and confessed practicers of labor-union methods) have been persistent blackmailers and bribe-takers.

It has been impossible for any business man seeking any privilege at the hands of these Supervisors and the Mayor (all under the thumb of the political boss of the labor unions, an avowed sympathizer with labor unions, an apologist of their practices, and an upholder of their pretensions) to obtain any concession, however just his request might be, however trivial or important the matter, without paying tribute to this gang of blackmailers and grafters.

Now it is unnecessary to say that for every bribe taken there must have been a bribe given. Here is where the position of The Times has been clear as the stars in heaven in its discussions for public enlightenment of these events daily coming to the surface in the city of San Francisco. With a carefully formed and firmly fixed opinion as to where the root of this trouble lay and as to the proper method of pursuing the investigation of this trouble in its two branches, The Times has never uttered a syllable tending to excuse or exculpate any offender, high or low, great or small, rich or poor, official or private citizen, bribe-giver or bribe-taker. With absolutely even handed justice it has been our contention that the true method of procedure must be one which will ferret out, convict and punish every wrongdoer.

The city of San Francisco is reeking with corruption, injustice and wrong. It requires exceedingly drastic measures to set things upon a basis of righteousness and put the city in a position to resume her activities in such a way as to insure to every man the control of his own business and the fruits of his own labor and enterprise. What is called for and what must be had to bring this desirable result about is a thorough house-cleaning. It is a foregone conclusion that during all these years of corruption on the part of the municipal officers, the business men of San Francisco must have been weak and unrighteous enough to permit themselves to be blackmailed. They have undoubtedly, in cringing cowardice because of their fear of labor-union resentment and the loss of business at the hands of labor-union men, with more or less willingness permitted themselves to be blackmailed and robbed. Whatever condemnation attaches to the low, ignorant, brutal gang of bribe-takers, it must be conceded that the business men have shown a poor quality of manhood and a type of citizenship utterly unworthy of Americans in cringingly allowing themselves to be blackmailed and robbed in this way.

Almost simultaneously with the beginning of this attempt to ferret out and punish the corruptionists in municipal offices, there was precipitated a series of strikes destructive of business progress and exceedingly vicious in their methods. There was incrimination and recrimination between the managers of the United Railroads, fighting for the protection of their property, the lives of their employés and the right to run their cars for the accommodation of the general public, and the assistant prosecuting attorney engaged in following the grafters, Mr. Heney's acknowledged backer, Rudolph Spreckels, expressed not only tolerance but sympathy with these riotous strikers. He threw his enormous influence on their side and against that brave champion of industrial freedom, Patrick Calhoun. Doubtless through his instigation and no doubt in perfect accord with Mr. Spreckels's views, Mr. Heney, with his hands both full of business in prosecuting the Mayor, Ruef and the other grafters, saw fit to turn aside and bring an indictment against Patrick Calhoun for the alleged crime of having given bribes, and with the obvious effect of embarrassing him and reinforcing the gang of anarchists whom he was fighting.

From the known connection between the city officials, from the Mayor down to the Chief of Police and the police force generally, with the strikers and rioters, it did appear to us as if it would have been better for all right interests concerned to have postponed temporarily the indictments against the railroad managers, who were fighting the battle for San Francisco. That view was taken without any attempt or desire to condone any wrongdoing of the railroad managers named or of any other person in or out of San Francisco against whom proof could be brought of giving bribes to public officers. We were emphatic in our statements to this effect, and made them almost daily. Let the ax of justice fall on the guilty neck, whomever it may hit.

It has appeared to us that Calhoun and Mullally were making a splendid fight for every honest business man and employer of labor in the city of San Francisco. We have thought that they were making a righteous and noble fight for the rights of every employer of labor in America and for every independent, honest, industrious wage-earner, not only in America, but in the world. Grave as the undertaking has been to bring to punishment the grafters of San Francisco and to rid that city of municipal corruption, it has appeared to us a matter more radically and overwhelmingly important that the rights of the community in this dispute between the strikers and the railroads should be brought to a just and final issue and a victory won for American principles and American ideals, for the rights and liberties of the American people, whether they were employers of labor or employés of capital. The battle was quite as important to the wage-earner as to the capitalist.

We congratulate San Francisco with all earnestness in the exceedingly important victory which Patrick Calhoun and those around him have won against the vicious army of degraded, lawbreaking, authority-defying hoodlums who have cursed San Francisco for many years. It appears to us that he has won the battle in spite of the attempts of Francis J. Heney and Rudolph Spreckels to balk him. He is a man reputed never to have flinched before any crisis. Messrs. Spreckels and Heney, he has about done his warfare with the rioters who have degraded your city and whom you have not helped to quell. He is still in San Francisco, and shows no inclination to run away from any prosecution which you may have to bring against him. But once again we say without hesitation, give him half an opportunity to win ultimately the battle for you and for your city, and busy yourselves in the meantime with seeing that your city is freed from the intolerable incubus of the corruptionists who have been robbing your business men for years. When you have put Ruef in stripes, the Mayor in stripes, the gang of Supervisors in stripes, the brutally ignorant and vicious Chief of Police out of office, and otherwise done something toward the renovating of your great Augean stable, we venture the prophesy that Mr. Calhoun will be within your reach, whatever charges you have to bring against him. And if he has violated the law, if he is proven guilty after a fair trial, let the law's penalty be meted out to him. But if you have wrongfully accused him, on the bare word of self-confessed perjurers, what of you, Messrs. Heney and Spreckels, what of you?

LOS ANGELES AS SEEN BY THE "ARGONAUT."

The Times today republishes the thoughtful, vigorous and interesting comments of Alfred Holman, editor of the Argonaut, on the conditions he witnessed in Los Angeles during his recent visit to our city, he having come here from San Francisco, as he says, "to get out of the atmosphere of social confusion and class hatred and to breathe the air of social order." The Argonaut's editor found here the refreshment that he sought and he plainly says so. He saw, as he carefully describes, immense activity in all lines of industry; no interference with work by walking delegates or others; the streets filled with people all hurrying and happy; the trolley cars full of passengers and buzzing in all directions without let or hindrance; all hands prosperous, united and confident; and the peaceful, orderly city going ahead at a prodigious rate. And the secret of this satisfactory and altogether delightful condition of things, as compared with chaos and unhappiness in San Francisco, as Mr. Holman testifies, is that in Los Angeles the principle of industrial liberty pervades and rules; there is coöperation between independent labor and capital; labor unions do not and cannot dominate; the authorities promptly suppress hoodlumism; and, protected by the strong arm of the law fearlessly wielded, every man conducts his business or pursues his vocation with no risk of interference by picketers, boycotters or lawbreakers of any stripe.

wrote the Scottish bard in echo of an aspiration of the ages. Thanks to the editor of the Argonaut, we of Los Angeles now see ourselves as others see us. We find that our confidence in ourselves is not misplaced. We may be surer than ever that we have achieved splendidly in standing firm for this vital principle of industrial freedom and that to this steadfastness we owe the civic blessedness so refreshing to the pilgrim from strike-cursed San Francisco. Mr. Holman's tribute to the strong and unflinching character of the business men of Los Angeles, who united to win this great fight for the right, is well deserved. He is pleased to bear witness to the part this Journal has borne in the struggle, always with the magnificent support of the merchants, manufacturers and industrial leaders of the city. His portrayal of conditions here is truthful and timely and should be an inspiriting object lesson for his San Francisco readers. Los Angeles is today the freest city in America and therefore blest above all others. It has cost many sacrifices, many hard knocks, many anxious hours, to establish the conditions described by the editor of the Argonaut; but how superb the reward shared by every law-abiding dweller in the city, laborer and capitalist, employer or employed! And the best of it is that the Los Angeles spirit, which the Argonaut admires, will insist that these conditions be perpetuated. They are the foundations of a city's felicity, and never in Los Angeles shall the walking delegates prevail against them.

WHY LOS ANGELES NEVER STOPS GROWING.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR CONDITION OF COAST LINE.

Following the wrecks on the Coast Line, the Southern Pacific authorities are said to be "swinging the official ax" vigorously; and a number of employés, including one or two roadmasters in charge of districts where conditions have been the worst have lost their official heads. At the same time comes the announcement of the "resignation" of Superintendent Wilder, who has exercised jurisdiction over the line from Santa Barbara to San Francisco.

Following the usual railroad policy, nothing is given out officially and the public is left to imagine the reasons for this shaking-up, which is not difficult to do at this time. In Great Britain, under the system of publicity and inspection by the Board of Trade, full statements would be prepared and given to the press, so that the people would know who the guilty parties are; and these would be made to bear the odium that should justly attach to them for neglect of duty; and moreover, if any of those leaving the service at this time have done so for other reasons, and are innocent, they would not be left resting under suspicion. Furthermore, the people would then know what is being done to remedy conditions and much of this senseless raving against "the company" would cease. It would be a move for self-protection on the part of the railroad.

A local journal, noted for its saffron hue and its mania for viciously attacking the "man higher up," has been publishing a series of articles about the condition of the Coast Line, which, while exaggerated and colored in detail, have some foundation in fact. But the statement that "the company," or Mr. Harriman personally, is at fault is not well founded. Again we ask, "Who is 'the company?' What is it? Where is it?" It may be answered that it is a convenient scapegoat for negligent employés or officials to shift the blame for their carelessness onto. As to Mr. Harriman personally, how in the name of common sense can he know the condition of the ties and rails and ballast except through the reports of his subordinates? If they are negligent what can he do until his attention is called to it? Again, how much personal attention can any man in his position give to all these details. He can only employ men whose previous records and experience justify the belief that they are competent. If they are failing to live up to their past, it is only to be learned when disaster comes and then the only possible penalty is dismissal.

A roadmaster has charge of a district, is responsible for the condition of the track and should see that material is demanded and used and that his subordinates are competent. He reports to the division superintendent and it is the latter's duty to see that his roadmasters are competent and to know the condition of the road. If a section foreman or roadmaster made a requisition for material and it was not heeded, the responsibility must be fastened on the person in charge of the department whose duty it was to see to it. It cannot be shoved onto "the company." There should be no trouble in placing the blame. Such matters must come, directly or indirectly, under the jurisdiction of the division superintendent's office. They could be easily traced if they went any higher. The next man "higher up" would be the general superintendent, or the heads of such departments as may deal with the supplies when there are such for the entire system or a grand division, who are under the general superintendent. If the weak men have been located and removed, the public should know it and know who they are; if they have not, they should be.

All this goes to prove the need for the strict government supervision and inspection of railroads in order to protect the traveling public. Such a system would result in discovering such weaknesses in time and applying the "ounce of prevention."

A JUST LAW.

When a man agrees to buy a piece of land, a horse, or a suit of clothes, he is held to his contract. When a man marries a woman he undertakes to provide for her and her children. There is a contract between the two. This contract is by far the most solemn, binding and important a man can make.

Oregon has a new law intended to enforce the contract between a husband and wife. If he fails to provide for the woman and their children, he is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be sent to jail with hard labor for twelve months. Two Webfoot husbands are in the toils of this new law and likely to go to the rock pile for a year. If they are guilty they will be "on the rocks" with great propriety.

A woman's life is destroyed by marriage with a man who develops into a bum, or who runs away from her. A man brings children into existence with the natural duty of rearing them. Few women are equal to the double task of taking care of the house and the children and earning a living for herself and them. The father who abandons his offspring demonstrates that he is no better than a brute. By all means make him work for the commonwealth if he will not work for his family.

If the South American republics could control their volcanoes so as to be able to turn them loose on an invading enemy, even Gen. Sherman's definition of war would hardly express the real situation.

In answer to a number of anxious correspondents we desire to state that the man who attracted attention some time ago by living on 6 cents a day has finally succeeded in not needing even that much. He is dead.

HARRY CARR IN SELF-DEFENSE.

A PERSONAL STATEMENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6, 1907.—It seems that various Southern California country papers have attacked the truthfulness of The Times' accounts of this strike and labor disturbance.

This is highly unimportant. But it is important that the business men of Southern California, whose own interests are indirectly affected, should know whether or not these reports are reliable. They have the right to know the facts.

To that end, I want to make this personal statement:

The events of the first few days of the strike I personally witnessed. It seemed better to trust to the evidence of my own eyes than to the intuitions of the editor of the Weekly Bungton Gazette, 500 miles away.

During those first few days only three or four cars were run. They were bunched together under the protection of police automobiles. Like other newspaper men, I had an automobile and personally observed every event described.

Since the car system has been in general operation, newspaper reliance has to be placed in the detailed reports made to the superintendent of the United Railroads from the various inspectors and district superintendents. All the newspapers, including the Associated Press, get their main information from these reports.

They are easily verified by police reports and often by reports made to Gov. Gillett by his aides. I suppose it will be conceded that the Governor is not employed by the wicked Times to manufacture false strike news.

Although these railroad reports are invariably accurate, I found them about as replete with picturesque features as a delinquent tax list. Mr. Mullally's strike-breakers are better fighters than writers.

For instance, the day that the mob attacked a Mission-street car and tried to drag a child from it, and the motorman drove them off after a fierce fight, that event was entered on the railroad reports in about this language: "Car No. 232, at 5:45 p.m. attacked by mob. Motorman struck. Mob driven off. No police in sight."

The day that a girl rescued the crew of a car that got lost, taking them into a tannery and sharing their dangers while the mob tried to storm the building, the report was entered in some such manner. "Car No. 873, crew driven from car by mob. Police arrived in twenty minutes; no arrests."

I found that, by going to the different car barns in the tough districts, when the cars finished their runs in the afternoon, one could get news hot off the bat.

As each bunged-up car came in, the men would drop off with some exclamation like, "Gee, but that was fierce." Joining the group of other carmen, they would relate their experiences.

Sometimes other reporters were present, sometimes not. It must be remembered that this strike is only one feature of the news of a city which is grinding out more sensations to the minute than any other hundred cities on the globe combined. All the newspapers are short handed; often they did not "play up" the strike as prominently as other events of purely local interest to San Francisco.

I recall one sensational incident that had little if any mention in the San Francisco papers. This was the attempt of a mob to murder a Greek who got off a Market street car, carrying a bag of tools. I do not know why they didn't. I don't care. That event was personally witnessed by a reliable member of the San Francisco staff of The Times. [illegible] I secured the corroboration of Policeman Tillman, stationed at Fourth and [illegible] and who was the hero [illegible]

Another narrative [illegible] space by The Times [illegible] rience of the United [illegible] keeper, Mordecai, who [illegible] his life with a mob in [illegible] authority for that [illegible] mediate superior in the [illegible] roads, who went out to [illegible] house to get the details.

To verify the details of [illegible] attack on a young draftsman [illegible] almost beaten to death at [illegible] Twenth-ninth streets, I spent [illegible] afternoon tramping through [illegible] and hostile district and got [illegible] from the boy's father.

These seemingly egotistical [illegible] are given merely to show the [illegible] effort has been made to [illegible] vestigate the real facts.

In any cases where the [illegible] doubtful, I have invariably [illegible] ing about them. In one [illegible] left out a report that the [illegible] ly all published of an explosion on a street [illegible] I had suspicion that it [illegible] been only a railroad [illegible] passed it up. It afterward [illegible] to be an explosive, and The [illegible] "scooped."

As regards the general [illegible] conditions in San Francisco, [illegible] never trusted to my own [illegible] without consulting leaders [illegible] both sides of the fence.

I might mention that the [illegible] Sun has published a dat[illegible] the real conditions in San [illegible] are being hidden by the [illegible] cisco papers; also the New [illegible] ald has sent a special [illegible] on account of the belief of [illegible] that the truth is being [illegible] the San Francisco press.

More than a month ago The [illegible] published the narrative of [illegible] bine among the bankers and [illegible] men to resist the unions and [illegible] Calhoun. No San Francisco [illegible] mentioned that until Fremont [illegible] blurted it out in his [illegible] ment."

As to the statements [illegible] that a serious outbreak and [illegible] threatened, the country [illegible] only to consult the Bulletin [illegible] knowledged spokesman by [illegible] —to see a very thinly-veiled [illegible] civil war. The Governor [illegible] nia, who had neglected to [illegible] backwoods journalists, [illegible] terrible gravity of that [illegible]

It might surprise the [illegible] rural papers who have [illegible] Times to know that the [illegible] ful atrocities of this strike [illegible] been mentioned by the [illegible] Times said that some of the [illegible] men dropped bricks and [illegible] tops of buildings on the [illegible] It didn't tell that they also [illegible] red-hot rivets, the touch of [illegible] would make a scar for [illegible] was from a building at the [illegible] Market streets. That crime is [illegible] terrible even to lay at the [illegible] union. My authority for the [illegible] ment I will leave at The Times [illegible] in Los Angeles, where any one [illegible] obtain it by telephoning or [illegible]

Without the express permission [illegible] the gentleman whose name [illegible] guilty, I cannot publish it.

Another narrative that has [illegible] been published is a horror, [illegible] all the details have been [illegible] Governor of California and [illegible] by him, I will not write them [illegible] them until the author of them [illegible] found and personally vouches [illegible] statements.

In some instances it is [illegible] able that errors have been [illegible] The Times, as in other [illegible] it seems only fair to some [illegible] fense, to show the business [illegible] Southern California that [illegible] of this San Francisco article [illegible] essential particulars, has been [illegible] fully told in The Times.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

"Tolled," or "The Kidnapping of the Chorus Girl," was enacted at the Auditorium last night.

In the afternoon Manager Berry's privately-employed little bird told him the humane officer's staff would descend upon the house in the evening, preliminary to making a few arrests in the case of little Lillian Butterfield, the leading woman's daughter, who is carried on and off the stage by a bold, bad bandit in the second act.

As it is huge Harry Cashman who has to play the human conveyance, a chorus girl, 19 years of age, was substituted for the four-year-old tot. She is rather small for her years, but even at that she is no slight burden on a frail ladder.

Mr. Berry believes that the humane officer was there, for he observed a covert retreat from the lobby after the act in question.

The third concert of the First Congregational orchestra's present season was given at the church last night, under the direction of William H. Mead. A good sized audience was in attendance.

The orchestral programme included excerpts from "Faust," "Tannhauser," and "Robbin Hood," Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, the sanctus from Gounod's "St. Cecilia," the sextette from "Lucia," and the characteristic fantasy, "The Mill in the Forest."

Leslie Morosco, accompanied by his wife, Leila Shaw, is back from an eight months' tour of "In South Carney," and is visiting with his brother, Oliver Morosco.

Mr. Morosco is an accomplished musician, and will have charge of all the music, both vocal and instrumental, for the coming production of "Mizpah."

This evening, the last of Mrs. Fiske's engagement, she will present an act from "Becky Sharp," the principal [illegible] in "Teas of the D'Urbervilles," and a one-act play "Dolce," by Luther [illegible]

COMPLIMENTARY DINNER.

Given to William J. Brewer, President of Goldfield Chamber of Commerce.

A number of the gentlemen who recently went on the Los Angeles business men's excursion to Goldfield, gave a complimentary dinner last evening to William J. Brewer, president of the Goldfield Chamber of Commerce, who visited the city. After a spread at the Jonathan Club, the party saw Mrs. Leslie Carter in company at the Burbank theater. Mr. Brewer had been assiduous in his attentions to the Los Angeles visitors, and they took pleasure in showing him this courtesy. Presidents of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce presided at the dinner, and among those seated at the table were M. J. Monnette, who recently came to Los Angeles from Goldfield to become a resident and large property owner here.

MUSIC AND THE STAGE.

"Faust," or "The Kidnapping of the Clover Girl," was enacted at the Auditorium last night.

In the afternoon Manager Berry's privately-employed little bird told him the humane officer's staff would devote some time upon the house in the evening, preliminary to making a few arrests in the case of little Lillian Butterfield, the leading woman's daughter, who is carried on and off the stage by a bold, bad bandit in the second act.

As it is huge Harry Cashman who has to play the human conveyance, a chorus girl, 19 years of age, was substituted for the four-year-old tot. She is rather small for her years, but even at that she is no slight burden on a trial holder.

Mr. Berry believes that the humane officer was there, for he observed a hurried retreat from the lobby after the act in question.

Two Houses Draw Large Crowds Constructing Representations of Valley and Mountains.

Large crowds of people were attracted to the windows of the Owl Drug Company, at the corner of Fifth street and Broadway, yesterday by a representation of the Owens River Valley. The undulating surface of the valley is shown with the Owens River at present running its full length, here and there giving a representation of the lakes through which the conduit passes. The high Sierras are represented by a painting on the side of the window, showing their rocky sides and snow-capped peaks. The reservoir and power sites are also located and marked with pennants.

LOS ANGELES CITY'S SHOW BEST.

It was learned yesterday that Los Angeles will make a strong bid for the convention of entertaining the triennial conclave of Knights Templars in 1910. Frank H. Flint, one of the delegates to the coming conclave to be held at Saratoga Springs in July, believes that Los Angeles has the best show. Washington long ago announced that it would endeavor to secure the 1910 conclave and as the result of the rivalry between the two eastern cities it is believed that Los Angeles will win easily. If the Chicago delegation finds its fight hopeless, it will vote for Los Angeles rather than for Washington.

At the Saratoga conclave hundreds of pamphlets will be distributed, giving excerpts from letters received by Flint from various Shriners. The letters show how the recent visitors regard this city. Any Shriner who was here is expected to be a good advocate for this city.

New $6.50 to $10.00 Skirts $5.00

First comers this morning will have a hundred or more to pick from. New garments, every one of them, and tailored in that characteristic high-class manner which has made the Coulter garment section famous throughout Southern California.

Poorest of them would be good big values at $6.50; many are identical with the sorts for which, every other day, you'd gladly pay $8 or $8.50; and fully half of them are $10 values.

Newest pleated styles, some strap trimmed, others plain, in walking length. High-grade mohairs, panamas, serges and mannish mixtures in light, medium and dark shades. Plenty of plain black, navy blue and gray; as well as the preferred hairlines, checks, plaids and mixed effects.

They'll go in a hurry, for no woman who examines them can fail to realize that the values are absolutely unmatchable at $5.

Girls' Dainty Frocks

Made from expensive models, in summer materials of varied sorts, yet very inexpensively priced, as the following little list will prove.

White Dresses

Of Kismet and lawn, with dainty embroidery trimmings, 6 to 14-year-old sizes—$3.50 to $7.00.

Sailor suits in white or in shepherd checks of black and white; 9 to 12-year-old sizes—$7.50.

Lawn dresses, beautifully trimmed with fine laces and embroidery; short sleeves, wide flounces; 6 to 14-year-old sizes—$3.50 to $12.50.

Colored Dresses

Scotch ginghams, chambrays and colored piques, made jumper style; sizes 8 to 14—$3.50 to $7.50.

French ginghams, plain or checked, fancy madras, jumper and one-piece styles; hand embroidered; sizes 2 to 6 years—$1.50 to $4.50.

Fancy Chiffons Worth to $2.00 50c

Beautiful double-width chiffons in desirable colors, together with a number of fancy Marquisettes—fabrics designed especially for making up over silk or some similar material into dinner gowns or separate waists for semi-dress wear—are here to sell today for 50c a yard.

That price doesn't represent even the cost to us of the material, but it does mean that these goods will quickly be sold out and leave room for complete lines no whit prettier or more stylish.

We simply will not tolerate broken lines, and that is the sole reason why $1.50 and $2.00 45-inch chiffons and Marquisettes should be sacrificed at 50c a yard.

New Summer Waists Worth Five Dollars $3.50

A fortunate purchase on our part puts this splendid opportunity in your way—the chance to buy two summer waists for little above the usual cost of one. Distinctly new waists, too, not an old style in the lot.

These waists are shown in styles for every-day or afternoon wear with separate skirts; made with new short sleeves; square or round yoke effects of fine lace and insertion, tucks, embroideries, etc., in both fine lawn and sheer batiste.

You'll readily agree, we're sure, that such pretty styles are well worth $5; our special price is only $3.50. And there are something like twenty different models.

DEATH BATTLE'S PEACEFUL END.

FINAL SUMMONS TO ATTORNEY JOHN C. FITZGERALD.

Former City Counsel of Pasadena Succumbs to Attack of Apoplexy of a Month Ago—Fifteen Are Ill After Eating Salad and Ice Cream. Milk Is Declared to Be Watery.

PASADENA, June 8.—John C. FitzGerald, an attorney, prominent in municipal affairs in this city, who was stricken with apoplexy May 4, failed to recover from the mortal shock, and passed peacefully away at sunrise yesterday morning. His battle for life was a brave, fearless one, exemplifying the character of the man. He rallied from the first stroke, and even again took up the discussion of business affairs, and read the daily paper with keen interest while he struggled with death. A week ago last Friday he suffered a second attack of apoplexy, and a few days later it was announced that his death was a mere matter of hours. A unanimity of sympathy went forth from the citizens, and constant inquiry as to his condition became the common topic of conversation. Mr. FitzGerald had many warm friends in this city.

HON. JOHN C. FITZGERALD, who died in Pasadena yesterday.

Always outspoken in his opinions and forceful, he was a type of man courted by prominence. It was but a short time after he made Pasadena his permanent home, five years ago, that he made himself felt as a power. His opposition to the movement for the municipal ownership of the water companies of this city was aggressive and commanded attention. He was appointed City Attorney on June 6, 1905, by the then Mayor, William Waterhouse, and he held the office until April 24 the following year, when his resignation was reluctantly accepted.

During the late city election, Mr. FitzGerald became the leader of the Waterhouse campaign, and backed with all his zeal and legal knowledge the contest of the result of this election, which placed Thomas Earley in the Mayor's chair. It is believed that it was these laborious efforts which led to his sickness, and hastened his death. During his residence here Attorney FitzGerald was a student of the municipal needs of the city, and when retained as a special advisor by the City Council to represent the city in the water controversy with South Pasadena, he worked diligently.

John C. FitzGerald was born in Berlin, Huron county, O., but was practically a native of Michigan, where he was taken by his parents when an infant. His father, Jeremiah FitzGerald, served his country as a captain of volunteers in the war of 1812, and was a sturdy pioneer of Jackson county, Mich. The son, John, worked on his father's farm, and acquired his rudimentary education at night after his farm duties had been performed. With money obtained by teaching a district school, he was able to attend Albion College, choosing law as his profession. He was prepared for his admission to the bar in the office of Austin Blair, afterward Michigan's war Governor, and was admitted to practice in 1858. In 1860 he moved to Marshall, Calhoun county, remaining there until 1873, and attaining prominence, holding the office of prosecuting attorney for four years and serving one term as State Senator.

He was nominated for Congress for the Grand Rapids district in 1884, but was defeated. In Grand Rapids, Mr. FitzGerald was a member of the legal firm of Champlin, Butterfield & FitzGerald. In 1889 he entered into a copartnership with Edmund D. Barry, husband of his only daughter. The firm of FitzGerald & Barry was moved to Pasadena, and Barry has been a faithful attendant at the bedside of his father-in-law. The family residence, where the end came, is No. 358 Grove street, and gathered about the bedside were his wife, their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Barry and Dr. Henry Sherry.

The funeral will take place at the Grove-street residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Malcolm McLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. The interment will be private.

FIFTEEN ARE POISONED.

Officers of the local Board of Health are investigating a poisoning case in which fifteen people were made ill by food eaten at an entertainment Wednesday night. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wood, the latter the janitor of the Garfield school, invited the teachers of the school and several neighbors to their home, No. 429 North Mentor avenue, Wednesday evening. A light supper was served, including salad and ice cream. Late in the night all of the teachers who had been at the entertainment were taken seriously ill and the following day three of the teachers, Miss Wright, Miss Cody and Miss Frackler were not able to attend school.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wood were confined to their beds and the son of the principal of the Garfield school, Leland Holland, was also very sick. Eight of the patients were still under the care of physicians yesterday, but it is thought that the danger is now past. The health officers began work on the case yesterday afternoon, C. F. Huddleston having charge of the investigation. The ice cream is to be tested as well as samples of the other food eaten. It is believed that it was more the combination of food that caused the trouble, than anything else. Mr. and Mrs. Wood feel very badly about the matter.

DECLARES MILK WATERY.

"The milk situation in this city is simply scandalous," said Hulett C. Merritt to a Times reporter yesterday. "I am strongly in favor of the forming of a corporation among the wealthy men of Pasadena to establish a model dairy. While I am not promoting any such proposition I will lend my support to such a movement. I feel that the conditions demand it. If we are to point to Pasadena as the ideal city for children, we must have pure milk and rich milk delivered at our doors. If one wishes to learn the real standard of the milk that we are getting, let that person go into the foothills and drink fresh milk of a good cow and he will find a difference that will startle him. When we buy cream from the dairies operating here we are paying for the cream that was stolen from the milk that is delivered at our doors. If the government is agitated over watered stocks, it is fully as important that it should become agitated over watered milk. The latter has far more bearing on the coming generation."

MAYOR'S STATEMENT.

"I have served notice on the Raab dairy people that they have until Wednesday to take out their license. If on Wednesday any milk is delivered in this city without a license, arrests will be made. I would like to see the people of Pasadena stir themselves up to an appreciation of this matter of pure milk. I would like to see them demand it and I would ask The Times to request the people to note whether the milk that is delivered to them on Wednesday is delivered under a license or not and notify me if it is not. The issue has come to a climax and the law will be enforced."

RAAB DAIRY STANDS ALONE.

Evener & Webber, proprietors of the Linda Vista Dairy, had a visit with Mayor Earley yesterday which resulted in their taking out licenses for ninety-three cows at an expense of $139.50. They stated that they had signed an agreement with the Raab Creamery Company not to pay any licenses and to fight the ordinance in the courts, but they broke their agreement. The Raab company now stands alone on the issue as the Dontonville dairy has also taken out a license. Three dairies are said to be peddling milk as coming from dairies of their own, when, as a matter of fact, these companies buy their supply from the Raab people.

BEARDSLEY WINS.

North Pasadena voters, particularly those of the Fifth Ward, scored a pronounced victory in the school board election yesterday, although they resorted to the votings of "singles" to secure it. J. B. Beardsley, nominated by the petition of residents of the Fifth Ward, led the Citizens' Committee candidate, Charles H. Stearns, by 311 votes. Beardsley polled 593; W. W. Ogiers 552, and Stearns 282—a total of 1472. Electioneering was spirited and today the "wise ones" will tell just how it happened. It is believed that the insinuation that Beardsley wished to be elected to a position on the board because he is a wholesaler of furniture is believed to have done him more good than harm. This insinuation was brought out in campaign publications.

CARY TOURNAMENT HEAD.

Over a dazzling banquet board at the Maryland Hotel last night the directors of the Tournament of Roses Association unanimously elected George P. Cary president of that body.

D. M. Linnard championed the next tournament by insisting that it be the best in the history of the city and amid much enthusiasm the directors pledged their combined cooperation to their newly-elected president, to exert every effort to make the rose carnival of 1908 a "world-beater."

The board of directors accepted an invitation extended by Mr. Linnard to confer with the City Council and the Mayor to devise ways and means to promote the association and to raise a large sum of money for the maintenance and improvement of Tournament Park.

SON RACES WITH DEATH.

E. E. Spalding, a pioneer of Pasadena, who was stricken with apoplexy a few days ago, was reported as sinking last night. His condition was such that it was thought he would not live till daybreak.

A son, who is an attorney of Detroit, Mich., is traveling on the limited to the father's bedside. The train is nine hours late and it is feared that the son will not arrive before the final summons comes to the stricken man.

WEAK KNEES, IS CHARGE.

KNUCKLING TO UNIONS ALLEGED AT EAST SAN PEDRO.

Concern Which Was Among the Loudest in Protesting Against Unreasonableness of Demands of Striking Workmen Is Accused of Having Surrendered to Their Behests.

SAN PEDRO, June 7.—Several days ago a strike was announced by the shipbuilders and calkers employed in the various boatyards at Terminal and East San Pedro. The men affected had been receiving from $3.50 to $5 for a day of nine hours' work, and demanded the same rate of pay for a day of eight hours. This demand was refused by the various concerns operating on the east side. About thirty-five men were affected and went out.

It is alleged that all the various boatbuilding concerns operating at East San Pedro and Terminal agreed to stand together in refusing the demands of the workmen, which were deemed to be unreasonable.

During the current week it is alleged by other concerns operating on the east side, that the Fulton Marine Construction Company, which was among those concerns loudest in protesting against the unreasonable demands of the employés when the trouble first was instituted, had given way to a severe attack of "cold feet," and had given in to the demands of certain walking delegates and was paying its men at the same rate for eight hours' work as was originally paid for nine hours. Joseph Fellows, a well-known shipbuilder at Terminal, is authority for the charge of duplicity practiced by the Fulton company in the matter. Fellows further alleges that, owing to the weak-kneed position of the Fulton company, many employés of other concerns on the east side have transferred their employment to the Fulton company. Among the officers of the Fulton company who have seen fit to give in to the arbitrary demands of these labor-union men are: Frank Burns, cashier of the State Bank of San Pedro; A. J. Mitchell, an alleged retired capitalist; Charles Fulton and Emil Arab. It is stated that Andrew Wiedeman, Charles Richter and William De Bonn, employés of the Fulton company, have constituted themselves a committee of walking delegates to dictate the destiny of not only the employés, but of the boat-building companies operating on the east side. The Fellows company and other concerns affected promise the officers of the Fulton company and its self-constituted board of walking delegates a sudden but rude awakening within a few days.

HARDSHIP FOR BOATMEN.

It is reported today that the Southern Pacific Company, through W. B. Duncan, its local agent, had served notice upon all independent boatmen not to tie up to the wharf of the Southern Pacific on the west, or San Pedro side, of the inner harbor. While the company may be within its legal rights, it is popularly contended that the corporation might have seen fit to be more generous in the matter, since it has always received everything it requested at the hands of the city of San Pedro, and its order will work unnecessary hardships to many boatmen and launchmen operating at this port.

QUAKE AT SEA.

Capt. Smith, master of the schooner J. W. Clise, which arrived yesterday, out sixten days from Ballard, reports that early in the morning of Monday, May 20, when the Clise was off the Umpqua River, he experienced an unusually heavy earthquake shock, which shook the vessel violently from stem to stern, causing the skipper and all hands to pile out on deck to locate the unusual disturbance. The shock lasted for nearly two minutes, and, while very severe, no damage resulted to the vessel.

BAY CITY DRIFT.

Chris Krempel, proprietor of the San Pedro Wholesale Company, has returned from the fifth triannual shoot of the National Schutzen-Bund, held in Charleston, S. C., during the latter part of May. Mr. Krempel had the honor and distinction of winning the two first prizes at rifle shooting at 200 yards over several hundred competitors, one of these being a handsome gold medal, and the second a large silver loving cup.

At a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon, a handsome silver cup was offered as a trophy to be contended for by the yachts of the South Coast Yacht Club at a regatta to be held off San Pedro on July 4.

MONROVIA.

MONROVIA, June 7.—Cement foundation work on the first of three business blocks to be erected in Monrovia this summer was begun today. The structure is being built on East Olive avenue for C. J. Jacobs. It will have a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 72. The material used will be pressed brick, with terra cotta for partitions. Foundations and walls are designed for two stories, only one of which will be built this year. The cost will approximate $12,000.

CALLS FOR WITNESSES.

Dist.-Atty. Fredericks has served subpoenas on Monrovia witnesses in the case of Nels Peterson, whose trial before the Superior Court is set for June 20. Peterson manages the Arcadia Coursing Park saloon for a Los Angeles wholesale liquor firm, and some months ago in the Monrovia Justice Court was fined $200 and given a jail sentence, for selling intoxicants to minors. His principals, who furnished funds for the defense, appealed.

Rev. C. M. Fisher, for five years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, has resigned his charge and will remove to South Pasadena. He is influenced to the change by the desire to be with his daughter, Miss Muriel Fisher, who is attending Occidental College.

GARDENA.

GARDENA, June 7.—Mrs. Kellogg and daughters, formerly of South Gardena, but now of Northern California, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Bynum.

Drs. Stafford and Scott of the Los Angeles county health office were in Gardena today, investigating diphtheria and scarlet fever cases in this locality.

Joseph Gillispie, who has been at the Good Samaritan Hospital, in Los Angeles, for six weeks, after a critical surgical operation, returned home today, but is far from recovery.

The Misses Lena and Eliza Clark graduated from the college at San Fernando this week, and returned home today, bringing with them four of their classmates.

For the McKinley Industrial Home, a mile south of here, there is contemplated the building of a chapel and a structure for hospital purposes within a short time.

ROARING DRUNK ON CONTRABAND.

CONFISCATED LIQUOR PARALYZES LONG BEACH TRUSTY.

City Prisoner Is Set at the Job of Cleaning Basement and Finds Some Unopened Bottles of "Wet" Goods That Have Long Been Overlooked. Reminder of Raid Days.

LONG BEACH, June 7.—"Mis Cara Dolores" warbled in falsetto, muddled tones from beneath their feet startled the deputies in City Clerk Baldwin's office this afternoon. There was a mixture of war whoops and howls. Then came a crash and after that a bussing sound that developed into an unmistakable snore. The young women clerks edged toward the door, but Deputy Paine, captain of Co. H of the Seventh Regiment, boldly investigated. Lifting the trap door which leads to the basement beneath, he descended the rickety stairs and in a heap of rubbish found José Romera, known all over Southern California as Ninety-Day Kid, because he is seldom out of jail. Clutched in one hand was an empty beer bottle, while the other held a quart whisky flask, also empty. A smile was on his face and he only grunted when rudely kicked by the deputy clerk.

Romera was paralyzed and was left to sleep it off. His possession of the liquor brought up old history of the days when ex-Marshal Tom Williams was the terror of social clubs and blind pigs. In those days before the legality of a search warrant in liquor violations was questioned, there were frequent raids and the basement was well filled with a choice assortment of confiscated wines, whiskies and beer. Gradually these was cleaned out by pouring it into the gutters or delivery back to the owners, the last delivery occurring a few months ago, and it was thought the basement was empty.

This morning Romera, who is serving a term for drunkenness, was set to work cleaning up the basement and among the rubbish found two full bottles of liquor which he lost no time in sampling and the mixture of stale beer and aged whisky did the rest. But he will labor no more in the basement until other hands have cleaned up the rubbish with which it is littered.

SEASHORE BRIEFS.

Mrs. W. L. Stevens, for thirteen years a resident of Long Beach, died this morning at her home on Cedar avenue after a week's illness. She was attacked with ptomaine poisoning a week ago which brought on a renewal of a trouble which afflicted her for years. She was 65 years of age and a native of Meadow Gap, Pa. The family came to Pasadena twenty-one years ago and in 1894 removed to Long Beach. She was the wife of W. L. Stevens, the pioneer hardware man, who is left with eleven children, Mrs. A. McSwain, Misses Lou, Winifred, Myrtle, Claudine, Viola and Raymond, of Pasadena; Spencer, Chester of Hollywood; Dyson of San Francisco, and Mitchell. Mrs. Stevens was devoted to home and family. She was a member of the Methodist Church thirty-three years. The funeral will be held Monday at the First Methodist Church.

Tamarie placed in a jar in which 150 tiny gold fish were hatching caused their death. Park Superintendent Buchanan was experimenting with shrubs, which caused the fatality. He still has several hundred which are thriving nicely.

City Electrician Desmond is installing a police signal system for the city. For the present it will consist of two red electric lights at Second and Pine and Second and Pacific and will be operated from the marshal's office by the night sergeant, who can thus quickly call an officer when needed. Upon seeing the light the officers will report at once from the nearest telephone.

Co. H, Seventh Regiment, will give a beach camp fire west of the Majestic rink Saturday night, the proceeds to be used in the purchase of olive-drab uniforms. Besides an army supper, the public will be given a concert by the Seventh Regiment Band of Pomona.

Work on the improvements at the mouth of San Gabriel River continues without interruption and about half of the débris forming the dam has been removed. On the worst jetty twenty-two bents of four piling each have been driven. Work on the last jetty will not begin until the other is finished. There will be a 500-foot channel between the two.

The old village truck which for years did duty for fire purposes has been remodeled into a modern fighting machine, having added a chemical tank and 200 feet of hose. As soon as painted it will be put in service at West Long Beach and a volunteer fire company will be organized.

In recognition of their victories in winning the basketball championship of Southern California, the Chamber of Commerce has presented each member of the Long Beach five, Misses Dawes, Van Rennsaler, Brown, Mussetter and Kendall and their coach, Miss Wilshire, with a handsome gold bracelet.

GAS MAN TALKS GAS.

OCEAN PARK, June 7.—E. B. De la Matyr is here from Bridgeport, Ct., taking a preliminary view of the field, with a view to the establishment of a gas manufacturing plant here for his company. He represents the Sprague Meter Company, which he says is interested in numerous plants scattered throughout the country. He said with sufficient encouragement from local capital to insure the interest of the people in the enterprise, a $100,000 industry could be launched here with very little delay. He says they would be able to supply gas at a figure considerably below $1 per thousand feet.

The force of laborers all along the route of the Los Angeles-Pacific electric line has been materially increased, and it begins to look as if the gaps could all be closed by July 1, when the long ties will be ready for the rails of the wider gauge. There will be no interference, according to present plans, with the gauge until after the July 4 rush. Then it will be but the matter of a few days to lay the third rail.

Mrs. A. M. Cates of Los Angeles has taken a Rose avenue cottage for the summer season.

Mr. and Mrs. William Britton have gone to North Pasadena to spend the summer months.

A. F. Webster is at San José, attending the meeting of the State Realty Board.

REDONDO.

REDONDO, June 7.—Work is progressing with vigor in the construction of the new pavilion and auditorium on the ocean front. The date for formal opening has been set for July 4, and plans are being made for a great demonstration and celebration on that day.

The Woodmen of the World are planning for a great reunion to be held at the beach on July 5. Various lodges in the vicinity are asked to save their initiates for that day and make the occasion a memorable one. Committees have been named, W. B. Luckenbach being chairman of the General Committee. The day's fete will close with a ball in the evening.

The delinquent tax list, as advertised, consists of about 175 pieces of property, upon which taxes to the aggregate of $400 are due. The sale is to be held on July 3.

An effort is being made to organize a cornet band. There are a number of local musicians and there is a demand for music. A meeting of those interested is soon to be held, when a leader will be chosen and arrangements will be made to secure instruments.

Tennis courts, basketball grounds and a gymnasium may soon be added as a part of the incidental equipment of the High School grounds.

GLENDALE.

GLENDALE, June 7.—Measles have kept many children from taking their examinations in the public school the present week. In the primary department alone fourteen cases were reported in one day. It is hoped that the close of the school will be effective in stamping out the disease.

At a recent meeting of the school board, all the teachers in the grammar school were reëmployed for the coming year, at an increase in salary for each. Two new rooms will be fitted up in the course of the summer for use when the fall term begins. Two more teachers will be decided upon in the coming week. There are many applications before the board.

The baccalaureate sermon for the class graduating from the grammar school will be delivered Sunday evening in the new First Baptist Church by Rev. Stone. Commencement exercises will be held on Tuesday evening in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

TROPICO.

TROPICO, June 7.—The Tropico schools closed this afternoon with appropriate exercises. There was a flag-raising, at which members of N. P. Banks' Post and Corps were present, and a picnic on the school grounds. Parents and patrons of the school were present and contributed to the programme. The story of Betsy Ross and the flag was given by Marjory Inler, Kingsley Dutton and Calvin Enock. Second grade pupils gave the flag salute. Mark Keppel, County Superintendent of Schools, delivered an address

Establishment to Cost $350,000 in Prospect for Location Near Santa Ana or Place on the Newport Mesa. Representative Says It Will Employ Large Number of Hands.

SANTA ANA, June 7.—The Pacific Strawboard and Paper Company will establish a $350,000 factory either at Alisо or Paulerino. That is practically established. The company has looked over Southern California and has settled upon Orange county for its location and, unless something not now anticipated happens, it will be but a short time until work is begun on this big project. ## OWENS RIVER AND

It is too late to try to persuade you as to water is a necessity; you believe that, you need to urge upon you the necessity of extra bonds Wednesday next.

When voting for candidates for political offices which party or which candidate to vote. Now it is different. Your mind is made up home property, your general business is in fact the whole city—will be greatly helped by bonds. For you to fail to vote would, to dissuade. You dare not plead business engagements as a reason for failing to cast your vote.

A majority of one makes sure the election, but a small majority over the requisite two-thirds would be very serious. The same is involved in the size of the vote next Wednesday. Estimately unanimous, showing that practically all of the enterprise, means a better price for water on the part of the American public in general its citizens.

A. J. WALLACE, County

If every voter who can get out of the house does so, and does his duty, the vote will be a high water mark of the late city election.

What is your opinion of the patriotism of the people?

How many of them will go to the polls, and how many vote will stamp "yes" on their ballots?

Make your estimate, send it in, and see if you are a city well enough to predict their action on the bonds.

If your estimate is correct, or perhaps if it is not, you can get $100 or $200 for it.

CONDITIONS.

Address your estimate plainly to "Estimate, Los Angeles," not to "The Editor."

Each estimate will be numbered as received. In distribution of cash will be made in that order. The most correct estimate received will secure the first class.

In each class, $100 will be the award for the first; $20 for the next nearest estimate; $10 for the fourth; $1.00 each for the next fifteen, making a class or $200 in all.

The total registration at the last city election was 21,388. The total number of votes cast was 21,388. The total vote is 53,500.

The vote on the initial issue of Owens River bonds was 19,787; against the bonds, 755.

ALMOST SURE OF STRAWBOARD MANUFACTORY.

Establishment to Cost $350,000 in Prospect for Location Near Santa Ana or Place on the Newport Mesa. Representative Says It Will Employ Large Number of Hands.

SANTA ANA, June 1.—The Pacific Strawboard and Paper Company will establish a $350,000 factory either at Alisso or Paulerino. That is practically established. The company has looked over Southern California and has settled upon Orange county as its location and, unless something unanticipated happens, it will be but a short time until work is begun on this big project. Alisso is two miles southeast of Santa Ana on the edge of the Irvine ranch. Paulerino is on the Newport mesa.

C. W. Stanley, expert and director for the company, is now in Santa Ana making an investigation for the company, and he said today that in addition this vicinity offers superior advantages for his proposition. Water transportation, raw material, labor conditions—all these things are said that the strawboard men have come for their factory.

Some six weeks or two months ago the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association began negotiations with the Pacific Strawboard and Paper Company which it learned was in search of sites for building an extensive plant in Southern California. Since then the association has been at work. The directors of the company visited here and went over the ground. They were satisfied with the sites. The offer of a site of twenty acres at Alisso station, and the guaranteeing of a water supply of 1,000 inches was made. There then was some difficulty about supplying water, and at present that problem has been solved. The Irvine company has offered a right of way over its lowlands below the McFadden place, a distance of three and a half miles, for a pipe line and land for a pumping plant. This will consist of a twenty-inch vitrified pipe which have to be put in at a cost of $40,000.

The Alisso site is adjoining Alisso station and the Newport road. Five acres has been offered by R. T. Harper. Twenty acres will either be given by the Irvine Company or purchased.

The Paulerino site is twenty-five acres offered by the Irvine Company. The advantage is that it is closer to the water plant.

Mr. Stanley, the expert making the investigation for the company, said this morning that he is satisfied that there is no better place in Southern California for the factory than right here. "Water is short to water for irrigation in the Santa Fé and Southern Pacific there for shipping, a right of way for the Southern Pacific to the Alisso site being assured, Alisso station being on the Santa Fé. An electric line to Tustin is assured. An electric line to Tustin is certain. Raw material is to be had. Barley straw and bean straw can be obtained from the Irvine ranch and ranches down toward San Diego, and other portions of the south, including Imperial, etc.

"In my mind this is the place for the factory," said Stanley.

The coming of the Pacific Strawboard and Paper factory here means wonders for this county. The plant will cost not less than $350,000, and the pay roll of the factory will run to $100,000 a year. No less than 150 men will be employed in the factory.

Mr. Stanley said that scores of letters have been received from paper mill hands in the East asking for positions in the new factory.

"We will have employment in the mills for women, also," said he. "I believe that there should be opportunity for that. In choosing employés we shall select men with families."

FOR SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

The session of the California conference of the Evangelical Association this morning passed a resolution requesting its members to give preference to merchants who observe the Sabbath Day by closing their places of business on Sunday. The resolution set forth that it is the belief of the conference that the welfare of the nation and of the church largely depend upon the proper observance of the Sabbath, and the conference will coöperate with any and all societies that seek to supervise and control public amusements and industrial activities on Sundays.

At the conference today Rev. C. R. Gruen of Santa Ana, was elected delegate to the general conference that will meet in Milwaukee next October. Rev. W. H. Althouse of San Francisco was chosen alternate. Rev. Gruen was appointed presiding elder for Southern California, and Rev. Althouse, presiding elder, for Northern California.

FINDS STARVING HORSES.

Constable C. E. Jackson yesterday found three starving horses at Tustin. One of the animals he shot and the others must be fed and cared for properly or their owners will be arrested. The horse that was killed belonged to Alahandra Brockmote. Jackson found this horse so weak from starvation that he could not get on his feet. Tied to an outhouse with a handful of sticks set before him was another animal, one leg almost useless as the result of a poorly-mended broken bone. This horse belonged to S. Garcia. Garcia said his wife drove the horse sometimes. On the same alley with these two horses was one belonging to a Chinese laundryman. This horse looked as if he had been worked nearly to death and fed on a straw a day.

CUPID ROBBING THE SCHOOLS.

VENTURA LADY TEACHERS HAVE "HEART TROUBLE."

One-fourth of Total Number in County Announce That They Will Resign—Superintendent Holds God of Love Entirely Responsible—Vaccination Useless in This Epidemic.

VENTURA, June 7.—Ventura county schoolmarms are deserting their posts in bevies, and the County Superintendent of Schools is much worried over the matter. There are over one hundred lady teachers in this county, and twenty-five of these have announced that they will not teach the coming year.

"It must be that they are all going to get married," said Superintendent Reynolds to a Times reporter today. "I can't account for the defection in any other way. The retiring teachers are from various parts of the county—generally from the country districts. There are only two teachers of this city, so far as I have heard, who will not teach here the coming year. One of these, I know, is to become a bride. The other, it is rumored, has also been touched by the dart of Cupid.

"Now, the school wage here is a little better than throughout the county generally, and this may account for the refusal of some of the teachers to again teach in the county. Better pay will attract them elsewhere, of course."

NEWS NOTES.

The Native Sons of this city determined last night to attend in a body the Elk Fourth of July celebration at Santa Barbara. The local Natives will adopt a uniform and "whoop it up" for all they are worth in the neighboring city.

Juan Camarillo has returned to his home, after traveling for seven months in Europe. In all his travels, he says, he found no place quite so good as Southern California and Ventura county.

The High School class of 1907 presented an excellent play here last evening to a crowded house. It was written by the class, and the scenes were laid in Ventura.

Charles H. McKevett of Santa Paula, after a long illness, died at his home this morning, aged 59 years. He was a native of New York, but had lived here since 1883. He was a banker.

MYSTERY AT NEEDLES.

Wounded Mexican Brought to San Bernardino Hospital—Found Unconscious.

SAN BERNARDINO, June 7.—An unknown Mexican was brought to the County Hospital, this morning, from Needles. He was shot through the head and had been found in the eastern end of the Santa Fé yards. He was unconscious and remains so. The wound will probably result fatally.

The bullet entered the left side of the forehead and came out at the back of the head, shattering the skull and piercing the brain. The police believe that the man was waylaid and resisted. He had no money or other valuables on his person and his pocket was turned wrong side out.

To add to the mystery, the man is unknown at Needles. Officers are at work on a meager clew, which involves several other Mexicans who have long been suspected of being robbers.

IRREVERENT MOSQUITOES.

Rev. Robert S. Fisher of St. James Methodist Church of Los Angeles and Rev. C. M. Crist of the local Methodist Church returned this morning from a ninety-mile tramp in the mountains. They got into the snowfields and at Big Bear Lake encountered millions of vicious mosquitoes.

JUST WANT PERMISSION.

San Diego Property Owners Ready to Install and Pay for Electric Lights. Cup Defender Refitted.

SAN DIEGO, June 7.—A majority of the owners of property on D street, between California and Twelfth, have petitioned the City Council for permission to erect poles and install and maintain incandescent lights in clusters, between the points named, the expense to be borne by the property owners.

MONEY IN IT.

Word has been received from Guaymas that the company which shipped the laborers for the Southern Pacific from Vladivostok made $30,000 on the proposition. Lieut. Don M. Stewart, who went south with the ship, in charge of the naval reserves, as guards, has the money for the payment of the men ($2352.) and will arrive here Monday.

CITY EMPLOYEES HAPPY.

The City Attorney has rendered an opinion to the effect that the offices in the City Hall may be closed Saturday afternoon. The offices in the Courthouse have been closed on Saturday afternoon for some time, but in the City Hall most of them have hitherto been kept open.

SAN DIEGO BRIEFS.

George Butler has been appointed County Surveyor, succeeding A. F. Crowell, who has been appointed City Engineer. Mr. Butler has been a resident of San Diego for three years.

The defender of the Lipton cup, Aeolus, which will sail in the August races under the flag of the San Diego Yacht Club, will be ready for the water in about a week. She will have a new keel, lighter spars and lighter sails and it is expected that she will be able to show greater speed than last year.

The Russ High School will graduate thirty-five pupils at the Isis Theater on June 20.

The Street Committee of the City Council has recommended that the Barber Asphalt Company of Los Angeles be awarded the contract for the paving of Fifth street, calling for about $100,000.

La Jolla people have petitioned the City Council for the change of names of twenty-eight streets in their town.

PLAN NEW HIGH SCHOOL.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, June 7.—Plans for the High School here have been prepared by Architects Arthur Kelly and William Newberry of Los Angeles. The structure is to be in the Spanish Renaissance style, with two stories and basement, 130x85 feet, in frame construction, with plastered exterior and tile roofing. It is to have pressed-brick facing up to the first story sill courses. The interior is to be arranged for six class rooms, commercial, physical and chemical laboratories, auditorium, lecture, library, principal's and teachers' rooms. The basement is to contain gymnasium and bicycle room, and quarters for the ventilating and heating apparatus.

Rev. Ronald McKillop will conduct the baccalaureate services of the local High School at the Baptist Church tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and instead of the usual preaching services tomorrow evening at 7:30, Children's Day exercises will be held.

LITTLE ACTIVITY IN SALES OF STOCK.

THERE was a slow, dragging session on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday. Bidding was sluggish, and trading almost at a standstill. Associated Oil was a leader, sixty shares changing hands at 34. The demand for the stock seemed about the same as heretofore, with insiders trading. The close was weak at 33.75@34, each quotation showing a decline, as compared with Thursday's close.

Mexican Petroleum was also sluggish. Only 800 shares were sold on the floor, and this was on a "buy and sell" deal. The price was at 1.34. The close was at 1.31@1.35, both being weaker.

Columbia Oil was the feature. This was bid for at 73½, closing with that offered and 80 asked. This advance is due to an increase in the dividend. The directors have declared the regular monthly dividend of ½ a cent per share, and an extra dividend of ½ cent per share, making a 1 cent per share dividend. Payable June 21. The books close June 18 at 3 o'clock p.m. and will remain so until June 25.

Union Oil was called for the first time in nearly two weeks. The bidding for the stock was weak, nothing offered above 190. The asked price ranged down from 200 to 196, at which it closed. Central was offered at 1.13½, with the best bid at 1.11. The remainder of the list was inactive.

The miscellaneous securities were inactive with the single exception of Los Angeles Investment, 100 shares of which stock were sold at $2. Home preferred was offered at 62, but closed without a bid. Pacific Mutual was offered at 205. Others were stagnant. The bank stocks and the bonds also were inactive.

Trade during the mining call, was slow. One thousand shares of California Hills sold at 2¼. Searchlight Western was handled to the extent of 7000 shares, the price ranged from 4¾ to 4¾. Johnnie Consolidated sold at 11¼. Cyrus Noble was handled at 5. Bidding for Clark Copper was strong, the opening being at 15. One sale of 1000 shares is recorded at 15¼. Rumor of a strike of a nine-foot ledge of 22 per cent. copper ore in the tunnel of the Clark Copper property, at a depth of about 210 feet is said to be the cause of the rise. Brokers well known to receive their orders from the inside have been active, in a quiet way, and considerable stock is said to have been corralled.

Citrus Fruit Shipment.

There were shipped yesterday from Southern California 49 cars of oranges and 13 cars of lemons. Total shipments to date, 22,081 cars, of which 2122 were lemons. Shipments to same date last season were 22,008 cars, of which 2521 were lemons. Espee did not report shipment for the sixth instant.

Butter was only steady yesterday morning. Receipts of local stock exceeded the average yesterday. The increased receipts were occasioned by the non-arrival of supplies from the North on the day previous. Stocks were unevenly distributed. Some dealers had surplus supplies, while others did not have enough goods to fill orders for the day. Prices remained unchanged.

Northern California cheese was exceedingly scarce. In the egg market the demand for candled ranch is good and prices are firm. Garden truck was active, the volume of sales and prices asked being better than those of the last ten days. Tomatoes showed weakness under increased supplies.

Fish cleaned up early under a good Friday demand. Cracked corn has advanced 10c on the hundred. Feed meal is higher at 1.70. Corn is now quoted at 1.60. Kaffir corn soared to 1.60, and barley and wheat chop flour is exceptionally firm at 4.25 per barrel. Meals have advanced.

New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, June 7.—Cotton was moderately active, but very irregular today. Liverpool opened higher than due, but turned easier just before our opening. Professional hammering was in evidence at our opening and first prices showed a decline of 5 to 7 points, but covering set in immediately after the call and a rally of about ten points followed. The great feature of the day was the sensational strength of July, which developed great strength soon after noon hour and advanced forty points by mid-afternoon. The into-sight for the week was 41,455 against 75,739 last year. Weather conditions and forecast generally favorable. Southern spot markets generally steady and unchanged to ¼ higher. Port receipts, 7000; last year, 9418.

Dick says: "Our market due to come 8 points higher."

Liverpool spot cotton was quiet, 8 points lower at 7.44 for American middling on sales of 3000 bales, including 2000 American, imports 3000, including 1000 American.

Liverpool did not meet our decline, owing probably to Journal Commerce report, which makes the increase in acreage 1.3 per cent. and the condition of the crop 68.

Abnormally low temperatures and excessive rains reported to have caused much damage and late season. Much plowing up and replanting, favorable weather need to make good crop. Season nearly one month late. Generally fair weather indicated over eastern and central belts with showers tomorrow. East Texas fair with showers in Northwest Texas today. Arkansas and Territories cloudy tonight; fair and warmer tomorrow.

The Times Democratex report will be out Monday; it says today that much acreage probably will be abandoned and great deal of fertilizer lost by recent rains.

NURSES GRADUATE.

Eighteen Women and Two Men Receive Their Diplomas from the California School.

Twenty nurses graduated from the California School for Nurses, last night, at Gamut Club Hall. The graduates, among whom there were two men, occupied seats on the flower-banked platform, together with the board of directors. The programme was opened with music by Arend's Orchestra, upon which followed an invocation. Joseph Scott then delivered an address holding up the ideal side of a nurse's calling and dwelling with much eloquence of the importance and trust involved in it. Dr. Raymond Taylor, who delivered an address on behalf of the faculty, dealt with the practical and business side of the profession. Dr. F. T. Bicknell, president of the board of directors, delivered the diplomas to the graduates, and Miss Lampman, superintendent of nurses, together with Miss Douglas, assistant superintendent, presented the class pins, which this year were selected by the nurses themselves and consisted of a small gold disk surmounted with the emblem of California, a small bear cub. Dr. Walter Lindley of the board introduced the speakers. Members of the junior class acted as ushers and afterward the class of 1907 received the congratulations of their friends in the foyer of the hall. A dance was held at the conclusion of the exercises. The graduates are:

Misses Lillian Bartels, Anna Barna, Marie Chaney, Laura Cochran, Alcinda Creese, Ethel Doherty, Cora Fenn, Grace Frazier, Bertha Gilbert, Elizabeth Hughes, Caroline Jantzen, Victoria King, Rachel Laconny, Estelle McDowell, Emma Mulveny, Mary Newkirk, Alice Robinson, Mrs. Minnie Spaulding and Messrs. Clarence Giddings and Fred Mason.

SUMMER STUDIES.

Session of University of California to Open in Latter Part of This Month.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BERKELEY, June 6.—June 24 will mark the opening of the annual summer session at the University of California. There will be two English educators on the faculty: Prof. John Adams of the University of London and Prof. John McTaggart E. McTaggart of Trinity College, Cambridge. The interests of Prof. Adams since his graduation from Glasgow University have always been centered in educational work; he has been a teacher and head master of many English schools; a lecturer at Glasgow; principal of the London Day Training College, and he enjoys the distinction of having held the presidency of the Educational Institute of Scotland, followed by an appointment on the Canadian Educational Commission. It is an interesting fact that this educator finds his recreation largely in writing books for boys. Dr. McTaggart is a leading English philosopher. His work on "Some Dogmas of Religion" has been the topic of discussion during the present year in the Philosophical Union. He is a fellow of the British Academy, and holds high rank in the English-speaking educational world.

From eastern institutions of learning there will come a goodly number of professors. Dr. William MacDonald of Brown University will lecture on American history, dealing in one course with the organization of our government, after the adoption of the Constitution, and our political history down to the Civil War, and in another course with the interesting period of the war and the reconstruction following. George Parker Winship, librarian of the John Carter Brown Library of Brown University, will be a second member of the history department. Mr. Winship will lecture on his specialty, which is Spanish-American history, dealing particularly with the conquest and colonization of Spanish America.

Prof. Simon Newcomb will be here from the United States Naval Observatory at Washington, D. C. His first degree was taken from Harvard University in 1858, and since that time he has received scholastic honors from the leading American institutions and from English and continental universities. He was president of the International Congress of Arts and Sciences at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition of 1904. In the department of French, Prof. William A. Nitze of Amherst College will lecture on the "Classical Drama of the Seventeenth Century." He participated year before last in the summer session of the University of Chicago. Prof. Clifford H. Moore of Harvard University will discuss the "Religion and Worship of the Greeks and Romans," taking within the general field such selected topics as the following: Temples and temple property, sacrifice, family cults, religious societies, festivals, and Greek and Roman ethics. Prof. Moore will be the only member of the Latin department. He will conduct a course important for teachers of history, as well as classical teachers, on the Roman historians to Tacitus. Dr. Moore has been at Harvard for seven years. In 1905-6 he was professor of Latin in the American School of Classical Studies in Rome.

A feature of the session will be the school in library methods under the directorship of Miss Mary Letitia Jones, who was for a long time in charge of the Los [illegible] brary. She will be assisted by regular library staff and others from outside [illegible]
